Schools Provide Major News Stories For 1982

School District 564 provided the top news stories of 1982, headed by the closing of the St. Hilaire school and followed by extensive budget cuts in other areas and a substantial drop in enrollment from the previous year.

Selection was made following a review of 1982 news stories from issues of the Times.

St. Hilaire school closing was approved by the board to pare approximately $100,000 in annual costs from the district budget. Other cuts of about $800,000 were made following public meetings and hearings and the school levy was set with a $200,000 increase. Accumulated surplus was reduced and opening day enrollment dropped by 176 students from the previous year.

A close second was the furor created by consideration of hazardous waste disposal candidate sites in eastern Marshall county. Hearings, opposition, explanations and eventual designation of the East Park site as one of four in the state (for above ground disposal only) provided many stories throughout the year.

Third place is awarded to the Arctic Enterprises auction sale which, as a single event, was among the most spectacular of the year. The sale lasted three days in Thief River Falls and one day in Karlstad and with a total of nearly $2.5 million was the largest auction ever held in northern Minnesota. Bidders attended from throughout the nation.

Elections had to rate fourth place with Pennington county voters narrowly going against the primary election tide which saw endorsed candidates for governor of both parties defeated. General election interest ran high, particularly with local candidates prominent in legislative races, and turn-out was good with voting sporadic. Sunday liquor sales in Thief River Falls were again defeated.

Fifth position would go to the Thief River Falls regional airport, particularly to finding a replacement carrier for Republic Airlines which announced its intention to withdraw service. Hearings held, presentations made by candidate replacement carriers, passage of a bond levy authorization for an automated flight service station were all items surrounding airport use.

Weather could not be overlooked since it affected a large number of people. Wind storms caused extensive damage within two weeks' time in the Oklee area, hail devastated crops in a strip north, east and south of Thief River Falls and fall rains again caused extensive harvest problems and crop losses.

Motor vehicle crashes again took several lives in the immediate area with two head-on crashes on open highway among the fatal mishaps.

Various types of criminal activity were in the news in 1982, including crimes of violence, but the crime catching the most public interest was the one-night tire slashing spree which ruined 265 tires and caused $23,000 in damage.

Area economy could be used in summary form to encompass a number of stories throughout the year. Tax delinquency at 3.66 per cent in Pennington county was the highest since 4.01 per cent delinquency was recorded in 1954. Sale of Arctic Enterprises snowmobile operations to Certified Parts Corporation of Janesville, WI., signalled the end of hopes for resurrection of that industry here.

But Polar Research, Inc., opened its manufacturing facilities for a revolutionary new product in the communications field — a 360-degree antenna mount — which holds hope for the future. And Northern Outerwear began clothing manufacturing operations, picking up production for the Arcticwear brand, which also holds promise for expansion.

One story which has been in Thief River Falls news for a number of years — the downtown parking assessment district — appears finally to have reached its final chapter. Evolving through stages where multiple properties at hundreds of thousands of dollars were considered, the project assessment role for purchase of one piece of property was approved by the city council just before year-end.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

Sen. Stumpf Is Vice Chairman Of Committee

Newly-elected state Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has been chosen by his new senate colleagues to serve as vice chairman of the senate's education committee, it was announced recently.

Sen. Stumpf, elected in the November 2 general election, said he is very pleased with his election to the senate, succeeding former assistant senate majority leader Marv Hanson of Hallock, and was "pleasantly surprised to be selected as vice chairman." Stumpf said it is an honor not generally given to incoming freshman senators.

"I am also pleased with the other committee assignments I have been offered," Stumpf said, noting that he also has been chosen to serve on the agriculture and natural resources, transportation and local and urban government committees as well, beginning with the 1983 session.

Stumpf noted that, while serving in the House, he also served on the agriculture committee, and he said the fact that farming is the district's largest industry will be significant as well. "The agriculture problems in our area also tie into the major educational problem — that of declining enrollments," Stumpf said.

"Our district has the largest number of small school districts in the state, and with the threat of school closings and the like, it will be very important for us to maintain a credible and quality statewide school system to provide for our children's future," he said.

Stumpf also noted that, in addition to the economic reality of the border disparities between neighboring states, Minnesota also must contend with continuing transportation problems associated with keeping the farm economy healthy.

District Choir Jamboree Set This Saturday

District choir jamboree involving schools of District 31A, will be held on Saturday, January 8, at the Plummer high school, with guest conductor Robert Van Voorhis from the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

Participating schools will include Alvarado, Argyle, Oslo, Stephen, Warren, Red Lake Falls, Fisher, Sacred Heart and Plummer. Students will spend the day rehearsing music from many eras of choral literature, with a final effort polished for a free public concert scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Through the effort and financial help of the Plummer music boosters organization, the event will provide area residents with an opportunity to listen to a choir made up of many of the better singers in the district.

Dairy Nutrition Meet Planned In Grygla

Area dairy producers are invited to attend a dairy nutrition workshop on Monday, January 10 in Grygla. Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director, reports that the nutrition program will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the civic center.

Blake Peterson, Roseau county extension director, will be on hand to discuss current topics in dairy nutrition. Topics include new protein additives, B vitamins, forage testing, fat analysis and related current issues of dairy feeding.

Peterson will also answer questions on dairy housing ventilation. The program is open to the public.

Roseau County Cities Set Up Police Dept's.

Badger, Greenbush, Roseau and Warroad, formerly served by the Roseau county sheriff's department, are preparing to set up law enforcement centers in their own individual communities at the beginning of 1983.

The four cities have previously contracted police services from the Roseau county sheriff's department, with all deputies responding to calls in Roseau county. At the start of next year that system will be replaced with one in which police officers do not leave the city limits and the county sheriff's department has fewer deputies available.

Warroad will have two full-time officers, Dan Soll and Brad Knutson, under the supervision of Fuzz LePage, a Missouri state trooper for 15 years and also a city council member. The city officers will use a new $8,500 Chevrolet. The Warroad staffing remains equal to that in the past, but LePage feels the new situation will offer better local control.

Former Roseau county sheriff's deputy Tom Wachsmuth will be the Greenbush chief of police. Nearly doubling its present patrolling capacity, Greenbush has employed Hector Reese as a part-time deputy and Glenn Darst and Gerald Brinkman as back-up deputies who are available when needed.

Protection in Badger remains about the same, with officer Steve Willette planning to use his own vehicle during his part-time work on duty.

Roseau will have 24-hour service by the law enforcement department of a police chief and four deputies. Headquarters will be established in converted city council chambers and the city has purchased two police cars. Val Johnson is the new police chief and officers Willette, Bill Reiland, Tony Jetland and David Runner complete the force.

Most communities have also bought additional equipment including radios.

Settlement To Injured Farmer Is $1.345 Million

Seriously injured in a truck accident Dec. 9, 1976, a rural Thief River Falls farmer has been granted a $1.345 million out-of-court settlement which is believed to be the largest in the history of Minnesota.

Dean Lindholm, 55, and his family have been given the award — which can not be appealed — through negotiations with the Hartford Insurance company. The company represented the D.C. Larson Trucking company in whose truck Lindholm was injured in a crash near Decatur, NB.

An article by Paul Levy in the Minneapolis Star and Tribune attributed information on the case to the Lindholms' attorney, Fredric Bremseth of Minneapolis. The suit was filed in 1977 in Clay county court and has taken five years for settlement.

According to the Tribune article, the family of Lindholm, 55, will receive $375,000 in cash plus $2,500 per month for the next 20 years or the rest of Lindholm's life.

Babson Forecast Gives Hope For 1983 Upswing

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., December 23, 1982.

The transition from recession to expansion in economic conditions we had envisioned for the year now drawing to an end failed to materialize. Instead, the nation's value of goods and services produced, in 1972 dollars, (the real gross national product) plummetted 5.1 per cent from the level of the final 1981 quarter and virtually matched the quarter-to-quarter slump which had jolted the American economy in that final three months of 1981. There was modest improvement in the spring weeks, but the summer of 1982 proved to be a period of no growth and the final quarter probably was only slightly better. In short, while the 1981-82 downtrend of the real GNP struck bottom in the first quarter of 1982, the remainder of the year was essentially flat and failed to experience the moderate recovery anticipated.

However, the recession continued to plague the industrial sector of the economy far into the year, causing layoffs which sent the unemployment rate close to the 11 per cent mark. The consequent adverse effect upon public confidence kept consumer spending from making the show of strength needed to tilt business back upward. Also, the continuing downtrend in industrial production resulted in increased idle manufacturing facilities and prompted a steady diet of cutbacks in business capital spending plans which, together with the malaise in retail trade, did much to forestall an economic recovery.

Basic Improvements Presage Improvement In 1983

In view of the relentless flow of unfavorable economic reports throughout 1982, it is understandable that public sentiment is lacking in enthusiasm concerning prospects for 1983 business conditions. The staff of Babson's Reports, however, feels that a more hopeful view is in order. The apprehension which is so rampant at this time, based upon the inability of the economy to throw off the yoke of the recession, overlooks the handful — but vital — improvements which have taken place over the past year. These have shored up important facets of the economy and are indispensable to a healthier economy.

For example, the intolerably high levels of inflation and interest rates have been squeezed down materially, although the latter still needs further betterment before a vibrant economy can take hold. In addition, even though slack business has left many concerns in danger of collapse, other companies have been able to effect much-needed corrections and are well situated to benefit from the upcoming economic recovery. The easing of interest rates enabled these firms to secure additional and less costly lines of credit, and to fund short-term borrowings; heavy inventory positions have been pared to leaner holdings more in line with current demand, with consequent relief of strained working capital positions; and strenuous efforts have been made to trim overhead and operating costs.

All told, the economy is now on a sounder foundation than it has been in a number of years, even though it is still far from robust. Hence, 1983 business should be better than is generally perceived at this time.

1983 — Slow But Steady Uptrend

Although some underlying improvement has occurred, Babson's does not expect the economy to snap-back quickly and vigorously in 1983 as was the case following other post-World War II recessions. A gradual but steady economic uptrend will likely occur in the year ahead. However, the tempo of business will be noticeably stronger over the second half of the year, and the final quarter will exhibit the best vitality of 1983.

Many readers of this Forecast will undoubtedly question our intrinsic hopeful perspective, considering the malaise in so many of the nation's major manufacturing industries and the piteous state of the agricultural community. In some cases

Waste Management Takes On 'New Focus'

It's being called a "new focus" for the public on the waste management board's efforts, a "shift" in the board's energy and resources, or a possible "extension" of the board's processes.

What it represents is an important new phase in the board's work, the culmination of a public process that began in 1980 and the beginning of another. The board is close to providing answers on key hazardous waste management questions — answers which could change the course of the board's work and shake old assumptions about Minnesota's hazardous waste problem.

At the December 2 board meeting chairman Robert Dunn provided an assessment of the board's siting and planning processes. He outlined specific recommendations for the board — and the legislature — to address in the coming weeks and months.

The key recommendation: an extension of the process for the siting of a hazardous waste disposal facility to allow the board to devote its time and energy to the state's hazardous waste management plan, called by Dunn "the most important element in the board's assignment."

"It is time that the board consider changes in our process, including the "uncoupling" of the planning and siting processes," Dunn added. "Further developments in the siting process would await the answers of the management plan."

The hazardous waste management plan, to be issued by the board in early 1984, will specify the state's hazardous waste management needs and outline the measures and facilities needed to deal with those wastes through the year 2000. Dunn said that while the legislature gave the board specific responsibilities in 1980, it also expected the board to find answers to a number of uncertain questions about the hazardous waste problem.

"In the course of its work, the board has developed better information on the hazardous waste problem," Dunn explained. "Those findings could warrant significant changes by the legislature in the state's approach to the hazardous waste problem."

For example, the board has found that the state generates a larger volume of hazardous wastes than originally anticipated in 1980 (an estimated 200,000 tons per year, rather than the 130,000 tons estimated at that time), yet has found

Lions Collect Used Glasses

Morrie Byron, president of the Red Lake Falls Lions, reports that the club has shipped 146 pairs of used eyeglasses to the Lions eye foundation for distribution to the needy in both the U.S.A. and foreign countries.

Byron noted that the club had been assisted in the effort by the Red Lake County state bank and the Red Lake Falls VFW auxiliary, which volunteered their facilities as collection points. He added that persons who wished to donate used eyeglasses could leave them at either location or with any Lions club member.

New Focus On Management Of MN. Waste that most of that total can probably be managed in ways other than landfilling.

"An extension in the siting process could enable the board to essentially shift all of its time and resources away from spending money on the search for a disposal site to almost total concentration on alternatives to landfilling," Dunn said.

Dunn added that the extension in the board's siting process would enable the board to answer key questions about such issues as:

— The feasibility of long-term "above-ground storage" of hazardous wastes as an alternative to land-disposal.

— The merits of siting an "integrated" hazardous waste facility, incorporating both disposal and treatment. Current state law, while mandating state siting of a disposal facility, leaves the establishment of treatment facilities to private operators.

— The state's enforcement of hazardous waste regulations. The state will make a careful assessment of its hazardous waste regulations and enforcement activites.

Dunn cited several factors which have made the need for a Minnesota hazardous waste disposal site less urgent than earlier thought — and which allow the board to take the time to address other hazardous waste issues — including increased activity by industry reducing hazardous wastes, the continuing availability of out-of-state facilities and reduced waste generation in some industries due to the economic recession.

The near future will also provide an opportunity for local project review committees in candidate hazardous waste disposal site areas to organize and begin addressing long-range hazardous waste management concerns.

In fact, Dunn stated that the "uncoupling" of the siting and planning processes could not occur until the local project review committees were established. Under the 1980 waste management act, the committees are central to public participation in hazardous waste management planning.

Stumpf Named Vice Chairman Of Committee

farm commodities are moved by the highway system," according to Stumpf, "so it will be vitally important for us to maintain a good road system to boost our farm economy overall."

Stumpf noted that his efforts on the local government committee will also be significant in terms of fostering a close and good working relationship between state and local governments and "in recognizing the common sense of our local officials to help the state of Minnesota run more effectively. .

"I enjoy the public decision-making and hearing process, and I look forward to putting it to good use to benefit northwestern Minnesota," Stumpf said. "Although there are tough economic times ahead, I am enthusiastic about digging in to help solve these problems, beginning with the 1983 legislative session."

Senator Roger Moe of Ada, meeting with the newly-elected DFL caucus at the State Capitol, described this group of freshman senators as "a great and bright bunch of people who will, I trust, serve their constituents with honor and concern over the next four years. The future of our great state rests in their capable hands."

Settlement To Injured Farmer $1.345 Million

whichever is greater. In addition, escalating lump sum payments will be made every third year and include $10,000 in 1985, $30,000 in 1988, $50,000 in 1991, $70,000 in 1994, $90,000 in 1997 and $120,000 in the year 2000.

Large settlements have reportedly been awarded by juries in personal injury suits in the state, but those awards are likely to be reduced on appeals.

According to Bremseth, Lindholm was considering buying an 18-wheel truck to operate during slow farming seasons. He had made arrangements with the D.C. Larson Trucking company of Fargo, ND, to purchase the truck and lease it back to the Larson firm, which would provide licensing, insurance, loads and handling of much of the paperwork.

Because his truck was not ready, he asked if he could ride with someone to gain experience. On Dec. 9, 1976, he was riding with driver Ron Hazer when the truck skidded out of control in Nebraska and Lindholm received a blow to the forehead. For a time he was able to speak clearly enough to relate what he remembered of the accident to family and friends, but his condition gradually deteriorated.

"Now he just sits with his eyes closed most of the time," Bremseth was quoted as stating in the Star and Tribune. "He drinks coffee and can feed himself. He watches television but nobody knows if he understands what you say to him. If you asked him who the President is, he'd have no idea."

Basis of the suit was that the trucking firm should not have allowed an overweight truck on the road, the contention being that overloading contributed to the skidding causing the accident.

Lindholm and his wife, along with their two teenage sons, have a farm in Excel township about 10 miles northeast of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Lindholm and the boys operate the farm, raising small grains and sunflowers.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson,
rural Goodridge

Sweet Roll Dough
(for raised doughnuts, Bismarcks or figure eights)

3 cups warm water
12 pkgs. dry yeast

..Mix yeast in a little warm water, adding one tablespoon sugar to each package yeast. When dissolved add, remaining water.

9 cups warm milk
3 cups sugar
One-fourth cup salt plus 4 teaspoons
12 eggs
2 cups soft shortening
Flour enough for a soft dough, (even on sticky side for better doughnuts).

When mixed, place in well greased bowl to rise, until two-finger holes stay dented in. Punch down and let rise again until double in bulk. Roll on floured table, cut into doughnuts or Bismarcks or make figure eight's. Let rise 30 to 40 minutes. Deep fry in 9 lbs., shortening. (Mrs. Johnson tests the temperature of the fat by frying the doughnut holes.) Since this recipe makes a large amount of doughnuts, she generally cuts the recipe in half.

The Johnsons live on a farm 25 miles east of Thief River Falls. They have four children: Robert, in Anoka, Jim, who lives on the home farm which he now operates, Mrs. Merle (Donna) Naeseth, Highlanding, and Mrs. Marlin (Jennie) Johnson, who also lives on the home farm. All are married and together have presented the Johnsons with 13 grandchildren.

Babson Report Gives Hope For 1983 Upswing their related regional economies' "hard times" extend back several years — not just during the recession of 1981-82. However, the odds favor at least the beginning of a recovery sometime in 1983 — a condition long overdue.

Bear in mind that with inflation brought to heel, and with interest rates having receded to far less onerous levels than those which had prevailed a little over a year ago, the danger of additional major slippages in the economy is far outweighed by the likelihood that the early stages of recovery will emerge. Once credibility is established, additional forward motion will follow.

Residential building — one of the key sectors of the economy — has already commenced a cyclical upturn. The domestic automobile industry seems to be on the verge of a comeback, although the effects of "sticker shock" (i.e. high factory prices on 1983 model cars) still constitute a vexing barrier to a full-scale outburst of demand for new autos.

Gross National Product

We forecast that the nation's real gross national product (the GNP ex inflation) will trend upward in 1983. Any wavering in quarter-to-quarter betterment is likely to be nominal — not serious enough to abort the primary upward progression. Overall, the average rate of advance could be on the order of three per cent, although we would not be surprised to see a somewhat better showing. This would not be a rousing display of economic vitality by any means but it would approximate the long-term growth trend of the American economy and be a decided improvement over the negative result which undoubtedly was the lot for 1982.

Industrial Production

Monthly readings of the Federal Reserve Index of Industrial Production (which measures the physical volume — as opposed to dollar value — of output of the nation's factories, mines, and utility facilities) will reverse their long downward trend in 1983. A new cyclical uptrend will prevail, although on a seasonally adjusted basis occasional sub-par readings are bound to occur. However, such slippages will be magnified out of proportion when they're compared with temporarily higher showings, hence will not reflect basic flaws in the economy.

Overall, 1983 will likely chalk up a three per cent advance in industrial production, in contrast with the steep slump experienced in 1982. With housing and military goods already imparting some beneficial effects to related raw materials production, industrial activity for 1983 has a good base upon which to build. We expect that there will be augmenting support from autos and other consumer durables, plus computer and high-tech lines. As the year progresses, we look for the pulse of industrial activity to quicken.

Business Inventories

Business inventory liquidation figured prominently in the soft-to-listless economic climate in 1982. The impact was especially pronounced during the first quarter, but the process continued in the second three months at a less awesome pace. Changes in this segment of the gross national product were only nominal during the second half of 1982, but the effects were still essentially negative. Thus, throughout the year business had difficulty in trying to bring inventories into proper alignment with sales, since the inflow of new orders kept slipping and the anticipated upturn in demand failed to materialize. The stress placed upon trimming inventories also reflected a desire to rebuild liquidity and reduce bank borrowings.

The Babson staff anticipates that the changes in business inventories will be more constructive in 1983. The transition from deep cuts to normalizing inventories will contribute to better GNP readings during the year ahead, although the impact is not expected to be powerful overall. Ample-to-adequate supplies of raw materials and finished goods in an atmosphere of moderate sales gains and well-contained price inflation will not offer much incentive for aggressive forward buying and inventory accumulation beyond normal requirements.

Business Capital Expenditures

Deterioration of business confidence and the decline in usage of industrial productive capacity overshadowed the appeal of tax incentives when it came to decisions on business capital spending in 1982. Babson's forecasts that there will be some overall increase in this sector during 1983 — on the order of two per cent to three per cent. However, much of the gain will occur in the year's second half. Look for capital investments to stress improved productivity and cost savings rather than major projects to add significantly to productive capacity.

Building and Construction

One of the bright spots in the economic outlook for 1983 is the residential building sector. The Babson forecast of new housing starts is 1.5 million units. This compares with an estimated average annual rate of a little over one million units for 1982. The record rate of two million units established in 1978 will not be approached in the year ahead. The cost and availability of mortgage money have improved in recent months, and further betterment will occur during the early months of 1983. Thus, the background is favorable for a pickup in new housing starts, and for sales of existing homes also. Nonetheless, mortgage rates will still be too high for many aspirants to first-time home ownership to warrant a stronger improvement in the housing market than is now envisioned.

In heavy construction, prospects for 1983 are nondescript. A glut in commercial and industrial facilities exists. This surplus must be absorbed before the construction business shows much zip.

Employment — Personal Income

The deeper and longer-than-expected recession saw an extension of the downtrend in industrial production into late 1982. This resulted in a protracted "span" of deteriorating employment conditions. Although the seasonally adjusted monthly rate of employment was mostly in a sidewise trend (but below the average of the year before), the number of workers on part time for economic reasons averaged substantially higher than the 4½-million rate for 1981, manufacturing employment declined noticeably, the average length of work weeks in manufacturing was clearly below the preceding year; and the jobless rate in the waning portion of the year was clearly past the 10 per cent mark with no sign of any immediate downturn.

Looking to 1983, Babson's foresees better employment conditions for the year as a whole. Early on, work forces will expand slowly while factory work weeks lengthen. Then, when business strengthens and public confidence improves, employment will rise more noticeably. However, unemployment is expected to shade higher until around the winter-into-spring juncture, with the rate peaking near 11 per cent (probably avoiding any marked penetration of that level). Nevertheless, with the labor force still growing, the tepid economic recovery anticipated means that subsequent lowering of the jobless rate will be tough and only minor — averaging a shade below 10 per cent at best for 1983 as a whole.

Look for personal income to trend upward in 1983 and probably average four per cent to five per cent higher than 1982. With traditional industrial lines not expected to show a vigorous rebound, the seemingly ambitious anticipated increase in personal income will probably stem from the better-paying employment lines such as high technology, defense activities, and services.

Wage rates will trend upward due to both existing multi-year labor pacts and new contracts scheduled for negotiations in 1983. But how much of gross income will translate into take-home pay depends upon whether the Administration can fend off the efforts to reduce, delay, or eliminate the 10 per cent income tax cut slated for July 1st. Our guess is that such attempts will be beaten back by the White House, though not without difficulty. One must also keep in mind definite and contemplated new and higher tax imposts of one form or another.

Consumer And Government Spending

Reluctant consumer spending attitudes during 1982 were a factor in the economy's inability to rouse itself into a recovery move. However, some of the postponed spending will help to lift 1983 business. Odds now favor an increase in consumer expenditures approximating seven per cent. Yet this could either be tempered or enhanced, depending upon the outcome of the 1983 Federal income tax reduction legislation.

Government spending will be higher in 1983 and lend good support to the economy. Look for a sizable growth in outlays for basic services at the federal level. The proposed monumental hike in defense spending will undoubtedly be trimmed somewhat in exchange for programs to put the jobless to work.

Corporate Profits Dividends

After 1982's dreadful showing, prospects favor an upswing in corporate profits after taxes during 1983. Betterment in business, some firming of prices, and benefits from cost-cutting measures instituted during the past year or more augur well for a rebound in net corporate earnings. Babson's forecast: Up at least nine per cent. However, competitive conditions will persist, posing some restraint on profits progress.

Corporate dividend payments will rule higher in 1983. Better profits will permit more instances of dividend rate increases than was seen in 1982 when there was a rash of cuts and omissions.

Farm Outlook

The beleaguered farm sector is expected to experience some relief in 1983. Increased exports of farm products should tilt depressed farm prices upward, and there will be some betterment in farm income. But deep financial problems and large carryovers of farm surpluses cannot be cured quickly under normal circumstances.

Inflation — Prices

The Fed persisted in its anti-inflation monetary policies over a good portion of 1982. Success of this course is evident in the sharply lowered (about six per cent versus the double-digit scenario which plagued 1981) inflation rate, as measured by the average rate of monthly charges of the seasonally adjusted Consumer Price Index, annualized.

For 1983, it is Babson's forecast that average monthly readings for the CPI will shade only fractionally lower. However, the bulk of the further betterment will occur in the first half of 1983. Beyond mid-year, the effects of the upward trek in business will mean firmer prices, but no return of dangerously high inflationary pressures.

Supply gluts of oil, coal, metals and other industrial raw materials, plus heavy overhangs of foodstuffs, are bulwarks against any long run of stiff price increases during the year ahead. However, deeply depressed wholesale prices are bound to experience some revival.

Interest Rates Monday and Credit

The welcomed downtrend in interest rates encompassing the entire span of the maturity scale exceeded expectations during 1982. Babson's foresees further easing early on in 1983. The prime rate, for example, could sag to around 10 per cent. Long-term interest rates will also work more on the downside. However, sometime in the year's second half, firm-to-higher tendencies will bend interest rate curves back upward.

Foreign Affairs

U.S. - Soviet relations will not show much change until the new Kremlin leadership is fully organized. There will be a strong flow of rhetoric like the recent blasts debunking each other's arms and nuclear weapons charges, but no outright severing of dialogue in 1983. Thus, odds are against any early and substantive talks on nuclear and other arms limitations or reductions — more likely is movement in the opposite direction initially — but the atmosphere could improve later in the year.

American influence on Mideast matters offers distinct opportunities for enhancement of U.S. prestige and role in that region, but only if our cards are played correctly. Prospects in Latin America are not as sanguine, with the danger more a matter of setbacks for U.S. efforts from time to time and consequent eorsion in American influence.

Stock and Bond Outlook

The abrupt and spectacular transition in the trend of stock prices from down to up — bringing with it a similar basic change in investment sentiment during the late summer of 1982 — was an important development. The staff of Babson's Reports regards the change as a basic and genuine trend reversal which is not apt to run its course quickly. As a matter of record, therefore, the Babson forecast is for stock prices to work higher in 1983, with the Dow Jones industrial average moving in a range of 940 on the downside to 1,250 on the upside, although it would not be a surprise to see the DJIA brushing against the 1,300 mark at its peak for the year.

Thus, Babson's recommends that investors adhere to an 1983 investment policy which is more aggressive than otherwise — yet consistent with the individual needs of each investor. The impressive rally of second-half 1982 notwithstanding, many common stock prices have merely rebounded from deeply oversold levels and hence can still make rewarding upside progress. Judicious selections can be made to beef up portfolios, whether the investor's goal is growth, capital appreciation, or income, or any combination thereof. The bond market also can make further upside progress during the year ahead.

Myers Names Head Of State SCS Programs

Peter Myers, chief of the USDA conservation service (SCS), has selected Donald Ferren as state conservationist for SCS in Minnesota. Ferren will take over on January 9 following the retirement of Harry Major.

Since 1974, Ferren has assisted in the management and implementation of Minnesota's soil and water conservation programs as assistant conservationist and deputy state conservationist.

A native of New Hampshire, Ferren has worked for SCS for 29 years. In 1980, he was honored as the "Civil Servant of the Year" for his excellence in managing SCS programs. He is known for his multi-state experience, holding positions as district conservationist in New Hampshire; area conservationist in Utica, New York; and assistant state conservationist for operations and watersheds in Vermont.

Under Ferren's leadership, SCS has helped approximately 23,000 individuals plan and implement soil and water conservation practices.

Under his administration, Ferren expects to increase the technical assistance to "target areas" where critical soil erosion and other resource problems occur. Presently, six counties in southeast Minnesota have been designated as the Hiawatha target area — Goodhue, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona, Fillmore and Houston. Approximately $225,000 will be allotted to increase staff in these counties to assist farmers in planning and implementing conservation practices in FY 1983. In FY 1984, Ferren hopes Rice, Steele, Dodge, Freeborn and Mower counties will be added to that target area.

Southwest Minnesota may be marked as another target area including Lincoln, Lyon, Pipestone, Murray, Rock and Noble counties in FY 1984.

Channelling funds to critical erosion areas stems from recommendations of the resources conservation act (RCA), an evaluation of the nation's soil and water conservation program. "The RCA findings and recommendations will increase staff to areas where there are critical problems of erosion, water conservation and flooding," Ferren said. He added, "We are still maintaining a base level of funding for all counties in the state that have not been designated as a target area."

UMC Offers Pottery Class For Children

Course in hand built pottery will be offered for children in grades three through five on Saturday, January 22 and 29, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Dowell hall 302 at the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC).

Children will build clay pots by using the pinch, slab, and coil methods, according to instructor Pat Kuznik, UMC art instructor.

"They will help load the pots in the kiln and learn how to make their pottery pieces colorful by glazing," said Kuznik.

Participants are asked to wear washable, comfortable clothing and to bring a sack lunch. Since class size is limited, preregistration is required before January 17, by calling UMC at (218) 281-6510, extension 348. Fee for the course is $12.50, which includes all materials.

Mpls. Show Seeks Disabled Artists Work

Sister Kenny institute's 20th annual international art show by disabled artists will open in Minneapolis the week of April 21. The institute sponsors the art show to give disabled artists opportunity to display and sell their works and to show the general public that disability does not affect art. In 1982 over 160 artists from 30 states and 17 foreign countries participated in the art show.

In the past the Sister Kenny Art Show has been limited to persons with physical disabilities. Now any artist with a disability, that is a physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more major life activities (such as caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, breathing, learning or working), is eligible.

Any art medium including watercolor, oils and acrylics, pen and ink, charcoal, pastels, photography or sculpture may be entered in the show. All entries will be judged and displayed, and over $1,000 in prizes will be awarded.

Deadline for entries in the 20th annual art show by disabled artists is February 1. Disabled artists interested in submitting entries should write for entry forms and further information to: Mary Ann Ellefson, Community Relations and Advocacy Department, 800 East 28th Street at Chicago Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55407.

Dear Readers,
In the event a doctor was not attending the deceased, the statutory authority of the Coroner or the Medical Examiner's office takes precedence. It is his legal responsibility to determine the cause of death and to certify it in the public records. Neither the Coroner nor the Medical Examiner have authority to call a funeral director. This choice remains the right of the next of kin.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Technology In Our Lives

THERAPY FOR HEALING

A patient finds treatment with Fluidotherapy far from all wet.

Engineering plus medicine have combined in a new technology in rehabilitation and healing.

The new technique is known as Fluidotherapy®. Through the simultaneous application of heat, massage, levitation, stimulation and pressure oscillations, it is used for treatment of pain, range of motion, circulation, treatment of open or closed wounds and to ease the effects of edema.

Through mechanical and thermal stimulation of the skin, counter-irritation is produced which modulates sensory input, thus blocking pain perception and response. It has been found useful following injuries to tissue or from contusion, pain due to degenerative, rheumatic tissue alterations, overstrain and other problems.

Restricted range of motion due to fractures, reconstructive surgery, sports injuries and arthritis respond to Fluidotherapy. Vascular insufficiency and post-operative muscle, tendon and nerve repair also benefit.

The technique has been developed by Fluidotherapy Corporation, an affiliate of Intermedics Inc. of Freeport, Texas.

Among its other benefits are the elimination of the need to immobilize patients with paraffin, hot packs or the inconvenience of water.

The combination of heat, stimulation and pressure in Fluidotherapy, have been found to increase the efficacy of treatment both quantitatively and qualitatively.

Studies show it to be from 12 to 35 times more economical than other attempts to do the same thing.

For more information see your physician.

Say International Youth Exchange To Be Promoted

by Charles Z. Wick, Director, U.S.
Information Agency

Recently a Latin American exchange student named Fernando Gomez was leaving the American family he had lived with for a year. "I'm glad to go back to Colombia," he said, "but in my mind there will always be something of Nebraska."

On the other side of the world, another teenager, Teri Fishfader of C'oeur D'Alene, Idaho, was saying goodbye to the Japanese family with whom she had spent the summer. "I feel as if a small part of me has become Japanese. This feeling I will treasure always," said Teri.

These two young people, like thousands of others who participate in international exchange programs, had unforgettable experiences in other lands. And their experiences changed their views of the world.

They saw different ways of life and developed new understandings of other peoples. They will be wiser citizens of the world in the years ahead.

But exchange students aren't the only ones who benefit from these programs. Said Sybil Beard of Chantilly, Virginia, whose family hosted a young overseas visitor for a year: "It made our family stop and think. We had preconceived notions about other cultures and it educated us."

President Reagan has long recognized the value of youth exchange and the role it can play in advancing world peace. Last May he called top officers of voluntary exchange organizations, corporations, foundations and government agencies to the White House and proposed a substantial expansion of international youth exchange. And he asked me as Director of the U.S. Information Agency, the federal agency responsible for overseas cultural and information programs, to oversee his Youth Exchange Initiative.

In opening the White House meeting, President Reagan spoke eloquently about the importance of the new effort. "Steadily chipping away at the obstacles to peace," he said, "is . . . the network of human relationships between our country and other nations around the globe. . . I am convinced that one of the best ways to develop more accurate perspectives on other nations and on ourselves is for more Americans to join for a time another family in a community in another land. And, we can't hope that more nations would appreciate our culture unless more of their future leaders have the same chance to feel the warmth of the American family, the vitality of an American community, the diversity of our educational system."

In June the President discussed his youth exchange idea with six of America's closest allies at the Versailles Summit Conference. As a result, plans are now underway to increase the number of students exhcanged among the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, France, Canada and Japan by 15,000 over the next three years, and later to expand the program to include other parts of the world.

The President has also asked a group of U.S. leaders in business, industry and education to help raise funds and publicize his Youth Exchange Initiative around the United States. Coy Eklund, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Equitable Life Assurance Society, is serving as Chairman of the President's Council for International Youth Exchange.

In many cities across the country, steering committees have been established to interest more young Americans between the ages of 15 and 19 in going abroad, and to enlist more American families to host overseas youth. For more information about local efforts, you may write to Rosemary Lyon, Consortium for International Citizen Exchange, 3501 Newark Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016.

Some of the students who come to the United States will stay for a year, others just for a summer. Most will attend high school while they live with American families, a smaller number may become interns in U.S. industry, labor and agriculture.

The President's International Youth Exchange Initiative comes at an especially important moment. The younger generation in Europe, the United States and Japan knows only from history books about our shared sacrifices for freedom during World War II. A period of time in each others' countries may remind them of our need to continue to defend our precious heritage as free societies.

With financial help from private industry and through the hard work of established private exchange organizations like the American Field Service, Youth for Understanding and the Experiment in International Living, our efforts should begin bringing more international students into the homes of America, Canada, Europe and Japan by next summer.

And, we are hoping that each student who takes part in an exchange program will go home saying just what Elizabeth Elgin of Silver City, New Mexico, did after a summer with the Nita family of Tokyo. "We have planted a seed and I can see in the future that seed growing and growing."

Don Loeslie Candidate For NAWG Head

Minnesota assosication of wheat growers has announced the candidacy of Don Loeslie, a Warren wheat grower, for president of the national association of wheat growers (NAWG). Election of the president will take place at the NAWG annual convention in Houston, TX, from January 12 through January 16.

Loeslie is an active member of the Minnesota wheat growers, having served as legislative coordinator, second vice president, and currently first vice president. In 1981, he was elected secretary treasurer of the NAWG and chairman of the farm program committee. He is presently the vice president of the NAWG and also serves as the chairman of the NAWG membership committee. Previously, Loeslie has served as the chairman of the NAWG econometric research committee and vice chairman of the NAWG international and domestic marketing committee.

According to Harry Howard, NAWG president, wheat producers from each of the 16 member states of the NAWG will meet at the Houston convention to formulate a cohesive national wheat platform based on the policies adopted by the member states. This national agenda for the wheat economy will become the "marching orders" for new officers and staff, Howard said.

This year's convention highlights include many guest speakers and topics of interest to the future of the wheat economy. Senator David L. Boren of Oklahoma, member of the stae's finance and agriculture committee, will deliver the Friday address. Secretary of Agriculture John Block will be the featured speaker Saturday.

Topics entitled, "The U.S. Economy, Outlook, Hopes, and Fears," and "Issues in World Grain Trade," will be discussed with Hobart Rowen, business and finance columnist for "The Washington Post" and Andrew Schmitz, author of "Grain Export Cartels." Edwin Newman, NBC news correspondent, will be the concluding banquet speaker.

Minnesota wheat producers interested in attending the NAWG convention in Houston should contact the Minnesota wheat office in Red Lake Falls.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

For Small Business: A Big Help

This office worker can send written messages to people around the world without leaving her desk.

A lot of small businesses are getting a big hand in communicating with each other and their home offices thanks to an innovative, economical way to send electronic messages.

It's a desktop teleprinter that can be connected to existing telephone lines to enable office workers to communicate with locations across the country or around the world without leaving their desks. Messages can either be transmitted as they are typed, or prepared off-line, edited and sent with the push of a button.

The new teleprinter, called the Whisper Writer, and developed by the experts at 3M, has a 4000 character memory and comes in several models including desktop and portable models. Aptly named because of its quiet operation, the new teleprinter automatically answers incoming calls and verifies that the correct number has been reached. It has the capability of direct access to data banks on a regular basis. Designed to serve the electronic mail operation that is now available, it gives small businesses a new economic tool that may help them to reach out and grow.

UND Library Aids Family History Seekers

Inspired by Alex Haley's "Roots" and the American Bicentennial, people searching for their identity today have delved into yesterday.

Genealogy has exploded into a popular American pastime, and "it's difficult to ignore it once you've been bitten by the bug," according to Colleen Oihus, assistant coordinator of special collections for the Chester Fritz library at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks. "People keep looking for one more relative, one more generation," she explained.

Oihus is responsible for collection development in the library's family history room. In 1980, all family history resources were collected for public research in the North Dakota room, now moved and expanded to special collections on the fourth floor of UND's library addition. Family history is one of seven collections in the department.

Located in a spacious and comfortable room, the family history collection provides materials to help aspiring genealogists learn what resources exist and how to find them. Collection focuses on the three major ethnic groups in North Dakota: Scandinavians, including Icelandic and Finnish; Germans from Russia, and Canadians of English, Irish and Scottish descent.

UND collection itself consists of three types of resources: journals, books and primary records. Journals range from general serials, such as the "genealogical helper," to the very specific, such as the "Journal of the American Historical Society of Germans From Russia."

Books in the collection run the gamut from general to special topic, from "how to" guides to gazetteers and plat books, from encyclopedias to passenger lists. Included with the special topic area are the library's well-known Bydgeboker, an extensive collection of Norwegian local history books.

Numerous cities and towns in Norway have written their histories, many including genealogies. Significant demand for "finding the folks back home" encouraged Oihus to contact 450 Norwegian municipalities, asking them to consider donating copies to the new family history collection. Their response was "unbelievable," Oihus said, adding that she expected "maybe 25 volumes." Collection now has over 450 volumes.

Primary records make up the largest collection in UND's family history room. These records of "first entry", all on microform, include the federal census for North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota from 1840 to 1910 and the Canadian census for Ontario and Manitoba from 1831 to 1871. Other examples of primary records are service records of Union veterans in the American Civil War, American Lutheran Church records for North Dakota, and North Dakota homestead tract book records.

Tracing lineage, Oihus said, is original research which the limited special collections staff is unable to do. "We do know the capability of our collection," Oihus added quickly, "and we'll do our best to assist users in researching our record resources."

Oihus knows her stuff in the family history collection. With a master's degree in American history and anthropology, she completed an internship at the Genealogical library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah. Almost a living catalog, Oihus knows what and where the records are and how to get them. "If," she cautioned, "they're available."

People of all ages have used materials in UND's Family History Room. Older people have a sense of identity coming from the "old stock" of one ancestral nationality, Oihus said. They're interested in renewing their ties with the homeland. Today's newer generations, she said, aren't "solid stock"; they're mixed nationalities and the final product is American, tracing its roots.

Oihus compared genealogy to the intrigue of playing detective. Detective stories have endured, even on television, she noted, and added, smiling, "There's something exciting about solving a puzzle without getting shot up."

UND's special collections department and its family history room are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and also from 7 to 11 p.m. on Wednesday, during the fall and spring semesters of the regular academic year. Shorter hours are in effect at other times. To check operating hours and to get more information about the special collections department, phone (701) 777-4625.

BSU Lecture Studies German Immigration

Dr. Clarence A. Glasrud, author and professor emeritus of English at Moorhead state university (MSU), will present a January 12 lecture at Bemidji state university (BSU) on German immigration to Minnesota.

Lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Bangsberg main theatre on the BSU campus. An open reception sponsored by the BSU German club, will follow in the Bangsberg green room. Both events are open to the public at no charge.

Glasrud has authored and edited a sizable amount of material on the German-American in Minnesota, as well as on Norwegian-American history and literature and American writers.

In 1981, he edited "A Heritage Deferred: The German-American in Minnesota," published by Concordia college. A sequel to the book illuminating the special relationship between West Germany and Minnesota, 1945-1982, is scheduled for publication in 1983.

Glasrud was chairman of the English department at MSU for 23 years and a member of the faculty from 1947 to 1977. His M.A. and Ph.D were both from Harvard. He is the associate editor of "Studies in American Fiction" and on the board of editors of the Norwegian American historical association.

Lecture is jointly sponsored by BSU and the Bemidji community arts council as part of BSU's international studies lecture series and the council's "Settlement in a New Land" series.

For further information, contact Jan Weiskopf, BSU, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-3829.

In Case You Want To Know

Minnesota department of health has released some annual statistics which make for interesting reading and could be a good conversation starter at a dull winter weekend gathering. Here they are, in case you want to know:

During an average day 179 babies are born in Minnesota. Of these, all but four will grow to adulthood. Boys will live an average of 72 years and girls 78 years. (In 1910 64 of 179 babies would have died before the age of 20 — half of these during the first year.)

Every 24 hours, 36,000 people are seen by Minnesota physicians and 2,000 of those are admitted to hospitals; 10 per cent of all personal income in Minnesota is spent on medical care.

Every day seven Minnesotans die violently, five of them in accidents, half of which involve motor vehicles.

There is one suicide per day and one murder every third day.

Each day, 142 people file claims for occupation injuries under workman's compensation.

In 1980 there were 16,490 abortions.

Within the past two decades, the annual number of measles cases has been reduced from over 50,000 to three.

Thirty per cent of Minnesotans over age 18 still smoke.

Four deaths per day are caused by lung cancer and 45 deaths per day by diseases of the circulatory system.

Drinking in Minnesota's population has increased in the last two decades, reaching the highest recorded level in this century. In 1980 the average yearly consumption was 36.7 gallons of liquor, beer and wine for every person over age 15. Since 32 per cent of the population does not consume alcoholic beverages, those who do actually consume 54 gallons or 19 oz. daily.

In 1980, 68.8 per cent of fatally injured drivers tested for blood alcohol were found to have alcohol in their blood; 52.2 per cent were between the ages of 16 and 24.

Waste Into Wine

Minnesota waste management board chairman Robert Dunn has succeeded in directing attention away from the board's main thrust toward establishing a waste disposal site. That process has broken down so miserably that it is probably best set on a shelf until some order can be reestablished.

But it is a study in bureaucratic logic to see someone with experience in dealing with the public (Dunn was a State Representative from 1964 to 1968 and a State Senator elected in 1972 and reelected in 1976) seize upon an unexpected result and attempt to use it to advantage.

In a recent column in "Foresite," the WMB's public newsletter, chairman Dunn writes: "If the board in 1980 had asked citizens to help in the development of a vague state 'Management Plan' for hazardous wastes, I doubt that many, if any, citizens would have attended the first meeting.

"Instead, our siting process — which designated potential siting areas, then addressed long-range plans and the state's specific hazardous waste management needs as the areas were narrowed — enabled the board to draw citizens directly into the siting and planning processes. . . . The discussion and debate over these issues could not have reached the level it has without the board's extensive program of public information and participation."

Dunn infers that the process was established with the view toward stimulating public participation. Perhaps so, but it seems to us that the public was drawn "directly into the siting and planning processes" not as partners in seeking solutions but as citizens seeking protection. It was the board's willingness to disregard its own site selection criteria that incensed the public and compelled them to react. And the rapid dwindling in the number of potential candidate sites due to rejection for unsuitability indicates the public may well have been more perceptive in its arguments and reasoning than the board.

We agree with Dunn that the board has indeed conducted its activities in the open and we gratefully acknowledge the efforts of board staff in cooperating with and assisting the news media in bringing information to the public. If the shift from disposal siting to reducing waste volume and emphasis on processing of wastes is an indication, the board may have learned a few things from its exposure to the public.

While the end result may be the best solution for all Minnesotans, we think Dunn and his board would have to swallow a little hard in an attempt to make the public believe it was planned that way. If it is a man's purpose merely to crush a grape, he shouldn't take credit for making the wine.

Practice What You Preach

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Minnesota State Legislators have been telling us lately how tough it is to make the necessary budget cuts to reduce the state deficit. They've been telling us how tough it is to lay off state employees or ask them to work awhile without pay. They've told us it's a shame that state employees may have to take on more of their pension fund burden.

We agree with them every step of the way. These cuts have to be made. But what about the Legislature itself? Are there no cuts to be made there?

For example, legislators have an exceptionally generous pension program funded by taxpayers. A legislator only has to serve six years to be eligible for the state pension. How many of us work only six years before we qualify for retirement benefits?

Legislators also receive an annual salary of $18,500, even though they aren't in session but a few months. Many of them hold other jobs that pay good money. If state employees can work for awhile without pay, we think legislators should set an example by working a month without pay.

And what about per diem? Each legislator receives a nice fat per diem check for every day spent in St. Paul. This, of course, is an addition to paychecks and pensions. The state could save a great deal of money if legislators decided not to accept per diem payments for awhile, or just worked for their expenses until they had put the state's finances back in order.

Then too, there's the size of the Legislature. Minnesota has more politicians per capita than most states and just about all of them seem to feel the need to justify themselves by passing some sort of tiresome legislation, which every year clogs the system. Meanwhile, the important state issues are left until the last minute. If legislators want to save the state money, they could reduce the size of the Legislature — and length of sessions.

State lawmakers are sad when they have to take something away from state employees. But how sad are they? How much do they really regret the hard decision of hard times? Enough to share some of the hardship?

If the legislative leaders really want to lead, we think it more appropriate they begin cutting with themselves. Residents of Minnesota are among some of the highest taxed people in the United States, and the Legislature will now begin discussing ways to increase that burden even more. An example of sacrifice would be an important persuasive device for lawmakers. Why not demonstrate to the people how tough things really are when even the politicians have to take a pay cut? Maybe such an example would make it easier for all of us — the unemployed, the people just hanging on with two or three part-time jobs, the overtaxed, the indebted farmer — to face another round of tax hikes.

The members of our Legislature certainly share in the responsibility for the state's financial mess. It's only right now that they share in the burden it has placed on Minnesotans.

Party Rules

It has been rumored that the following list of rules was distributed prior to a New Year's Eve party conducted by a local business:

(1) Do not drink the punch. It is made from old umbrella fabric, swimming pool acid and pink stucco.

(2) Do not bring articles of clothing you could leave behind. It is difficult enough to explain the people left behind.

(3) When either of the principals of the firm begins to resemble Paul Newman or Robert Redford, go outside and cool down for at least an hour.

(4) Do not sing. Anyone who was rejected for the church choir is not likely to develop into Luciano Pavarotti or Barbra Streisand on the eve of entering his or her 40th year.

(5) Deny everything.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A husband answered the phone late one night but failed to get an immediate response from the caller. Then the male caller responded with a tentative, "Hello. I'm trying to reach home. I hope I have a wrong number."

GOLD RUSH winner, Mrs. Gary Chaput of Brooks, got to start the new year with an extra $900 when her name was selected in last week's drawing at Northland Foods in Thief River Falls, and her card was punched. Extending a congratulatory handshake after presenting her with the check is Ken Garceau, store manager.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

While visiting another city, I met a man who had been in the service with me more than 30 years ago, and whom I hadn't seen since we were discharged. We had lunch and discussed "old times." Then he mentioned a very difficult Saturday evening dinner out with his neighbors, difficult because he said that he and his neighbor's wife had been having an affair for almost one year, so that an evening as couples and friends was not easy.

There was no preaching but I was shocked at the casual way this guy was treating something very significant. I have always was believed that the family was the basis for just about everything, and that a mother and dad had lots of obligations. No one promised them that marriage was a paradise. The concept of being able to forget your obligations and complicate the lives of two families and seven kids was difficult for me to understand and accept.

Looking at the statistics, in a typical year we now have about 2,400,000 marriages and about 1,200,000 divorces. The divorces effect more than 1,300,000 minor (under 18) children. It is estimated that two thirds of the people getting married are "first timers," the rest being second, third, fourth and fifth marriages because of a divorce or the death of a husband or wife.

Among the "first timers," the average age of brides was more than 21 and grooms more than 23. First time marriages that terminated in a divorce lasted almost seven years.

These statistics indicate some interesting points: (1) Our marriages are between chronologically mature adults and not youngsters; (2) there is an increasing tendency for couples to give up the effort to stay together; and (3) there are many youngsters who now life in "one parent" homes.

The concept of marriage most of us remember is of two people in love, caring for one another, and assuming a teaching and parenting responsibility for their kids. There was an understanding that people got sick, had problems, and are not always lovable, but that you assumed an obligation that was supposedly permanent, "in sickness or in health." How can you have a trusting partner with whom to share if you are not sure that partner is reliable and permanent?

Today, many of these adult and mature lovers who married find that there are many diffucult problems, and some assume that their approach is not one of sharing problems but merely working out a divorce settlement. The speed with which it is now possible to separate from and divorce someone is amazingly quick (a lawyer friend saw 28 marriages dissolved in 42 minutes).

After the divorce, both parties begin to realize, in time, that life alone is not the answer. They begin to look for another life partner, and find that the market supply is limited. It is even possible that the original life partner would be a better bet than some of the people populating what has been called "the big meat market" of multiple-timers working hard at getting married, again.

I don't have answers, but I sure recognize that the present approach of easy to enter marriages or relationships and easy to dispose of marriages or relationships is not working out well. If happiness can be gauged, I do not believe that you will find a lot of happiness among the children of our divorced or separated people, or among their formerly married parents, either.

Maybe people getting married should be counseled on what the obligations and problems are all about, just as many states require those anticipating a divorce to be counseled. Maybe those getting divorced should go through real counseling, not procedural counseling.

My concern is for the family. I still believe that it is basic to the success of our society and the true happiness of our people. I think the family is more significant than money, material things and what some people feel is success and recognition.

If we could get more of our people to think first before getting married, and to think second before "breaking up", and learning to apply the old "golden rule" about treating others like you expect to be treated, I suspect the family would be stronger and there would be fewer marriages, fewer divorces and, fewer unhappy people.

A year ago, I defined Reagonomics based upon the pre-election definitions that President Reagan and his supporters had given us. We had some major problems, and I believed that Reagonomics could solve those problems by:

(1) Having us live within our means as a nation with balanced governmental budgets giving priority to our people needs;

(2) Keeping inflation down so that our dollar would maintain its purchasing power and people would save for the future to improve our long term living standard with savings being used to build new factories, buy new equipment, maintain research and development, and create more jobs for an ever increasing populations;

(3) Encourage people to work and produce rather than hold out hands for a dole; and

(4) Maintain a defense system adequate to protect our lives and our freedom.

I was pleased to see interest rates down from the 20 per cent level to 11 per cent, and inflation going from 11 per cent to five per cent after the president took office. We were making progress toward a stronger United States with a happier and healthier environment. President Reagan was a popular leader and the people were pleased. No one wanted big spending, high inflation and high unemployment with killer interest rates, which is why President Reagan was – originally elected.

Then the president made some big mistakes, including: (1) Lowering taxes when we had a big budget deficit; (2) increasing spending when we had a big budget deficit; (3) allowing a climate of pessimism and no confidence to spread scaring everyone and contributing to the problems; and (4) pressing for ever increasing defense spending, which could bankrupt us so that there would be nothing to defend.

It is now time for the president and his team to make some changes as we move into this new year that will get us moving forward again. We need these changes because our economy is shaken, our people have lost their confidence and their spirits are depressed, and all of this is contributing to an economy in depression. The people need to know specifically what is going to be done to solve these problems that make them insecure, and that includes our business people, too.

So, Mr. President, here is my free advice for our new year, 1983, which I hope you will consider:

(1) We must work out plans to balance the budget quickly, with emphasis on cuts in defense and other non-people areas;

(2) We must modify social security so retirement occurs at 68 and the cost of living adjustment is designed to fit an older person's buying habits;

(3) Other entitlement programs must be revised to what we can afford regardless of the screams and screeches of the special interest groups;

(4) Interest rates must not be allowed out of the single digit area, because of their impact on the budget deficit, their contraction of people's ability to buy goods and services, and the deterent effect on needed growth of excessively high interest costs;

(5) Inflation must be controlled by more than just actions of the federal reserve banks using credit control and interest rates, so that if greed begins to show itself in wage and benefit and price actions, there must be enforcement of a quick wage and price control policy to stifle a problem before it gets out of hand;

(6) There should be not tax cuts that we can not afford, because all that does is defer bills until a later date, and adds an interest cost to those bills;

(7) Encourage business to stop moaning and get on with its job of hiring the unemployed, improving plant and equipment, products and services, and getting the economy going again;

(8) Have the department of agriculture work out marketing programs to assist efficient farmers in selling their products for cost plus a fair profit, knocking heads together to get all farmers involved in such an effort;

(9) Eliminate your concern over free trade, recognizing that the Japanese and the Europeans are not free traders, and free trade takes more than just one advocate . . 'let's buy USA all the way unless we get equal opportunities in other nations; and

(10) Make your program and its objectives clear to the people, so that they will support it. With more than 10 per cent unemployment, high bankruptcy levels and an agriculture in crisis, we need specifics and a timetable, not generalities.

My advice is not going to be easy to take, Mr. President, but we need action now, and unless you have better solutions that will work, I think you need to return to the Reaganomics you espoused in 1980. This present program has cost your party what could have been a long term victory, and will cost you re-election, and will continue to needlessly hurt millions of our people, if you don't act now. We have an emergency, and you must honestly be as disappointed as the rest of us with conditions today. These conditions will not change without positive action now.

That's Straight Talk!

New Uses For Birch Can Boost Economy

by Paul Dienhart and Jenny Obst
'U' M News Service

A snug room, a comfortable chair, and a fire of birch logs crackling on the hearth: a scene from the good life in the North. But if the only birch in view is in the fireplace, this scene also represents a great waste.

Research at the University of Minnesota aims to make birch the wood for that comfortable chair, and for parts of the walls and roof as well. Paper birch — those slender trees with peeling white bark — are Minnesota's second most plentiful leaf-bearing trees. When it's not going up in smoke as firewood, birch tends to be used for such products as fork-lift pallets and tongue depressors and not much else. The Minnesota department of natural resources estimates that there is an annual surplus of 40 million to 50 million board feet of usable birch wood.

Not only might new uses of birch help northern Minnesota's depressed economy, but it would also help a nation that's rich in timber yet imports 12 per cent of its wood. To satisfy a steadily increasing demand for wood, researchers are turning to poorly used trees like birch.

"This country is absolutely loving oak to death," said James Bowyer, a professor of forest products at the University of Minnesota who is studying the marketing of birch products.

Nine out of ten cabinets sold these days are made of oak, he said. "Oak is our most abundant hardwood, but quality oak is becoming somewhat scarce. The price of oak is poised to go up rather spectacularly."

A price hike in oak might help give birch an opening in the furniture market. Birch is similar to oak in characteristics like moisture stability. Oak has a more pronounced grain, stains more evenly, and is slightly — about 15 per cent — harder than birch.

"Paper birch has been hurt by its name," Bowyer said. "People assume it's a flimsy wood. You wouldn't want to build a bowling alley with it, but birch is certainly hard enough for furniture." Anyone who doubts the density of birch has only to attempt to lift a birch table.

In the past, some cabinets and chairs have been made of birch, but only of the tree's unblemished sapwood. To use birch efficiently, manufacturers need to include the darker center column of heartwood in their products. Furniture made of both sapwood and heartwood has jagged streaks of reddish brown set in a clear background. The effect is a very woody look.

Bowyer showed a birch desk, tables and hutch at the International furniture fair in Louisville, KY, this year. He found some buyers very impressed with the furniture, while others tended to want only wood without color streaks.

Two trends may make birch more popular, Bowyer said. Birch is already 10 to 25 per cent cheaper than oak, depending on the grade; if the price of oak shoots up as projected, people may be willing to take another look at birch. And Americans are buying more European-style furniture — the sort of modern, rounded-corner designs that birch is suited for.

In the past birch seemed an unlikely wood for furniture because the trees have slim trunks. It was much easier to get wide boards from mammoth oak trees. But that problem may be solved by a recently developed system in which panels are made by gluing narrow boards edge to edge. "We estimate the panels could be produced ready to ship at $1.50 to $1.60 a square foot, and oak today is selling for about $2.10," Bowyer said.

The system for producing these panels was developed in West Virginia for making use of small oak trees. It's an efficient way of making furniture because the panels can be made to the size of the furniture components; there's little waste. But before anyone can take advantage of this efficiency there has to be a market for the product.

Bowyer has completed a study — a cooperative project with the North central forest experiment station — gauging the interest of manufacturing firms in the birch panels. The department of natural resources provided estimates of the state's birch supplies and production costs.

After personally visiting executives in 70 wood product firms and sending questionnaires to 500 others, he found firms interested in birch for everything from picture frames to furniture. At least a hundred firms were definitely interest, Bowyer said. At the furniture fair in Louisville he had to turn down people who wanted exact price quotations to order boxcars of panels.

The next step is finding Minnesota manufacturers for the birch panels. "I think we may see as many as five plants across northern Minnesota," Bowyer said.

The wood products task force of the governor's council for rural development has commissioned a $35,000 feasibility study on starting a plant for birch products. The analysis by the Minneapolis firm of Experience, Inc., will be finished in March.

A plant would be most likely to succeed if it produced not only birch panels but also ready-to-use components like cabinet fronts and drawer sides, Bowyer concluded in his study. "Many drawer sides are made of particle board, but it doesn't hold up well," Bowyer said. "Birch sides would be stronger and only slightly higher in price."

Bowyer is currently studying another way to sell birch panels: in the do-it-yourself market. A Minnesota chain of home lumber centers has agreed to cooperate; they plan to sell two sizes of unfinished birch panels for people who want to build furniture or cabinets.

"Right now that market is being served by Asian hardwoods such as Philippine mahogany," Bowyer said. "Paper birch is stronger, machines better and could be much less expensive."

Walnut-Carrot Party Salad

This molded salad is as beautiful as it is delicious and ideal for company. Grated carrots tint the gelatin a beautiful shade of orange above a snowy cream cheese base. Slices of pimiento-stuffed olives add colorful flavor accents and, throughout, the salad is studded with crunchy Diamond Walnuts, toasted to keep their crispness intact. For this recipe and all your favorites, you'll want the shelled Diamond Walnuts kept nut-cracker-fresh in sparkling new packaging. And for all your holiday nutbowls and decorations, look for these superb walnuts in the shell. To toast walnuts, spread kernels in shallow pan. Bake at 350°F., stirring often, 12 to 15 minutes until golden brown.

Walnut-Carrot Party Salad

- 1 6-ounce package lemon flavor gelatin
- 3-1/2 cups hot water
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups grated carrots
- 1/2 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
- 1-1/3 cups chopped toasted Diamond Walnuts
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened

Dissolve gelatin in hot water; stir in lemon juice and salt. Chill until mixture thickens slightly. Fold in carrots, olives and walnuts; halfway fill a 6 1/2-cup mold and set mold in a bowl of ice water. Beat cream cheese well and gradually blend-in remaining gelatin mixture. Spoon over the clear layer to fill mold. Chill for several hours or overnight before unmolding. Makes about 10 servings.

Ten Million Receive Free Dairy Products

After one year of operation the special distribution of surplus dairy products has reached nearly 10 million people, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block stated recently. So far, USDA has delivered to states more than 135 million pounds of cheese and 8.2 million pounds of butter valued at $275 million.

"States and local groups have done an outstanding job of delivering the surplus dairy products nationwide," Block said. "The combined federal, state and local effort demonstrates a commendable can-do approach. By the end of December most of the cheese we released last year will be delivered or will be on its way."

Block said distribution of the surplus cheese and butter will continue through December 1983. He stressed the need for continued involvement of the private sector and volunteers in the distribution. He said as more volunteer organizations become aware of the available benefits, they will step forward and join the effort.

"Only through the support of volunteer organizations can we ensure that low income people in every community have maximum opportunity to benefit from this program," he said.

Dairy products are bought under the federal dairy price support program. Last December, when the cheese distribution program started, USDA held in uncommitted inventory a total of about 570 million pounds of cheese valued at $832 million and 206 million pounds of butter valued at $322 million. Currently, USDA is holding in uncommitted inventory about 776 million pounds of cheese valued at about $1 billion and about 368 million pounds of butter worth about $500 million.

"Despite our concerted efforts to increase utilization of dairy commodities, uncommitted inventories could increase to as much as 675 million pounds of butter and 1.1 billion pounds of cheese at the end of fiscal year 1983," Block said. "The increasing size of the inventories makes it imperative that we do all we can to use these surpluses."

Other domestic uses for surplus cheese include a variety of USDA food assistance programs, such as the national school lunch and the charitable institutions programs. In the fiscal year 1982 USDA distributed 1.6 billion pounds of donated commodities, worth over $1 billion.

Phone Co. Will Make Changes On January 1st

Northwestern Bell (NWB) will continue to provide telephone equipment and services on a one-stop basis in 1983, despite changes occuring on New Year's Day according to Al Bacon, local NWB manager.

January 1 changes result from a federal communications commission (FCC) order which redefines the way Bell operating companies may offer products and services, and opens the door for AT&T to enter into new, competitive markets through a fully separated subsidiary called American Bell.

At the heart of this order, Bacon explained, are terms which limit operating companies, such as NWB, to providing and maintaining telephone equipment only if it is already on customer premises or in the company's 1982 year-end inventory. NWB's basic job is to provide dial tone, call switching and within-the-state long distance service.

"We plan to meet most customers' demands for telephones in 1983, but we may exhaust our supply of certain styles and colors sooner than others," Bacon said. "Our ability to add to business systems will also be somewhat limited, but we intend to meet most of our customers' primary needs."

Changes occurring January 1 in customer dealings with NWB include:

(1) Rather than visiting a phonecenter to place a new order or change an existing one, customers are asked to call the residence office. Service representatives will handle all new orders, changes in orders, billing matters, rate inquiries, requests for Bell System calling cards, long distance gift certificates and telephone directories over the phone. " 'Call us first' is the basic guideline," Bacon said.

(2) Once an order is placed, customers will have the choice of picking it up at one of NWB's 30 Minnesota customer service centers, or, for an additional charge, having it mailed directly to their homes. Delivery and installation services are also available on an hourly-rate basis. Service centers in this area are at Bemidji and Detroit Lakes.

(3) Customers who forget to call the business office before visiting a service center will be able to place orders and have billing questions answered over a "courtesy phone" located at each service center.

(4) Six existing phonecenters will be transferred to American Bell as unregulated equipment sales centers and showrooms. These stores will no longer handle phone bill payments, orders for new service, or repair of telephone sets supplied by NWB.

(5) NWB will continue to provide repair service at no charge for telephone equipment it leases to customers and also for sets purchased through the company that are still under warranty. Equipment purchased from other vendors, including American Bell, can be repaired only under whatever arrangements the customer makes with the vendor.

(6) NWB has requested a waiver from the FCC that would allow them to provide new equipment to disabled customers after January. If the commission grants this waiver, the company will be permitted to purchase new equipment for customers whose needs cannot be met from the existing inventory. This will be done through the telecommunications center for disabled customers, located in downtown Minneapolis.

(7) In 1983, customers will maintain the option of having NWBs install necessary wiring within a customer's premises for a one-time hourly charge. Customers may also install the wiring themselves or hire someone else to do it (NWB customer service centers will provide "do it yourself" wiring products and instruction manuals for installation). NWB will repair all company-owned wiring at no extra charge as part of the customer's basic monthly service. All telephone wiring outside the customer building will remain the property of NWB after January and will also be repaired at no extra charge.

(8) Business customers now leasing NWB equipment may continue to do so after January. NWB will continue to provide additional new equipment to business customers as long as the company's inventory allows.

(9) NWB business marketing account executives will service business customers. NWB will continue providing these customers with telephone numbers, dial tone, white and yellow pages listings, special network services such as WATS and private lines, and access to the Bell long distance network. For service, business customers may continue to call the company's business office.

"If there is any confusion about any of these changes," Bacon said, "we urge customers to remember this simple suggestion, 'If you have a telecommunications need, call us first.' "

"The number of your service representative is listed on your bill, as well as in your directory customer guide. Representatives will advise you on what services we have available and also about other options for meeting your needs if we are unable to do so."

TRF Teams Face Key Assignments

All seven Lincoln high school and Northland community college varsity sports teams, most of them idle during the holidays, return to action this week, and four of them open the 1983 portion of their 1982-83 schedules with important league games.

Lincoln hockey team, for example, will be at East Grand Forks Tuesday for a Section 8 confrontation with East Grand Forks. It should be an interesting test for both sides. Thief River Falls, after an 0-3 start, has been playing improved hockey in reaching the .500 level at 3-3. East Grand Forks is also at .500, but the defending Section 8 champion Green Wave squad is reportedly frustrated with a 2-2-2 start. There's a long ways to go for both teams before the 1983 Section 8 tournament rolls around, but Tuesday's game could provide a good indication which direction the two rivals will take.

That same night the Lincoln girls basketball team faces its first North Half Region 8AA opponent when the always-strong Moorhead Spuds visit Thief River Falls. The Prowlers are 2-2 for the year against Class A competition. The Moorhead game will start a string of five straight Thief River Falls games against North Half Region 8AA opponents. Post-season tournament play is done on a seeding basis by the coaches, based upon the regular season results among the teams.

Friday night the Lincoln boys basketball team, 2-3, will visit Bemidji for a North Half Region 8AA assignment. Bemidji broke into the win column for the first time last week with a 61-47 victory over Park Rapids in a game that featured 46 turnovers, 27 by the Lumberjacks, who were led by a 20-point game from Govind Nadesan.

Thief River Falls' lone Class AA opponent to date has been Moorhead, with the Spuds breaking away from an 18-18 halftime tie to win 60-46. That was the only win in the Spuds' first five starts.

Thief River Falls has won three of the last four games against Bemidji on the Lumberjacks' home court.

In another important weekend assignment, the Northland hockey team hosts Hibbing in a two-game Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) series in the sports arena. Games will be played Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m.

That starts a five-game homestand for the Northmen, who are 1-1 in league play after splitting a pair of one-goal decisions against Rainy River in International Falls to start the year. University of Minnesota-Crookston will be in Thief River Falls for a Wed., Jan. 12, game and Mesabi visits here for a Jan. 14-15 series. Northland will have to do well during that homestand to be a contender in the six-team MCCC standings where the top four finishers earn post-season state tournament berths.

Elsewhere this week, the Northland women's basketball team will play an alumni game Friday and host the Grand Forks Air Force Base Saturday; Northland men's basketball team entertains the Bemidji State University junior varsity Saturday; and the Lincoln swimming team will be at Fargo South Saturday.

Miscellaneous

+Head coach Duane Earnest of the Detroit Lakes high school hockey team felt his team "took at least two steps backwards" last Monday in a 5-1 loss to Fargo Shanley. "We should be improving with each game and we sure didn't show any improvement against Shanley," Earnest told the Detroit Lakes Tribune. "They play a physical game and we just couldn't take it." Detroit Lakes suffered a 12-3 drubbing at the hands of Roseau three days later to fall to 2-5 for the year.

+Marshall County Central high school basketball team, 2-2 for the year, will host a strong East Grand Forks squad Friday to reopen its 1982-83 schedule. The Nordics visit Thief River Falls Tues., Jan. 18, with the Prowlers going to East Grand Forks three days later.

+Key North Border Conference girls high school basketball game matching unbeaten rivals Marshall County Central and Middle River is still over a week away — Thurs., Jan. 13, at Middle River. Both are 5-0 right now, with the Nordics visiting Grygla and hosting Roseau before the Middle River encounter, while the Skippers play Roseau and Badger at home this week before facing Marshall County Central.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

POINT-BLANK SHOT by Thief River Falls' Grant Larson (right) was smothered in the East Grand Forks goal crease, preventing a rebound shot by Mitch Wilebski during Wednesday's Pee-Wee A hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A squad, locked in a 2-2 tie after two periods, tied the game 3-3 with about three minutes remaining in the third period to force a five-minute, sudden-death overtime, but East Grand Forks won it 4-3 on a final second shot.

USING HIS SHOULDER to stop the puck, Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A goalie Mike Anderson made the save on this Roseau power play shot during the first period of Thursday's hockey game played in the sports arena. Thief River Falls defenseman Scott Novak was there to help clear the rebound, with Steve Fellman looking on. Thief River Falls rallied from a 3-0 third period deficit to beat Roseau 4-3 in overtime, scoring three times in the final 3:36 of regulation time, including two goals after Anderson was pulled from the game in favor of an extra attacker in the final two minutes.

SPOTTING A PAIR of Thief River Falls teammates in front of the net, Jim Breiland passed the puck into scoring position during the second period of Thursday's Bantam A hockey game against Roseau in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Awaiting the pass were Steve Fellman (left) and Troy Hanestad. Thief River Falls won the game 4-3 in overtime.

COACH OF THE Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A hockey team, Rory Anderson, kept an eye on the play during Thursday's game against Roseau in the sports arena. Trailing 3-0 in the third period, Thief River Falls rallied to tie it in the final seconds of regulation time, then won it 4-3 midway through an eight-minute overtime period.

Busy Sports Schedules Await TRF Teams, Fans

Coming off a two-week holiday break that has idled most Thief River Falls athletic teams, the local sports schedule will be in full swing the next two months.

Seven Thief River Falls varsity teams — Lincoln high school boys basketball, girls basketball, hockey and swimming, plus Northland community college men's basketball, women's basketball and hockey — will be playing 91 regular season games between January 4 and March 4.

It'll be almost an even split, with 47 home games and 44 on the road during that busy two-month span that will actually feature those 91 games on just 37 playing dates. Fifty-one of those events will be played during January, with another 40 scheduled in February and one more in the first week of March.

In January, the Northland hockey team will be playing 11 games — eight at home and three on the road; Lincoln hockey team will play eight games — four at home and four on the road; Northland women's basketball team will play eight games — four at home and four on the road; Northland men's basketball team will play seven games — three at home and four on the road; Lincoln boys basketball team will play six games — three at home and three on the road; Lincoln girls basketball team will play six games — four at home and two on the road; and the Lincoln swimming team will have five meets — two at home and three on the road.

In February, the Lincoln boys basketball team will play seven games — four at home and three on the road; Lincoln hockey team will play six games — three at home and three on the road; Northland basketball team will play five games — two at home and three on the road; Northland women's basketball team will play five games — three at home and two on the road; Northland hockey team will play five games — two at home and three on the road; Lincoln girls basketball team will play six games — two at home and four on the road; and the Lincoln swim team will have five meets — two at home and three on the road.

Lone regular season game in March will be a Lincoln boys basketball game — at home.

Those are just the regular season games. Beginning in late February and early March, post-season tournament competition will headline the local sports scene.

Then add the schedules for junior varsity and freshmen teams at Lincoln, plus schedules for the five Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) traveling teams — VFW Bantam A, Eagles Pee-Wee A, VFW Bantam B, Merchants Pee-Wee B and Pee-Wee C — along with Thief River Falls city league volleyball, basketball and hockey and it all adds up to a very busy winter sports schedule here.

A look at the regular season January-February-March schedules for Lincoln and Northland varsity teams:

Section 8 Hockey Action To Resume

Section 8 high school hockey action picks up this week, including a game Tuesday matching a pair of unbeaten teams in sectional play — Crookston (3-0) at Bemidji (4-0).

Two other unbeaten Section 8 teams also face stiff tests Tuesday as Indus (3-0) visits Lake of the Woods (4-1) while East Grand Forks (2-0) hosts Thief River Falls (1-2).

Bemidji's Don Smith, who has had three four-goal games and a hat trick performance in seven starts, leads the Section 8 scoring charts with 19 goals, 5 assists and 24 points. Jeff Solheim of Lake of the Woods is a close second with eight goals, 15 assists and 23 points in eight games. Thief River Falls' Tim Bergland, who has five goals and seven assists during a current three-game Thief River Falls winning streak, has moved among the scoring leaders with 10 goals, 7 assists and 17 points in six games.

Mike Sauer of Bemidji tops the goalie figures with a 1.7 goals-against average and a .93 save percentage in seven games.

Section 8 publicist Frank Fee of Crookston rates Bemidji as the current No. 1 team in Section 8 and Lake of the Woods No. 2, with Roseau, Thief River Falls, Crookston and Fergus Falls sharing the No. 3 spot.

Fee also ranks Smith as the No. 1 player in Section 8, but says pro scouts seem to be most interested in Mark Nordling of Hallock, Chad Johnson of Roseau, John Bjorkman of Warroad and Bob Caulfield of Detroit Lakes.

Warroad Lakers To Host U.S. Nationals

Warroad Lakers, members of the Central Amateur Senior Hockey (CASH) League, will host the United States National hockey team Fri., Jan. 14, in an 8 p.m. exhibition game at the Gardens in Warroad.

Tickets, priced at $5 for adults, are available at various outlets in Warroad.

In games through Dec. 28, the Lakers were fourth in the five-team Central Amateur Senior Hockey (CASH) League standings with a 6-9 won-lost record for 12 points. Thunder Bay is the current league leader with a 10-3 mark for 20 points.

Lou Vario, 37, is serving as coach of the U.S. Nationals, who will complete in the 1983 International Ice Hockey Federation World Championship this March in Japan.

Vairo's credentials on both national and international coaching levels are impressive. He has been the coaching program director for the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States since 1978, and has headed the last four United States National Junior teams.

Vairo, 37, also served as tactical advisor to the 1980 Olympic hockey team and was an advance scout for Team USA during the Canada Cup in 1981.

Prior to his appointment with the AHAUS and working with U.S. international teams, Vairo was a successful Junior A coach for three seasons in Austin, MN. His clubs won two United States Hockey League titles and captured a national championship in 1975 under his tenure.

Not since 1959 has the United States prepared so ambitiously for a World Championship as this season. But, the reasoning is logical, say officials.

Neal Broten Is Candidate For All-Star Game

Ask Lou Nanne which North Stars have a realistic chance for selection to play in the National Hockey League All-Star game and the Minnesota general manager can name a half dozen in the blink of an eye, reports Dick Dillman, North Stars' hockey information director.

"Neal Broten, Dino Ciccarelli and Tom McCarthy for sure," said Nanne. "Add Steve Payne at forward. Gordie Roberts and Craig Hartsburg on defense. That's not to say that there aren't others who deserve it, but I'd say that those six have the best chance to make the team."

The line of Broten, Ciccarelli and McCarthy has emerged as one of the NHL's finest attacking combinations. The line has combined for 83 points in a recent 18-game span, an average of 4.6 points per game, on 36 goals and 47 assists. Roseau native Broten scored 33 of those points on 15 goals and 18 assists.

Payne, meanwhile, has surpassed the 20-goal plateau for the fifth time in his five years as a professional. The muscular left winger scored 21 goals in the team's first 37 games and has an excellent chance to exceed his career best of 42 goals.

Roberts and Hartsburg were two of the miracle workers on the ice in a recent Sunday game (Curt Giles was the other) when Minnesota played a good share of the third period in Winnipeg with three defensemen. Roberts, who won the team's most-improved player award last year, is making a bid for an unprecedented second straight trophy. Among the club's plus-minus leaders all season (he is a plus-8 at this point), he has been the foundation of Minnesota's defense. Hartsburg, the team's captain, leads the club's defensemen in points and ranks as one of the NHL's most formidable attacking defensemen.

Hartsburg, Ciccarelli and Payne have played in previous All-Star games. The other three have not been chosen before.

Oklee-Plummer Wrestlers Will Take On Roseau

Oklee-Plummer cooperative high school wrestling team, unbeaten in three dual meet starts, resumes its 1982-83 season following a holiday break Thursday at Roseau.

The Mustangs have beaten Warren, East Grand Forks and Waubun in dual meet competition.

Ducks Unlimited Receives Large Money Donation

Mallard, black duck and teal are among the numerous species of North American waterfowl that will benefit from the talented brush of renowned wildlife artist, John A. Ruthven, whose recent $106,000 donation to Ducks Unlimited, Inc., will be translated into life-giving wetland habitat by the international conservation organization.

A native Ohioan residing in Georgetown, Ruthven designed Ohio's first duck stamp in 1982 and was elected as Ducks Unlimited's first artist of the year in 1972. "I've painted wildlife most of my life," Ruthven said during the check presentation at DU's national headquarters, "and I'm delighted to be able to contribute to an organization that is so strongly dedicated to securing a future for this continent's waterfowl."

Ruthven's $106,000 donation will be used to develop and manage the 415-acre Skinner Marsh project and the 67-acre Glen Marsh in Ontario, Canada. Both projects will provide ample breeding room for many of the ducks and geese that migrate across Ohio skies each spring and fall.

"We are extremely pleased," said Dale Whitesell, DU's executive vice president, "that John has honored Ducks Unlimited with this generous gift. Were others to follow John Ruthven's lead, our job of providing suitable wetland habitat for North America's waterfowl would be a lot easier."

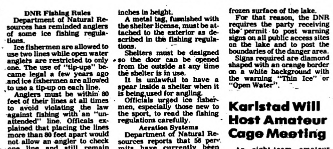
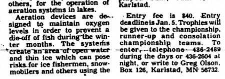
WATCHED CLOSELY BY a Roseau defender, Thief River Falls' Al Erickson brought the puck around the net during the second period of Thursday's Bantam A hockey game played in the sports arena. Erickson scored on a controversial game-tying goal with just eight seconds remaining in regulation time on an assist from Billy Dicken, then scored the game-winning goal on an assist from Scott Novak with about three minutes gone in an eight-minute, sudden-death overtime period to give Thief River Falls a come-from-behind 4-3 win. Thief River Falls trailed 3-0 until Troy Hanestad scored from Novak with 3:36 left. Jim Breiland scored from Bob Geatz with 1:05 remaining to make it 3-2 and Erickson tied it to force overtime.



MEMBERS OF THE Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team listened as coach Tim Engelstad gave instructions Wednesday during a game against East Grand Forks in the sports arena. Thief River Falls dropped a 4-3 overtime decision.



DNR NEWS

DNR Fishing Rules

Department of Natural Resources has reminded anglers of some ice fishing regulations.

Ice fishermen are allowed to use two lines while open water anglers are restricted to only one. The use of "tip-ups" became legal a few years ago and ice fishermen are allowed to use a tip-up on each line.

Anglers must be within 80 feet of their lines at all times to avoid violating the law against fishing with an "unattended" line. Officals explained that placing the lines more than 80 feet apart would not allow an angler to check one line and still remain within the required distance of the other.

Tip-ups are devices with small flags or metal plates which tip to signal the angler that a fish is biting. No tip-up may be used which is designed to automatically hook the fish.

Fishing shelters must have the name and address of the owner plainly and legibly painted on the outside in letters and figures at least three inches in height.

A metal tag, furnished with the shelter license, must be attached to the exterior as described in the fishing regulations.

Shelters must be designed so the door can be opened from the outside at any time the shelter is in use.

It is unlawful to have a spear inside a shelter when it is being used for angling.

Officials urged ice fishermen, especially those new to the sport, to read the fishing regulations carefully.

Aeration Systems

Department of Natural Resources reports that 56 permits have currently been issued to counties, municipalities, sportsmen's groups and others, for the operation of aeration systems in lakes.

Aeration devices are designed to maintain oxygen levels in order to prevent a die-off of fish during the winter months. The systems create an area of open water and thin ice which can pose risks for ice fishermen, snowmobilers and others using the frozen surface of the lake.

For that reason, the DNR requires the party receiving the permit to post warning signs on all public access sites on the lake and to post the boundaries of the danger area.

Signs required are diamond shaped with an orange border on a white background with the warning "Thin Ice" or "Open Water".

Karlstad Will Host Amateur Cage Meeting

Cross Country Ski Event Is Set At Bemidji

"It's yours — if you want it" is the slogan of this year's 100km Minnesota Finlandia cross country ski marathon. Renowned as the nation's longest ski event, this challenging trek across northern Minnesota lakes and woods is scheduled for March 5-6 in Bemidji.

In the interest of promoting cross country skiing on a local, state and nationwide level, Bemidji area professionals and businesspersons developed the Minnesota Finlandia in 1979. Its race organization has grown considerably since then, with ever-increasing numbers of individuals and groups volunteering time and talent to continue Minn-Finn's reputation as a safe and well-organized event. Fifteen men and women currently serve on the executive board of directors, the policy-making body of the Minnesota Finlandia, and 28 "chiefs" are responsible for coordinating the efforts of over 500 volunteers in the various facets of race organization. Minn-Finn is sixth in a series of eight events in the Great American Ski Chase, a coast-to-coast circuit of races, which was also established in 1979.

Minnesota Finlandia has a sister race, the Finlandia Hiihto, which takes place in Lahti, Finland, with approximately 7,000 skiers poling, kicking and gliding together at the start of the race.

Seven-hundred skiers are expected at the Minn-Finn starting line on Day 1, just yards away from Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox, the second most photographed statues in the U.S. Top international and national competitive racers will venture 50km north to the Buena Vista Ski Area, along with many other skiers who have committed themselves to the pride of accomplishment and physical fitness. On Day 2, skiers will begin at Buena Vista, skiing south back to Bemidji.

Statistics of the past four years indicate that 98 per cent of the Minn-Finn skiers finish, a figure that race director Kathy Rauch declares very encouraging to individuals who have trained properly beforehand, and who are prepared to pace themselves both days. Rauch's advice to the prospective skier: "Don't concern yourself with not finishing. Our statistics show that if you can ski 50km one day, you can ski 50km the next (day). Invariably, in fact, a skier's time will be the same, if not faster than, his or her time on Day 1."

A shorter event which is also challenging, but not as enduring, is the 27km Bemidjithon, held on Day 1 of the Minn-Finn. Numerous men's and women's age classifications appear in both events, with minimum age requirements, as well. Minn-Finn skiers must be 18 by December 31, 1982; Bemidjithon skiers must be 13 by December 31, 1982.

Several days prior to, and including, the Minnesota Finlandia have been declared "Finlandia Week" in Bemidji. A Finnish art exhibit, parade and fireworks are among the activities planned. Skiers and their families and friends are encouraged to come early and take part in the festivities, and ski the two portions of the course that are open and groomed season-long for public skiing.

pionship in Finland last April, Team USA was relegated to B Pool competition for the first time since 1974. It also meant the United States would have to place among the top four teams at the B Pool championship in 1983 to qualify for the 1984 Winter Olympic Games, staged in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia next February.

One interesting development occured since last April, however, as the IIHF congress granted Team USA an automatic berth into the 1984 Winter Games as defending gold medalists. That motion relieves some of the pressure put on Team USA in 1983. But, the primary goal of this team remains to return the United States to the A Pool in world competition, which would be accomplished by winning the B Pool championship.

In tackling this objective, the United States has gathered the finest hockey talent available and will bring this group to Colorado Springs in late November for training excercises. The team will then embark on a three-month, 37-game schedule consisting of games against the best international professional and amateur competition available in Japan, North America and Europe. All this will lead the United States into the B Pool Championship in Tokyo during late March.

Five former Olympians are among the ranks of those training at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs. They include Buzz Schneider, who played on both the 1976 and 1980 Olympic hockey teams, Steve Jensen, a veteran of the 1976 Olympic squad, and Jim Craig, Phil Verchota and Mark Wells, all members of the 1980 gold medal team.

Over half of Team USA has competed in at least one National Sports Festival since 1978 while every player has participated in an NCAA Division I hockey program. The roster includes players that have accumulated over 20 years of professional hockey experience, and over 30 years of international hockey experience. The average player age on Team USA in 1983 is 24.

Team USA roster includes goalies Dave Laurion, Internation Falls (Notre Dame '82); Jim Craig, North Easton, MA (Boston U '79); and Paul Ostby, Elk River, MN (Minnesota '82); defensemen Ron Griffin, Detroit, MI (Wisconsin '80); Paul Brandrup, Rochester, MN (Michigan '82); Mike Knoke, Minneapolis, MN (Minnesota '81); Mark Paalkovich, Bloomington (Michigan Tech '82); Don Waddell, Detroit, MI (Northern Michigan '80); and John Schmidt, St. Cloud, MN (Notre Dame '82).

Forwards on the team include Steve Jensen, Plymouth, MN (Michigan Tech '75); Jim Armstrong, Ithaca, NY (Clarkston '81); Dave Delich, Eveleth, MN (Colorado College '79); Peter Johnson, Madison, WI (Wisconsin '82); Scott Carlston, Bloomington, MN (Duluth '80); Buzz Schneider, Babbitt, MN (Minnesota '75); Dan Lempe, Grand Rapids, MN (Duluth '80); Mark Wells, St. Clair Shores, MI (Bowling Green '79); Jeff Logan, Detroit, MI (Notre Dame '82); Phil Verchota, Duluth, MN (Minnesota '79); Gary Sampson, International Falls, MN (Boston College '82); and Todd Johnson, Wayland, MA (Boston U '81).

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

THE LATEST CRAZE among expert anglers is the skill called flippin'. Well, most of the younger fishermen think it's new but my daddy and grandaddy did it and it was so common they didn't call it anything, just a part of a day's fishing.

I have done it for years and call it pitchin' because that's what I do with a spinning rod. I just reel in the lure and make an underhand pitch to the target, sort of like pitchin' pennies at a taw line.

Flippin' is different. Here you use a spinning rod and when you reel in the lure you let it hang down at least the length of your rod. You reach up and grab the line just below the first guide on your rod, pull it down to your side, flip the lure toward the target and let go of the line.

Either flippin' or pitchin' is worth practicing until you can drop a lure right on a dinner-plate-size spot. Once you master accuracy then you can drop lures into small holes in brush piles, lily pads, fallen timber, etc. Some days it spells the difference between fish and no fish.

BRER TOM'S CLOSING TIP: When flippin' or pitchin' a compact single-hook lure like a Jelly Waggler, Cajun Crawdad, or Swimmin' Grub is easier to cast and will hang less than treble-hook lures. Just keep one pitchin' and wigglin' and watch your catchin' increase.

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

DEAR TOM MANN: I read a lot of stuff about most other fish but I need crappie tips. Got any?—Minner Dunker

HI DUNKER: Well, you got the right name because the number one crappie catcher is a lively minnow. And my next choice is a white Jelly Grub, 1/32nd ounce, chunked near a brush pile and twitched back in just over bottom.

DADGUMMIT TOM: I'm mad as an ol' wet settin' hen. My expensive tackle box is useless because plastic worms gunked it up so badly. How can I prevent this happening again?—Mad Wormer

HELLO MAD: Before you buy another tackle box, read the data with it to make sure it is impervious to plastic worms, like the ones Plano makes. Also, keep your soft plastics, like worms, away from hard plastics, like plugs. They don't get along together.

DEAR TOM: Now that it's winter they have dropped our lake level again. Where have all the bass gone?—Joe Entag

HI JOE: If you were catching bass at, say, the 18-foot level before the drop, and the water temperature hasn't changed, look for them at the same depth off the same points, only farther out.

HOWDY TOM: Where can I get a map showing the bottom contours of my pet impoundment?—Happy Looker

HOWDY HAPPY: Chances are your city engineer can provide one, or if it is a Corps of Engineers lake, see the superintendent.

Ducks Unlimited Group Notes Varied Activities

Heavy rains that sent rivers over their banks and residents of low-lying areas from their homes throughout much of the country also carried some blessed and long-awaited relief to the drought ravaged prairies of Canada.

"It has been a good rain where southern Manitoba and southern Alberta are concerned," says Sandy Macaulay, a biologist who monitors wetland conditions for Ducks Unlimited (DU), the world's largest waterfowl conservation organization.

Water is now locked safely under a frost — and will get a covering of snow — where it will stay until the spring makes it available for the waterfowl nesting season in the prairies in the North Central U.S. and south-central Canada.

Prairies, where glacially formed potholes serve as breeding grounds for the vast majority of North America's waterfowl, act as a sponge. With heavy fall rains the sponge will be full (biologists call this carryover water) come spring. That's when the sponge will allow the snowmelt to run off and fill the potholes. When the sponge remains dry throughout the winter, however, it simply soaks up the snowmelt, allowing little runoff for the potholes and basins. Ducks Unlimited biologists have seen too many springs when the sponge was bone dry.

In other DU-related news, a federal judge in Washington, D.C., has decreed that the welfare of the black duck is much too important to trust its management to anyone but wildlife professionals.

Federal Judge Joyce Hens Green, in a ruling handed down in late November, said that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is doing its job of managing black duck populations just fine, thank you, and needs no help from the Humane Society or the Maine Audubon Society.

Fish and Wildlife Service was sued by the Humane Society and the Maine Audubon Society who claimed the decline of the black duck population, based on crucial counts from the midwinter inventories, was so severe that it required a halt of the hunting season.

Fish and Wildlife Service, with support from The Wildlife Legislative Fund of America and the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, successfully fought the challenge. Attorneys for the defendants indicated that the Fish and Wildlife Service utilizes techniques other than just the midwinter inventory in deriving its population estimates. It was further shown that the Fish and Wildlife Service does have a long range plan for the management of black duck that includes hunting regulations.

Their winning argument was based on the premise that outside interference in the management plan would, at this point, endanger any meaningful results in the study.

"The decline in the population of the black duck is old news," Green ruled, "and the reasons for the decline are still subject to debate. The size of the record created and the extent of study performed by the (Fish and Wildlife) Service demonstrates the careful consideration afforded to the relevant matters by the agency."

Arguments of the Humane Society and the Maine Aubudon Society "are without merit," Green ruled.

Officials also noted that sometime within the next couple of weeks the computers at DU headquarters in Chicago will grind to a halt. But it will not have anything to do with a malfunction. Rather, the computers will stop to report the 200-millionth dollar that DU has collected since its founding in 1937.

In the day of megabucks and billion dollar deficits, $200 billion does not easily impress. But consider:

+Vast majority of that money, nearly $149 million, has been raised since 1967.

+Nearly eighty per cent of the money has gone into wetlands restoration and conservation.

+Ducks Unlimited has some three-and-a-half million acres reserved — protected, if you will — for waterfowl breeding.

Pardon us while we toot our horn but "Greenwing," the Ducks Unlimited film that depicts a young man's fascination with wild ducks and a wizened man of the marsh, walked away with top prize at the recent International Film and TV Festival of New York, report DU officials.

The film was in with some pretty prestigious company, not the least of which was the PBS television series "Brideshead Revisited." It was the second award for "Greenwing" this year. The first came from the World Wildlife Film Festival.

Exercise Valuable For All Elderly

by Judith Raunig-Graham
'U' M News Service

Common thinking among senior citizens says that after age 65, or even 55, exercise goes out the window.

But a University of Minnesota professor believes that exercise for the elderly is just as important as it is for younger people and he recommends that they make it part of their routine.

"There's no doubt that our lifestyle becomes more sedentary as we age," said Robert Serfass, director of the human performance laboratory in the school of physical education, recreation and school health education. "But if the elderly don't have major clinical problems, they respond to exercise like younger people."

Serfass said the principles involved in incorporating exercise into one's life are nearly the same for the elderly as they are for younger exercisers. How much exercise and what types one decides to take up depend on health and physical fitness, regardless of age. The elderly, especially, should check with their physicians to make sure they don't have hypertension or other problems that would place them at risk if they exercise.

Ideally, Serfass would like to see all potential exercisers past age 35 take a graded exercise test. Hospitals, universities and YMCAs often administer them.

The tests monitor an electrocardiogram while the person exercises on a treadmill or a bicycle and problems can show up at low, moderate or high levels of exercise.

However, since the tests tend to be expensive — generally between $75 and $150 — Serfass recommends that elderly exercisers spend their money on a trip to the doctor and on a good pair of walking shoes. Expensive exercise equipment is unnecessary, he added.

Most exercise programs geared toward the elderly are based on flexibility and are relatively conservative, Serfass said. The programs are appropriate, he said, but don't optimize exercise for those who can handle it.

"I have seen some women in their 80s in this lab who are as physically fit as some 18- to 20-year-old college women," Serfass said, "Staying active, even socially, throughout one's life helps."

Walking, cycling, jogging, swimming and cross-country skiing are all forms of exercise that the elderly can handle, Serfass said, but the one best-suited to the elderly, in terms of safety, is walking. "Walking can be very effective in weight control and for cardiovascular fitness," Serfass commented, "and it also is convenient to inject into the lifestyle."

How fast one walks depends on the individual, but a good target is three and one-half to four miles an hour for 60 minutes four or five days a week. This would burn approximately 300 to 400 calories a session and would go a long way in balancing caloric intake for people who have a tendency toward creeping obesity, Serfass said.

No matter what form of exercise the elderly embark on, they should work into it slowly, Serfass emphasized, especially if they have been leading sedentary lives. Ten minutes of walking at a moderate pace may be enough to start.

"If you exercise the right way you should be able to carry on a conversation with the person next to you at the same time," Serfass reported, "If the exercise is painful, you're going at it too hard. If you try to undo 30 years of sedentary life in two weeks you are going to get sore and stiff."

Serfass, who co-edited "Exercise and Aging: The Scientific Basis" with Professor Everett L. Smith of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, said the keys to an exercise program are the intensity, duration and frequency of the exercise. A good measure of intensity is the level one's heart rate attains related to one's maximal heart rate. The maximal heart rate means the highest heart rate attained during the most vigorous exercise.

A general estimate of the maximal heart rate can be determined by taking 220 beats a minute minus one's age. So physically fit 70-year-olds would try to reach about 70 per cent of their maximal heart rate, which may be as low as 105 to 110 beats a minute during exercise.

However, Serfass emphasized that exercise should be as individualized as possible, particularly as one ages. The person who has exercised regularly can and probably should continue such activity, but someone who has been sedentary should try to increase the amount of ordinary daily exercise, such as gardening or climbing the stairs. Then move vigorous forms of exercise can be incorporated into the lifestyle.

"Exercise is like dieting," Serfass said. 'It doesn't work unless you change your behavior. You have to get it into your everyday lifestyle and understand the graduated nature of exercise. Very short bouts of intense exercise are not good. Exercise must not compound any problems you have."

Serfass's interest in exercise for the elderly stems from his days as a graduate student when he worked in an institution for the elderly. There he witnessed "people who walked in on two legs, who, without exercise, very quickly deteriorated into people who had to depend on others for things they previously had done for themselves." That convinced him of the importance of exercise. If he had his way, states would require all senior citizen homes to provide an exercise program for their residents.

There is also some evidence, Serfass said, that indicates that regular exercise can retard bone mineral loss or, in some cases, even restore it — a finding that could be especially relevant to those who suffer osteoporosis.

One of the reasons few elderly people exercise, Serfass believes, is because society sets low expectations for them and the elderly themselves don't believe they have the capacity for much activity. The elderly are often put in situations where they can't exercise.

But, in cultures where the elderly are respected, they also are expected to participate actively in society, he concluded.

Lifestyles and Heartburn

Whether you are a working mother hurrying from the office to pick up the kids at the day-care center, an executive racing to catch the next flight home, or a parent late for your eight-year-old's soccer game, you are probably suffering from some form of stress.

According to Dr. Donald O. Castell, director of the Section of Gastroenterology and a professor of medicine at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N.C., many Americans have lifestyles that create stress, which may result in heartburn.

Heartburn is the backup of digesting food into the esophagus. It's caused by a variety of factors, says Dr. Castell, and stress is believed to be one of them because it produces acid in the stomach.

What do you do when you suffer from heartburn? One solution is to take an antacid —such as Gaviscon®, made by Marion Laboratories — that soothes the lining of the esophagus, preventing the stomach acid from contacting the delicate tissues of the esophagus. Gaviscon protects the esophagus and contains an antacid. It has the advantage of working while you are lying down... often the time of greatest discomfort.

Although it is difficult to alter people's lifestyles, Dr. Castell offers several suggestions for relieving the symptoms of heartburn:

—Sleep with the head of your bed raised about six inches (preferably by placing blocks under the legs at the head of the bed.)

—Stop or cut down on smoking.

—Reduce if you're overweight.

—Avoid beverages that may stimulate acid secretion in the stomach, such as coffee and alcohol.

Judges Comment About Divorce Case Questions

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Four county court judges in northwestern Minnesota counties don't believe there is discrimination practiced in divorce cases here — an unanimous decision among those judges contacted by the Times and questioned on the issue. And all agree that they see no harm in formation of an organization which is intended to help the courts reach just and equitable decisions.

Northwest Men's Rights association is planning an organizational meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Pennington county law enforcement center meeting room. The meeting is open to anyone interested, male or female, according to organizers of the association.

"The judges welcome any legitimate organization whose object it is to assist the parties, the children, the attorneys and the courts in reaching fair and just decisions in custody matters where the best interests of the children are at stake," states Larry Jorgenson, judge of Pennington and Marshall county courts, with offices in Warren.

Also contacted and responding to questions were Judge J. A. Harren of Red Lake Falls (who also serves the Pennington county court), Judge John Roue of Fosston (with offices in Crookston) and Judge Donald Shanahan of Roseau. All have heard divorce cases in Pennington county, either on an initial basis or in later proceedings.

All of the judges appeared to respond freely to questions but emphasized that their comments must be considered general in nature since they could not discuss specific cases.

To a man, all four judges were quick to point out that individual cases must be tried on their own merit, that judges are bound by law and the rules of evidence, that by far the majority of divorce cases are not contested, that awarding of custody is without

Set Fires Among 82 Calls In 1982

Six building fires set by unknown persons were among 82 fire calls answered by the Thief River Falls fire department during 1982, according to Duane Noel, fire chief.

The 82 calls represented a reduction from 85 calls in 1981 and 121 calls in 1980, chief Noel said. In addition to Thief River Falls responses, the department answered 10 calls in North township, 10 in Rocksbury, three in Norden and one each in Smiley and Silverton.

Number of chimney fires — considered to be an increasing threat due to the increasing number of people using wood for heat — declined to nine in 1982 from 11 in 1981.

There were nine car fires during the year and two mobile home fires, one of which completely destroyed the mobile home. Also listed by the department were three garage fires, two grain dryer blazes, seven grass fires, two tractor fires, three car accidents in which fire was a threat and eight false alarms. Among the calls answered were 29 in which there was no damage.

Home fires totaled 15 for the year, Noel said, but most of these were for over-heated stoves, electric motors, faulty appliances or other situations where fire threats were averted. Only two of the calls were for fires where damage to homes was extensive.

Sparby, Stumpf In Area, Friday

State Representative Wallace Sparby and Senator LeRoy Stumpf will be available to meet with citizens at several locations in the area on Friday, January 7. PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD of commissioners reorganized for the coming year at its meeting Tuesday in the county courthouse. Roger Hoffman, Goodridge, was elected chairman with Glenn Tasa of Trail elected vice chairman. Pictured (left to right) are, front row, Tasa, Hoffman and Kenneth Olson, county auditor; back row, Don Grabanski, Albert Koop and Otto Stenberg, all county commissioners, and David Olin, county attorney.

Hoffman New Chairman Of Pennington Co. Board

First district commissioner Roger Hoffman of Goodridge was elected chairman of the Pennington county board of commissioners to succeed Albert Koop at the reorganizational meeting of the board Tuesday in the courthouse in Thief River Falls. Glenn Tasa, fifth district commissioner, was elected vice chairman.

Other members of the board include Donald Grabanski, second district; Albert Koop, third district; and Otto Stenberg, fourth district.

Deferring discussion of county salaries to a meeting scheduled for January 11, the board acted primarily on year-opening routine matters on Tuesday.

Decision was made to advertise for a full-time county engineer to succeed Wes Gjovik who has served Pennington and Red Lake counties jointly for the past year. At a meeting of Red Lake and Pennington commissioners last week it was determined that the experiment in sharing engineer services was a good effort but the work load was too great for one individual.

The board also adopted an addendum to the mental health contract with Northwestern hospital, providing within the $75,000 contract that $55,560 be fixed and that $19,440 be on a fee for service basis with consultation to be on a fee for service.

Date for regular meetings of the board was set for the second and last Tuesdays of the month, but the second January meeting date was changed to January 11 due to a state association convention at the end of the month. Commissioners Tasa and Koop were designated Pennington county representatives in the state association.

Chairman Hoffman and commissioner Koop were appointed to serve on the county extension committee and the county board was named to serve in its entirety on the county welfare board. The entire board will also serve as the road, bridge and culvert committee.

Commissioner Donald Grabanski was appointed to the law library committee and Dr. F. W. Hazard was named county livestock inspector for 1983 at a salary of $201 per month.

It was approved that the board serve as a committee of the whole on the inter-governmental affairs committee and be authorized such expenses as necessary, and that the county would pay per-diem expenses of commissioners attending meetings in behalf of the county for other than regularly appointed committee work, upon presentation of claims and approval by the board.

Thief River Falls Times was again designated the official newspaper for publication of county legal notices. Commissioners Grabanski and Stenberg were named along with auditor Kenneth Olson to the building and maintenance committee to oversee the courthouse. Sheriff Charles Richards was added to handle matters pertaining to the law enforcement center and Mrs. Sherryll Irvine was named to handle matters pertaining to Oakland Park home.

Ambulance contract with Northwestern hospital was reaffirmed at a budgeted subsidy from the county of $12,132 for the year 1983. Donald L. Olson and commissioner Stenberg were named to represent the county on the Thief River Falls airport commission, and Koop will represent the county on the airport zoning commission.

Delegates authorized for the convention of the Association of Minnesota counties included the commissioners, engineer, treasurer, auditor and others authorized to attend as non-voting members.

Tasa was named to represent the county on the OEO board at Oklee, Sheriff Richards on the board of the Minnesota juvenile training center with offices in Bemidji, Koop and K. E. Gigstad on the Headwaters R.C. and D. board, Darlene Melvie on the Quin-county health advisory board, Grabanski on the transportation committee of the Northwest regional development commission and

In the six years it has been in existence, the 17-piece band has earned a reputation as a crowd pleaser, specializing in the "big band" sound of the swing era, but providing a wide variety of music ranging from jazz to the disco beat. Judges Give Comments On Divorce Issues doubt the most difficult part of a divorce proceedings and that protection of the best interests of the children is the main obligation of the court.

Judge J.A. Harren, who has about 30 years in marriage dissolution matters — nearly equally divided between practicing attorney and judge — pointed out that custody is disputed in only a small number of cases. When it is, the question of custody is the most emotional issue in a divorce.

"I usually attempt to do some counseling in a divorce proceeding," Judge Harren said. "I have the best interests of the child to look at. If both parents love the child, the child is the winner when custody is awarded."

Judge Harren also noted that lawyers control the evidence presented in divorce cases. The skill of the lawyer and the ability of witnesses all contribute to the final decision. Judges may consider only the evidence entered in the case when they make their decisions. And under the existing so-called "no fault" divorce law in Minnesota, they may not consider conduct of either parent except as it may affect the welfare of the child.

"I believe the present system is better than the old system from the standpoint of both the couple and the children," Judge Harren said. "There is less bitterness and lasting resentment in most cases now and I don't believe it has contributed to an increase in divorces by making it easier to get one."

One of the complaints of men's rights advocates has been the seemingly routine awarding of custody of children — especially young children — to the mother in a divorce proceeding. Area judges maintain such is not the case, and that women receive custody in most cases because such custody has been stipulated before the case reaches the court.

"Historically in our culture, mothers have been the preferred custodians of younger children for a long time," states Judge John Roue. "It probably stems from a cultural belief that the mother's influence is more important and that the father has historically been the bread-winner. That is changing as more women work outside the home.

"The award of custody to the mother is not a determination that the father is unfit," Judge Roue emphasizes. "Some of them probably take it that way, but that's not it at all. In those cases where it is, the father is denied visitation rights or his rights are even terminated."

While a Times article last week indicated that non-custodial parents are denied access to information from schools and medical facilities about their children, Judge Roue disagreed with that statement. Non-custodial parents have the right to get information from schools and doctors as long as their parental rights have not been terminated, he said.

Judge Roue also pointed out that men are receiving custody more often than they have in the past and that legislation has permitted judges to award joint legal custody with physical custody vested in one parent. Both parents thus have a say in the education and up-bringing of the children, but there has to be the ability of the parents to cooperate and get along, the judge added.

But he emphasized that "children still have to know where home is" and that stability is important to the young child. "The trend has been to increase the visitation and contact with the non-custodial parent far beyond what it has been," Judge Roue said, "but we still don't want to over-do it so that the child doesn't know where home is." He indicated that he didn't favor non-custodial parents having their children with them for prolonged periods such as the summer or a substantial part of the school year.

Judge Roue said that in 90 per cent of the cases visitation is simply ordered to be "reasonable" and that the details are left up to the parties to work out among themselves. If there are any problems, then either party can come back and ask the court to structure the visitation rights.

All of the judges cited the apparent willingness of some parents to use the children and their custody as "weapons" or "pawns" in attempts to control or even punish the other party. One judge ventured the opinion that it seems some people enjoy the hassle like it was some sort of game and will make little if any effort to be conciliatory.

While the judges maintain that in contested custody cases there is an increasing number of fathers being awarded custody, public assistance records locally don't seem to indicate much change. Of some 260 child support cases now being handled by the Pennington county social services department, none involve payments to fathers. Not all of the support cases are the result of divorces, of course, and it is recognized that men awarded custody of children may well be self-supporting and do not need public assistance. Laws and regulations in that area, however, may themselves be subject to questions of discrimination.

Judge Roue disagrees with the contention that child support is increased to compensate for lack of alimony. He says the opposite is true, because courts tend to follow child support guidelines established by the state welfare department — guidelines which he says are "onerous enough as it is."

"In many cases where we probably should award alimony, we probably don't award it because the person pays the guidelines in child support and doesn't have anything left to pay alimony with," the judge said. "Alimony — we call it maintenance — is generally awarded only when it is needed and is most often temporary." He said long-term maintenance usually goes only to those who are ill or disabled and can't work, or where the spouse has substantial income but few accumulated assets which could be divided to help provide support.

When asked about enforcement of court orders, each of the judges said he believed orders were enforced equally for men and women. Organizers of the men's rights association had complained that laws regarding payment of support are quite rigidly enforced, while court orders on distribution of property and visitation are not enforced.

Judge Donald Shanahan said he believed men and women received equal consideration and that enforcement of court orders was equitably applied. Asked if he could recall specifically a case in which a woman was penalized for disobeying a court order, he said he could not.

While judges apparently strive for uniformity in adherence to the law, it seemed in conversations that each had somewhat different viewpoints on how provisions of the law should be interpreted and judicial duties under the law should be performed. These viewpoints seemed to be firmly held, and if regularly applied in decisions could contribute to the practice referred to as "judge shopping."

"Judge shopping" involves the effort to have a contested divorce case heard and decided by the judge who is most likely to be favorable toward a particular side. Attorneys who have been involved in pleading a number of divorce cases are familiar with the area judges and their differences in opinion, or their methods or style in reaching a decision. They make an effort to have their cases heard where they can anticipate the best results.

"I don't see any particular problem with that," Judge Harren said about the "judge shopping" question. "Each party in a divorce case has the opportunity to dismiss one judge without cause. After that, dismissal can still be accomplished on a motion of prejudice. We permit jurors to be dismissed in jury cases, and juries are basically fact-finders. In divorce cases the judges are the fact-finders, and dismissal is probably properly allowed."

Where the judges don't have any sympathy for out-of-hand dismissal is as a delaying tactic by an attorney with an unprepared case. "If the attorney thinks he can buy sometime by getting rid of the judge," Judge Harren said, "I think that is improper use of the law. We will usually reschedule such cases with a new judge as soon as possible."

Judge Jorgenson was not critical of the law which permits each party to dismiss the judge without cause, but he was somewhat upset by continuous motions as one side in a contested divorce attempts to change previous decisions. "When three or four judges come to the same conclusion on these motions, we can't be all wrong," he said.

Each of the judges allowed that mistakes can be made and wrong decisions given. Sometimes cases are poorly presented and all the facts aren't known, and sometimes a judge finds out later that he should have acted differently. But the law provides procedures to have those circumstances corrected and judges have changed their orders when presented with new information.

The key here is in following the procedure. "I can't act on a phone call to my home asking me to make somebody do something," one judge said. "There has to be a motion and a presentation of facts. We expect our orders to be obeyed."

How can the formation of a men's rights group be of assistance to the courts?

"That's hard to say," one judge said. "One way might be in making more men aware that they do have rights in a divorce proceeding and what those rights are. Another would be to work through the legislature to change laws which they consider to be unjust or inequitable. In any case, they will gain much more by positive action than by criticism and complaint."

Program Tries To Prevent Child Abuse

There were an estimated 3,000 reported incidents of sexual child abuse in Minnesota during 1981, according to the Minnesota department of welfare. But the actual number of crimes was probably much higher. Child abuse is one of the most unreported criminal activities in our society.

Crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety, suggests that parents can protect their children from sexual abuse by helping them recognize their private body parts and understand their right not to be touched against their wishes.

Children should also be taught to identify positive, exploitive or confusing touches from adults. Positive touches, including holding hands or other contacts children like, are okay. But children should be told to refuse exploitive touches such as hitting or biting and confusing pinching and squeezing touches which are unwanted. Children should be helped by parents to devise answers like "I don't like to be touched that way" to fend off exploitive and confusing touches.

It should be made clear to children that it is all right to tell parents, police, teachers or other authority figures if they are touched in uncomfortable ways. The matter can then be reported to the county welfare department.

Parents can ask their children "what if" questions to help them know what to do in dangerous situations, according to crime watch. For instance a child could be asked, "What if your friend's older brother was always touching you when you did not want him to? What could you do? Who would you tell?" Children who have been taught about these situations and have devised answers are in a good position to avoid danger.

Sexual abuse should be suspected if a child complains of pain, itching and bleeding around the genital area. "Young sexually abused children may appear withdrawn and clinging, while adolescents may be hostile, promiscuous and could even run away from home," crime watch said.

Bureau of criminal apprehension, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety, is putting a special effort into the area of investigation of sexual abuse of children. This involves supporting and augmenting efforts of law enforcement agencies in the identification and apprehension of these offenders.

Minnesota communities have increased efforts in recent years to identify, understand and combat the abuse of children. This has enabled Minnesota law enforcement to begin to make noteworthy advances in the identification and apprehension of child abuse offenders.

Help for abused children is available by contacting county welfare departments or local law enforcement agencies. Law enforcement officers have authority to remove children from an abusive environment.

Tips On Quilt Care Offered By Museum

Smithsonian News Service

Customers shopping for antique quilts, one New York City store owner reports, are quick to ask how they should be cared for and cleaned.

Problem is that no two antique quilts are alike. What is best for one quilt is not automatically best for another. Some quilts should be cleaned while others are best left alone. What to do?

Smithsonian's division of textiles has published a set of instructions covering the care of antique cotton, linen and silk quilts. These detailed instructions, which discuss fabric identification, cleaning methods and storage directions, may be obtained by writing: Division of Textiles, National Museum of American History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560.

Funds Sought For J. Steidel Scholarships

Northland community college faculty association is conducting the second annual fund drive for the John Steidl memorial scholarship fund. Purpose of the fund, which was established last year in memory of long-time faculty member John Steidl, is to award scholarships to students interested in pursuing careers in the social sciences.

Intention of the faculty association is to increase the balance to a level that will earn sufficient interest to provide scholarships for years to come. Faculty will also engage in future fund-raising activities to achieve this goal. They plan to award the first scholarship within the next two years.

Anyone wishing to contribute may send checks to the John Steidl Memorial Scholarship Fund, Northland Community College, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701.

State Taking Applications For DPS Job

Applications will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. Monday, January 10, at the local Job Service office for a position with the state department of public safety as a driver evaluator.

Applications will only be accepted from individuals who indicate that they are available to accept employment on a statewide basis. Most jobs require that employees supply their own transportation to testing sites. Applicants whose driving record discloses more than two moving violations in the last three years or whose license has been revoked or suspended due to the direct fault of the applicant within the last three years may be disqualified. Candidates must have corrected vision of 20-40, and both a health history and a background investigation will be conducted by the department of public safety prior to appointment.

Written test of reading comprehension will be administered on February 12, with the top 40 scoring applicants scheduled for an assessment exercise in a simulated road test situation. Final scores will be based on skills exhibited in this exercise.

Driver evaluators may be assigned to a particular area of the state in which they would travel conducting tests or they may be assigned to a large metropolitan examining station.

Housing For Dairy Calves Is Meeting Topic

Dairymen are invited to attend a meeting on housing for dairy calves to be held Wednesday, January 12, at 1:30 p.m. in the Northwest regional library meeting room in Thief River Falls.

University of Minnesota extension engineer Donald Bates will discuss the importance of proper housing in raising healthy dairy calves. His presentation will include information on the full range of calf housing choices but will place special emphasis on remodeling or adjusting existing livestock buildings to provide a better enviroment for rearing healthy calves, according to Terry Courneya, county extension director.

Death loss and chronic sickness in calves is related more to housing and environment than any other factor, Courneya said. Respiratory problems during calfhood can have a serious permanent affect on milk production of dairy cows. The importance of calf housing cannot be overlooked in the herd management program which aims at high production levels, Courneya emphasized.

Firm Awarded Plaque For Aid To Handicapped

Contract Beverages, Inc., and its sister company Contract Recyclers, Inc., were recently named the 1982 outstanding Minnesota company by the Minnesota Association of Rehabilitation Facilities.

The 30 sheltered workshop facilities which comprise the membership in the Minnesota Association of Rehabilitation Facilities annually selects a company whom they feel has demonstrated outstanding support of handicapped Minnesotans as they attempt to become productive members of our state.

Contract Beverages was nominated by Occupational Development Center-North Country Industries which operate sheltered workshop facilities in Thief River Falls, Crookston, Bemidji and East Grand Forks. According to Chris Twomey, executive director of ODC-NCI, Contract Beverages has been instrumental in helping establish a first class beverage can recycling operation in each of the four facilities.

Besides sharing expertise in the recycling area, Contract Beverages also loaned ODC-NCI considerable equipment used in the recycling operation. "Cooperation of this type between private industries and non profit corporations such as ODC-NCI ultimately reduces the cost of rehabilitating handicapped Minnesotans," Twomey said.

"Contract Beverages and Contract Recyclers early identified the fact that handicapped people employed in sheltered workshops were capable of handling all aspects of the beverage can recycling business. Consequently, they have sought out facilities such as Occupational Development Center-North Country Industries to accomplish this recycling on a local level," Twomey added.

"Besides their strong interest in helping to provide training and employment for handicapped Minnesotans, Contract Beverages is strongly committed to the recycling of beverage cans to reduce solid waste going to landfills as well as litter along our highways. Recycling of these containers also helps to hold down the cost of consumer goods by reducing the amount of virgin material used in the production of beverage cans.

Contract Beverages is a manufacturer of soft drinks in both cans and bottles. Contract Recyclers was established in 1982 for the purpose of expanding Contract Beverage's efforts in the recycling area. Contract Recyclers not only works with the IDC-NCI, but also with the local Pepsi-Cola distributors in order to accomplish its goal of total beverage can recycling.

Bell Reports Third Party Billing Change

Northwestern Bell announced today that, beginning February 1, it no longer will complete calls billed to a third telephone from coin and coinless public phones unless the charges are accepted by the third party.

The change is necessary because fraudulent billing from coin and coinless pay telephones has continued to increase despite the company's efforts to curb it.

American Telephone & Telegraph company, recently said the total amount of such fraud nationwide was $73 million in 1981. Since the losses are taken into consideration when local Bell companies seek a rate hike, all phone customers become victims of the fraud. The Minnesota losses are estimated at a half million dollars for 1981.

Customers making a long distance call from coin or coinless pay phones and billing it to another (third) number will be asked to remain on the line while the operator rings the third number to ask for acceptance of the charges. Northwestern Bell operators have been following that procedure for about the last nine months.

If there's no one at the third number or the line is busy, the operator, during January, will complete the call after alerting the caller that, effective February 1, such calls will not be completed. Starting on that date, the caller would either have to call collect, deposit coins to pay for the call or bill it to a calling (credit) card.

The change is designed to protect customers from being charged for calls they don't make. Misbilled messages from coin and coinless pay phones have been growing at a dramatic rate. Customer dissatisfaction with the old third-number billing practice was growing as a result.

While the delay in placing the third-number calls may inconvenience some customers, eliminating fraudulent use of third-party billing will benefit all customers.

It is estimated that the economic loss resulting from pedestrian accidents is over 200 million dollars annually.

Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

From time to time during the year our residents are faced with the question of door-to-door salesman. I would like to comment on this situation and try to advise our residents of what the law states.

Thief River Falls city code contains a provision for licensing of door-to-door salesman, sometimes referred to as peddlers. The term peddler as used in City Code 6.21 means and includes door-to-door street-to-street, place-to-place, or temporary vendors of sales or services or solicitors of contributions without a fixed, determined and permanent location within Pennington county at which he transacts business, carries on an occupation, or practices a profession or activity, and includes, but is not limited to, persons commonly referred to as peddlers, solicitors, transient merchants or canvassers.

Exceptions to this regulation include any sales under court order, bona-fide auction sales, newsboys, sale at wholesale to a retail dealer in the articles sold, sale of farm or garden products by the person producing the same, provided, however, that such person shall have the burden of providing the fact that he actually produced the same, sales of admissions by local school students to school functions.

Anyone engaged in the above-described activities except for those excluded, must obtain a license from the city. This license is intended for your protection from illegal or criminal activities. Many times we receive complaints on peddlers who have used high-pressure sales tactics or deceitful gimmicks to sell their product. Chances of prosecution on these persons is very low once they have received a license and then are invited into your home for a so-called demonstration.

I would like to suggest some ideas to help you as resident and us as law-enforcers. First, do check to see if they are licensed by the city. If you are still not sure after checking credentials, give us a call to confirm it. If they do not have a license, please call us so that we can stop them until a license is received.

Second, and probably more important, do not invite them into your home until you are positive that you want to listen to their program or demonstration. Even if they have a license, it does not permit them to pressure you if you do not want to listen. Trespass laws can be used in these cases. However, once you invite the person into your home you have lessened the chance of trespass.

To invoke trespass simply tell the person or persons they are not welcome and please leave. If they do not leave, call us and follow-up with a complaint against the person or persons for trespass. They can be charged with trespass, but the property owner must notify them that they are not welcome and should leave.

Common sense is the best way to handle these situations. Do not act in any way until you are positive you want to purchase the item or program. Please keep in mind also that we are only a phone call away to assist you and answer any questions you may have.

Best wishes for the New Year.

HOT TIPS ON HEATING

A Public Service From INTERTHERM Inc.

Heating That Cold Room—Safely

No matter the age or type of construction, most homes have a cold spot or two that the central heating system just seems to ignore.

Portable electric heaters have been found by many to be the most convenient, safe and economical alternative to turning up the whole-house thermostat.

The type of heater used can be critical to personal safety, however. For that reason, many homeowners reject open flame heaters.

Three types of electric portable heaters are generally popular with homeowners. The toaster-type radiant heaters have exposed elements which turn to a red glow as the unit warms up. When touched, the element burns skin. Flammables which touch it may burst into flames.

The resistance type heater usually has a shielded element. Small hands or misplaced flammables, such as drapes, can come into contact with a hot spot typical of these heaters. Nasty burns and fires can result.

Electric hot water heaters have elements enclosed in a hermetically sealed tube containing a water/antifreeze solution. This provides protection to small hands and flammables because surface lower temperatures remain low. Many hot water systems offer convection heat which warms air as it circulates throughout a room.

For a free booklet on electric supplemental heating, write INTERTHERM Inc., Softheat Dept. P., 10820 Sunset Office Drive, St. Louis, MO 63128.

Sherco 3 Plant Gets Approval To Construct

Robert G. Renner, Jr., commissioner of the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development (DEPD), recently issued an amended certificate of need for the proposed 800-megawatt, coal-fired power plant commonly known as Sherco 3.

Certificate of need allows the owners of the planned facility, Northern States Power company (NSP), Southern Minnesota municipal power agency (SMMPA), and United Minnesota municipal power agency (UMMPA), to proceed with the plant, which will be built at an existing power plant site in Becker. Minnesota law requires that need for a large energy facility be established before it can be built.

In his ruling, Renner said that NSP and the two power agencies had demonstrated that by January 1, 1988, they would need the coal-fired electric generating capacity Sherco 3 could provide, and that the plant can be put into service on that date. He ruled that NSP showed a need for 472 megawatts, SMMPA a need for 300 megawatts, and UMMPA a need for 28 megawatts of new, coal-fired generating capacity by January 1, 1988.

Renner issued the certificate with several conditions placed on the applicants. He reinstated a requirement that NSP report to DEPD semiannually on its efforts in the areas of conservation, load management, and alternative sources of energy. Similar reporting requirements were placed on the other two applicants on an annual basis.

Renner ordered NSP to submit annual reports describing projected capacity factors and retirement schedules for its older coal-fired plants. Copies of these reports are to be submitted to the executive director of the pollution control agency (PCA) and to the public utilities commission. A major issue at the hearings was the total sulfur dioxide emissions from electric generating units, which may contribute to acid deposition in some areas of Minnesota. NSP based part of its case on the environmental benefits which would be derived from displacing electricity from its older coal-fired plants by electricity from Sherco 3. Older plants are not equipped with modern pollution control equipment.

Renner included a recommendation that the PCA, in preparation of its acid deposition control plan, consider the effects on acid deposition of electricity sales by the applicants to other utilities.

Renner also ordered that NSP design Sherco 3 to permit extraction of hot water or steam from the plant if and when a market for that energy develops. Finally, he ordered NSP to evaluate the technical, economic and environmental feasibility of using alternative fuels such as wood, peat, crop residues and municipal solid waste in its generating facilities.

Renner based his decision on the conclusions he reached from the testimony and exhibits entered into the case. These conclusions meet the criteria necessary to issue a certificate of need: that the facility is needed to ensure the future adequacy, reliability or efficiency of energy supply to the people of Minnesota; that a better alternative to the facility cannot be provided; and that the facility complies with relevant policies, rules and regulations of the state and federal government.

Renner concluded that the three utilities need the coal-fired capacity that Sherco 3 would provide in order to meet future demand, and to replace electrical energy that otherwise would be generated by older coal-fired plants and oil-fired plants. He ruled that alternative energy sources and likely levels of conservation would not provide enough energy to eliminate the need for Sherco 3. Renner also stated that Sherco 3 is preferable to the other feasible coal-fired options.

With issuance of the certificate of need, one of the longest running energy issues in Minnesota nears an end. NSP first applied for a certificate of need in 1975. In April of 1976, the director of the Minnesota Energy Agency, who then had responsibility in certificate of need matters, issued a certificate for two 800-megawatt, coal-fired units; Sherco 3, to be put in operation in 1981, and Sherco 4, to be put in operation in 1983.

In 1977, NSP informed the energy agency that, because its new forecast showed reduced growth, the in-service dates for both facilities needed to be pushed back more than a year. In early 1978 the director voided the certificates for Sherco 4 and directed NSP to apply for a new in-service date for Sherco 3. In late 1978, an in-service date of May 1985 was given for Sherco 3.

In 1980, NSP asked that the certificate be modified to allow joint ownership with SMMPA and UMMPA due to lower forecasts of electrical demand for the NSP service area, among other reasons. NSP was informed that a total rehearing of the need for Sherco 3 was necessary. New hearings were ordered in November 1981; the hearings began in February 1982 and ran through July. There were approximately 70 yearing days resulting in over 14,000 pages of transcript. More than 225 public witnesses testified, and another 62 witnesses testified for the parties to the case. In addition, approximately 700 exhibits were received in evidence during the course of the hearings.

PREPARING THEIR GEAR after reporting in to the National Guard's winter operations instructor school at Camp Ripley, near Little Falls, on Sunday, were Sergeant First Class James Bonds, left, and Sergeant Steven Schulz, both of Thief River Falls and members of the Minnesota Army National Guard's Company B, Second Battalion, 136th Infantry. More than 300 troops, representing the Army, Navy and National Guards from 15 states, are attending the intensive, one-week course, January 2-8, which is designed to prepare them to be instructors within their own units when they train at the camp later this winter. Minnesota National Guard has been conducting serious winter training programs for nearly 20 years, Camp Ripley will host the largest number of troops in its 51-year history this year, with about 13,000 members of the armed forces to be trained at the 53,000 acre site by the end of March.

Co. Extension Committee Hears Reports

Pennington county extension committee met on Thursday to hear year-end reports from extension agents Terry Courneya and Deb Matero.

Extension committee members for 1983 include Jim Engelstad, chairman; Earl Miller, vice chairman; Janis Olson, Richard Parnow, Lois Swanson, Orland Stolaas and county commissioners Otto Stenberg and Roger Hoffman. County auditor Ken Olson served as secretary.

A review of the utilization of the educational resource made possible through cooperative efforts by the University of Minnesota, USDA and Pennington county indicate a noticeable increase in questions dealing with farm financial planning, crop and livestock enterprise analysis and family budgeting, according to county director Terry Courneya.

Poor crop prices and high costs of production have caused farmers to tighten their management efforts and reduce purchases wherever possible, Courneya said. Indications of more careful planning of spending for family living are also evident in the increase in homemakers asking for information in family money management from Deb Matero, extension home economist.

Dick Byrne, district program leader for 4-H and resource development, announced that the University of Minnesota has reopened the position which was held open when Howard Person resigned in October of 1981 to accept a county agent position in East Polk county.

The position was held open as part of the retrenchment effort to meet the budget reduction absorbed by the university during the past biennium. It was reduced from full-time to half-time as an adjustment to permanent funding acts made necessary by Minnesota's fiscal crisis. Courneya said is expected that the half-time position will be filled by April.

In addition to hearing the statistical report, the committee reviewed the 1983 budget proposal to the county board and participated in a demonstration of the new computer equipment the extension office installed in October.

Quilts Warm Art World As Well As Beds

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

It's a crazy thing about quilts. They're warm — and yet they're "hot." They're perfectly at home in bed — or showing off on the wall.

From the Blue Ridge Mountains to, yes, the Hawaiian Islands, where hand-stitched quilts sport a tropical look of floral design and color, interest in — and affection for — the American quilt is as boundless as the variety of kaleidoscopic patterns that now dazzle countless aficionados and quilters alike.

American quilts, moreover, have become the Cinderella of the art world, rising in the past few years from humble patchwork roots to places of prestige in prominent museums and art galleries. What was once considered a functional homespun craft is now often looked upon as something more, the fabric equivalent of fine paintings. "A number of modern artists are choosing quiltmaking as a medium of expression," Doris Bowman, specialist for the Smithsonian's 300-piece quilt connection, says. "It's amazing how many beautiful quilts are being made."

There's also international attention to quilts made in the U.S.A. "You can go to London, Paris, Tokyo, Milan — all have shops selling American quilts," Robert Bishop, director of the museum of American folk art in New York City, reports. "They're used in contemporary living as art; they rarely get to bed."

At home, the American craving for both antique and contemporary quilts, the latter based on traditional patterns or stunning, innovative designs, has created a crowded calendar of fairs, craft shows, gallery exhibitions and workshops across the nation. Quilting seminar offered last spring by the Smithsonian Institution was deluged by hundreds of applications, according to Nancy Starr, manager of the Smithsonian's selected studies program. Reservations to tour the quilt collection at the Smithsonian's national museum of American history are running up to three months in advance.

Quilt sales in country shops, city boutiques and auction houses, supplemented by sales of publications and quilting supplies, ring up a reported $50 million to $100 million annual business. At Made in America on Manhattan's posh Madison Avenue, pieced, solid and applique quilts dating back to 1845 sell briskly at prices starting at $300 and climbing to $4,000. Owner Margie Dyer cites equal interest among men and women, and says about as many customers buy quilts for decorative purposes as for cozy comfort.

In Athens, OH, Quilt National '83 is set for June 5-July 5. This is a juried exhibition of contemporary quilts, requiring that entries be "original, not a copy of traditional designs," though "original interpretations" of old patterns are acceptable.

"Contemporary work has just taken off," National organizer Pam Parker reports. Last year, entrants came from 36 states and five foreign nations, and, while most of the participants are relatively young, the older generation also is taking up the new approaches. "I've been quilting for 60 years," one woman told Parker, "but this is the first time I've ever been treated like an artist."

Not all quilt enthusiasts are turned on by the same things by any means, a factor that accounts for quilting's large, diverse following. "People look at quilts in two ways," Bishop says.

There are those who are interested in the graphic design of the material, and relate to art world images, particularly modern geometric abstractions, minimal, op and even pop, all of which, ironically, the Amish quilters of Pennsylvania anticipated a century earlier in their boldly dramatic designs.

Second group, usually older women, likes to look at quilts from the perspective of craftsmanship. "They are concerned with such things as the number of stitches per square inch," Bishop explains. "There's not much crossover between these two groups."

What is going on here? Why quilts? Apparently, it was a New York museum exhibition, the Whitney's 1971 show of quilts, that triggered the quilt mania. Show focused on the visual look of pieced quilts, recognizing the patterns as part of the American design tradition. "The art world realized that quilts were art," Dyer says.

Tradition and today's interest in handmade items seem to be other major factors. Quilts are tangible, useful and handsome links to both past and future generations.

"We Americans are now taking pride in our own art forms," suggests Polly Brooks, a partner in Appalachian Spring, a shop in Washington, D.C. Brooks recalls that, when her store opened its doors in 1968, "you couldn't have sold a quilt to a man for his office for anything." Now, she says, they are being snapped up by doctors, lawyers and architects as office art. "They do give warmth and texture to a room," she says.

Appalachian Spring, like other stores, sells traditional quilts made by rural women from around the nation. "We find that these ladies create fine quilts as long as they are left to themselves," Brooks says. "There's no joy for them when we dictate, and we had to stop that. When I open a shipment, I don't know what is coming out."

But the quilts that are part of the old rural lifestyle are fast disappearing, along with that way of living. "The quilt is going to evolve into something different," Brooks is convinced.

In some ways, they already have. Quilts have been, and still are, just simple "fabric sandwiches" composed of a top layer, an inner filling and a bottom layer, all quilted or stitched together to keep the filling from shifting. But contemporary quilts resemble older patterns about as much as cars of the 1980s look like carriages.

Pattern names, often as colorful as the quilts themselves, reveal the changes. Pine Tree, Old Maid's Ramble, Pickle Dish and Hearts and Gizzards belong to an earlier age, while Litho Quilt, Rythmetron and No. 1 resound of today. Modern designs, the Smithsonian's Nancy Starr says, are "gaspingly beautiful" in their paradoxical use of "painful color combinations."

"Though there still is strong interest in traditional quilting, modern technology has caught up with the form," says Lloyd Herman, director of the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery, a national showcase for design, crafts and decorative arts. Artists have turned to such non-traditional quilting materials as plastic, beads, laminated mylar, paper and, in at least one case, gum wrappers! Rubber stamps, photo copy machines and silkscreens — all are being used now for printing both traditional and newer quilt materials. But one "quilt" made of stained glass was rejected last year by Quilt National. "We didn't want to handle it," Pam Parker laughs.

Like so many other aspects of American life, American quilts are subjects of controversy. Debate simmers over whether there have been and are strong regional differences in the quilt world and whether earlier Americans realized that their handiwork had artistic value.

One viewpoint, held by Margie Dyer and others, suggests that, for all practical purposes, there was little difference in quilts made in one part of the country and another. After all, Dyer says, as settlers moved across the country in the 19th century, quilt patterns traveled with them, creating the fabric version of the old melting pot idea. "Amish quilts do look different," she concedes, "but an applique quilt made in upper-New-York-state looks similar to those created in southern Illinois. Pine Tree patterns are similar in Maine, New York and the West."

Polly Brooks feels that geographical variances were once quite distinct, but that was long before the age of jet travel and push-button phoning. Very elaborate, fancy quilts were made in Colonial times along the southern Atlantic Coast, she explains, because women there had access to imported fabrics arriving at seacoast ports. In Ohio and other interior areas, the settlers had to make do with scraps, and their quilts were more haphazard.

Were earlier generations aware that they were turning out something of artistic value? One school holds that theirs was a naive approach, basically utilitarian. But noted quilt authority Jonathan Holstein feels the early craftswomen knew exactly what they were creating: "Always it was planned and, with rare exceptions, planned completely." Bishop thinks these women did view their quilts as works of art. "These often were the only beautiful things in a house. It was grim and dingy, dark and cold. Quilts were a spot of beauty."

ALLAN GUSTAFSON (right), SCS district conservationist for Pennington and Red Lake counties, recently received a certificate of appreciation from the Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts at the annual meeting. Gustafson received the award for his involvement in special erosion control projects developed and completed in Red Lake county, and his participation in group projects in Pennington county. He is pictured with state conservationist, Harry Major (back row, left) and other award winners. The Pennington district also received a distinguished service award for its conservation program from "The Farmer" magazine, based on involvement of the district in activities which educate the public in soil and water conservation. This is the fifth time the district has received the award.

Census Of U.S. Farms, Ranches Is Underway

1982 census of agriculture was begun recently with the mailing of report forms to farmers and ranchers in the 50 states, the commerce department's census bureau has announced.

Farmers and ranchers are being asked to report on their agricultural operations during 1982 and to return the form by February 15. This is the nation's 22nd agriculture census in a series that started in 1840.

For the first time in a mail agriculture census, forms will reflect regional cropping patterns to make reporting easier.

Farm and ranch operators are asked to report the acreage in their operations, form of ownership, type of organization, location of the place, use made of the land, and when their operations began. Other questions will cover livestock and poultry inventories and sales, amount of government crop loans, crop acreage, amount harvested, and value of crops and livestock sold.

About 20 per cent of farmers and ranchers will receive a form with an additional page which has inquires on: selected production expenses, market value of land and buildings, machinery and equipment inventory and value, interest expenses and expenditures for petroleum and other energy sources.

Assistance in completing census forms is available locally from offices of the cooperative extension service, soil conservation service, agriculture stabilization and conservation service, vocational agriculture teachers, production credit associations, and farmers home administration.

File copy of the report form is provided which operators can complete and keep for their own records.

Time extensions can be granted farmers on request.

Census results will be published for each state, and the nation. First preliminary data will be released beginning in the fall of 1983.

Law which requires farmers and ranchers to report in the census also protects the privacy of their reports. Census report forms are confidential by law and they may be seen only by sworn census employees and may be used only for statistical purposes. Even other government agencies cannot obtain or use the individual reports, and copies retained by the farmers are immune from the legal process.

Each report form will have a census file number (CFN) printed on the address label. If a report is not received for each file number, the census bureau will send out follow-up letters to all who have not responded.

Farmers and ranchers who have not received a form should request one from: Bureau of the Census, 1201 East 10th Street, Jeffersonville, IN. 47133.

Thin Ice Still Requires Using Extra Caution

Thin ice can be a problem any time of the winter, according to the Minnesota department of public safety. Early in the season, fluctuating temperatures above and below freezing make it unlikely that many lakes will be cold long enough to freeze a thickness of ice that is safe for winter activities. Even in the dead of winter, pressure ridges can cause gaps in foot-thick ice and water currents below the surface can keep warm water near the top, resulting in a dangerously thin layer of ice.

So how does someone know when ice is sufficiently thick to travel on safely? Most Minnesota police and sheriff's departments monitor ice conditions on local lakes. Checking with the local authorities would be a good idea, especially if you're unfamiliary with an area.

Uniformly thick two-inch ice is generally sufficient to support a single individual walking across it. Three inches can support a group of people walking single file. Four inches is recommended for sitting safely on the ice while fishing. Five inches would be sufficient to carry the weight of a snowmobile.

Cars, trucks and trailers need eight to 10 inches or more to be relatively safe from falling through.

If you're going to cross a frozen body of water, or plan an activity upon one, be prepared to handle an emergency if someone falls through. The best precaution is to never be out on the ice alone. When you and your companions are on the ice, be sure each person has a branch, pole or rope at hand to quickly assist someone who falls through. Rescuers should lie prone on the ice as far as possible from the broken edge and use the rope or pole to pull the person out.

Snowmobilers should also keep a length of rope with them on their vehicles for any emergency rescue.

Best thing to do for a person who's fallen into ice water is to provide shelter and warmth. Remove all wet clothes and put on dry ones if available. If extra clothing is not at hand, enclose the victim in a sleeping bag or whatever else is available. Have the victim drink warm liquids and eat high-energy foods such as chocolate, raisins, honey and nuts.

Watch for intense shivering which is the first sign of hypothermia, a dangerous condition of subnormal body temperature. Death can occur within 90 minutes if nothing is done.

If the victim slips into semi-consciousness, advanced hypothermia has set in and the body has lost all ability to reheat itself. Try to keep the person awake and add warmth internally with hot liquids and externally with heat from a fire or contact with other persons. Do not use alcoholic beverages.

With North Half Region 8AA apparently lacking a dominant team this winter, the Lincoln high school basketball team has a chance to improve its stock among the nine competing schools the next two Fridays with games against long-time athletic rivals Bemidji and Crookston. Wins this week at Bemidji and next week at home against Crookston could vault the Prowlers among the leaders trying to secure a home court advantage for opening round post-season play.

A wide-open scramble appears to be in store for the 1982-83 North Half Region 8AA basketball race. With the 1982 portion of the 1982-83 schedule completed, no team has yet displayed the dominance shown by Detroit Lakes last season when the Lakers finished 18-4 overall, won the North Half title and lost to South Half winner St. Cloud Tech in the Region 8AA championship game, it was pointed out by Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record in Detroit Lakes.

Detroit Lakes was 2-1 and had the best record of the nine schools in the North Half at the start of the New Year. Fergus Falls, 3-2, which lost to Detroit Lakes by a score of 55-54 in the North Half championship game last March, was the only other school in the North Half with a winning record at the just-completed holiday break.

At the start of the week, Detroit Lakes was 2-1 for the year with wins over Bemidji 57-42 and Wadena 70-60 and a loss to Crosby-Ironton 64-60. The Lakers averaged 62.3 points per game on offense and 53.3 on defense.

Fergus Falls was 3-2 with wins over Pelican Rapids 72-62, Bemidji 56-51 and Barnesville 60-52 with losses to Barnesville 65-55 and Breckenridge 65-41. The Otters averaged 56.8 points on offense and 59.0 on defense.

Crookston was 2-2 with wins over Tri-County 80-54 and Fertile-Beltrami 70-61 and losses to Warren 52-40 and Mahnomen 56-55. The Pirates averaged 61.2 points on offense and 55.8 on defense.

East Grand Forks was 2-3 with wins over Grand Forks Central 59-30 and Grand Forks Red River 52-51 while losing to West Fargo 67-58, Mayville-Portland 54-48 and Breckenridge 50-41.

Park Rapids was 2-3 with wins over Menahga 64-53 and Frazee 45-29 along with losses to Crosby-Ironton 59-28, Staples 50-42 and Bemidji 61-47. The Panthers averaged 45.2 points on offense and 50.4 on defense.

Thief River Falls stands 2-3 with wins over Roseau 59-47 and Grafton 49-38 and losses to Warren 42-18, Moorhead 60-46 and Argyle 44-42. The Prowlers average 42.8 points per game on offense and give up 46.2 on defense — both low figures among the nine teams.

Bemidji is 1-4 with a win over Park Rapids 61-47 and losses to Detroit Lakes 57-42, Brainerd 75-63, Fergus Falls 56-51 and Crosby-Ironton 45-40. The Lumberjacks average 51.4 on offense and 56.0 on defense.

Moorhead stood at 1-4 with a win over Thief River Falls 60-46 and losses to Little Falls 84-71, Fargo Shanley 68-66, Fargo North 54-52 and Minneapolis North 66-62. The Spuds average 62.2 points on offense and 63.6 on defense.

Wadena, the new North Half member, began the year 0-3 with losses to Breckenridge 66-29, Detroit Lakes 70-60 and Aitkin 70-60. The Indians average 49.7 points on offense and 68.7 on defense.

Post-season playoff pairings will be done by coaches' seeding process, based upon those regular season standings. The No. 8 and No. 9 teams will be matched in an elimination game at the site of the No. 8-seeded team Mon., March 7, to round out the eight-team field for the North Half Region 8AA quarterfinals Tues., March 8, when the No. 8 team visits the home site of the No. 1 team; No. 7 will be at No. 2; No. 6 at No. 3; and No. 5 at No. 4. Semifinals, also at the site of the higher seeded teams, will be played Thurs., March 10, and the title game is set for Sat., March 12. North and South Half champions will meet in the 1983 Region 8AA championship game Fri., March 18, at Concordia College in Moorhead.

Thief River Falls appears to match-up well with both Bemidji and Crookston. Both games can probably go either way, with wins being critically important to all three teams.

"Next couple of games are very important for us," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "I think we'll match up well with both Bemidji and Crookston. A win on the road this week would really help us."

Thief River Falls' line-up will stay intact, with 6-4 Mark Gere and 5-10 Steve Kruta at the guards, 6-2 Jeff Hamerlinck and 6-0 Steve Olson at forwards and 6-4 Randy Naeseth at center. Hamerlinck, a junior, is the only underclassman in the group. Juniors John Brandt, Randy Erickson and Tim Kruse, along with sophomore Mark Bondy, can also be expected to see action off the bench if the situation warrants it, according to Hunt.

"We're pleased in a lot of ways with the progress of the team so far," explained Hunt. "I can see a big improvement in the program. But we've got to be more consistent for four quarters on offense. We have failed to execute offensively. Full-court pressure defense and turnovers have been our problems, and we'll probably see the pressure defense at Bemidji," he warned.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Lynne Culkins started to drive toward the basket Tuesday in the first half of the North Half Region 8AA high school basketball game against Moorhead in the Lincoln gym. The Spuds' Val Preston was the defender on the play. Moorhead won the game 52-31.

Prowlers, Green Wave End Up With 4-4 Tie

Thief River Falls, after battling back from a two-goal deficit in the third period to tie East Grand Forks, appeared to have produced an overtime win Tuesday, but an official's whistle said otherwise and the two Section 8 hockey rivals would up with a 4-4 draw.

A pair of Tim Bergland goals, the second coming at the 10:34 mark of the third period, erased a 4-2 East Grand Forks lead and forced the eight-minute, sudden-death overtime period.

Thief River Falls' Mitch Semanko appeared to have scored the winning goal on a scramble around East Grand Forks goalie Todd Christiansen with just under two minutes remaining in overtime, but an official's whistle had killed the play and denied the Prowlers the goal — and eventually the win.

"When you score in overtime you expect to win the hockey game," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who was upset with the call. "That was a disappointment to say the least."

It was a 1-1 first period stand-off and a 3-2 East Grand Forks lead after two. Tim Bottem scored the first two Thief River Falls goals, both on power plays. Todd Boushee and Jeff Bowne each had a pair of goals for the host Green Wave.

"We weren't real pleased with our play in the first two periods," pointed out Grand. "The kids played their best hockey in the third period and in the overtime to come back from a two-goal deficit. Most positive thing from the whole game came when the kids didn't even come close to a collapse after having that overtime goal taken away from them. We kept the pressure on and had several more good scoring opportunities after that."

Thief River Falls out-shot East Grand Forks 38-24 for the game.

With the tie Thief River Falls goes to 3-3-1 for the year and East Grand Forks is 2-2-3. The Prowlers host a Lake of the Woods team Saturday in the sports arena that has its eyes set on capturing a top four regular season finish in the Section 8 standings and getting one of those automatic berths into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

JOHN THOMPSON of Thief River Falls displayed the trophy he won with a fourth place finish in the 12-13-year-old class at the 1983 world championship motocross bicycle races held last week at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev. Over 4,000 competitors were on hand for the event.

World's Championship . . .

TRF Entry Fourth In Moto-Cross Race

John Thompson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Erling Thompson of Thief River Falls, came up with a fourth place finish in the finals of the 12-13-year-old class at the 1983 world championship moto-cross bicycle races held last week in Las Vegas, Nev.

Another Thief River Falls entry, Scott Severinson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Severinson, reached the semifinals in the 14-15-year-old class, barely missing a spot in the finals of the three-day racing extravaganza in the Tropicana Hotel pavilion last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Over 4,000 competitors were involved in the international event that drew bikers from such places as Japan, Germany, Australia and Iceland. ESPN and network television cameras were on hand to record the action.

There were 387 riders in the 12-13-year-old class, and John outlasted 383 of them.

Both Thief River Falls entries were on hand for practice runs Monday. Competition started Tuesday when riders had three chances to win a qualifying heat for a berth in the semifinals the following day. John won his first start.

On Wednesday, bikers needed a top four finish in the semifinals to rach the finals. John had a pair of seconds to qualify for the final eight Thursday.

Scott, meanwhile, finished fifth in his second semifinal try to narrowly miss the finals.

All eight finalists earned trophies. John's fourth place prize measured 36 inches. First place prize was a seven-footer. The seven other finalists in John's heat were all California factory-sponsored riders.

Spuds Handle Prowlers 52-31 In Girls Basketball

Both teams showed the effects of long lay-offs, but Moorhead still did enough things well enough to finish with an easy 52-31 win over Thief River Falls Tuesday in a girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

Maybe they didn't show it last night, but coach Karin Schumacher figures here 1982-83 Spuds will be the best team she's coached in her six years at Moorhead. And that includes a 15-5 finish three years ago, plus back-to-back North Half Region 8AA titles the past two years.

"We were just a little rusty tonight," said Schumacher, whose 3-0 Spuds were playing for the first time since Dec. 7. "We were a little antsy out there; not quite as controlled as we normally are. But if things work out like they should, it should be the best year we've had since I've been at Moorhead."

Mary Miller, the smooth 6-2 junior center, is one of the main reasons the Spuds expect to do well. She's good for 20 points and 20 rebounds any night, but like the rest of the team she wasn't in top form Tuesday evening though she finished with 15 points. At halftime, with Moorhead leading 29-13, Miller had just six points and two rebounds.

Reason the Spuds were up by 16 at the time was Karla Larson, a 5-6 guard who pumped in 10 of her 11 first half points in the second quarter. Moorhead, ahead 11-6 at the end of the first quarter, led just 11-8 early in the second stanza before Larson led the Spuds on a 10-0 burst during a three-minute spell that ran the difference to 21-8. It was never in doubt after that point.

"That's the best game she's played," acknowledged Schumacher. "I told her last night I wanted her to score more, and she did."

"Moorhead is a fine team," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, "but I think we're a better team than what we showed tonight. We played well in sports. We played a good first quarter and played well in the fourth quarter, but we stunk up the joint in the third quarter; we didn't do anything on offense or defense in the third quarter."

Thief River Falls mustered just five points in the third quarter in falling behind 39-18. The Prowlers managed to get it down to 39-22 at one point in the fourth quarter but couldn't get any closer as they fell to 2-3 for the year.

Sophomore guard Michelle Olson led Thief River Falls with 10 points, although she had an off-night shooting. The Prowlers were missing starting center Pia Tymberg, the foreign exchange student from Sweden, who was still on a Florida trip.

Moorhead had a decided edge in the shooting department, hitting 24 of 58 field goal attempts (41 per cent) and four of six free throws (67 per cent). The Spuds were 14-for-28 from the field in the first half. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, was just 14-for-52 from the floor (27 per cent) and only 3-for-12 from the line (25 per cent). Moorhead finished with a slight 31-30 rebound edge and also topped the turnover charts 26-25 - the telltale factor in the effects of the layoffs. Thief River Falls' last game was Dec. 14.

The Prowlers will wait until next week to host Bemidji on Monday and Park Rapids on Tuesday in a make-up game.

Engelman Will Address Sports Boosters Club

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman will be the guest speaker Thursday as the weekly 12 noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meetings resume in the basement of the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls after a two-week holiday break.

The Northmen, 6-1 for the year, will host the Bemidji State University junior varsity Saturday at 8 p.m. Northland beat Bemidji 93-75 earlier this year.

Rest of the 1982-83 Northland schedule will feature Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) opponents, beginning with a Jan. 14-15 weekend trip to the Iron Range where the Northmen will play Northeast Division foes Rainy River and Hibbing in Northwest Division-counting games.

In the latest National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) rankings, Northland was No. 3 on the team offensive charts with an average of 105.0 points per game and Northland sophomore Matt Fontes was No. 6 on the individual scoring charts with a 27.6 average. Dave Johnson of Fergus Falls was No. 2 on the scoring sheet with a 37.7 average.

Northland community college women's basketball team, 3-3 for the year, will reopen its 1982-83 season Saturday by hosting the Grand Forks Air Force Base team at 12 noon. A scheduled Northland-Alumni game Friday has been canceled.

Northland is ranked No. 5 in the coaches' Region 13 poll, a list headed by No. 1 Golden Valley Lutheran; No. 2 Normandale; No. 3 NDSSS-Wahpeton; and No. 4 Lake Region.

The Northmen hold down the No. 1 ranking on offense and Fontes is the leading scorer on the five-state area Region 13 charts. Fontes also ranks No. 1 on the state scoring charts with a more current 30.4 average and is No. 1 in the rebound department with an average of 16.1 per game. Duncan Gregory ranks No. 1 in the state assist firures with an average of 10.1 per game and Rick Van Camp ranks No. 2 on the free throw charts with a 5-for-5 showing.

The Deb Jacobson-coached Northwomen will follow the same schedule as the Northmen the rest of the way, playing the first half of MCCC doubleheaders both home and away.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

by John Michael Anderson

Coach Tim Engelstad's Eagles Pee-Wee A team moved its record to 5-4 with a win and a pair of losses in last week's TRFAHA action.

Terry Hunt's strong play in goal, plus a pair of goals by Kent Hamre and a single goal by Mitch Wilebski wasn't enough as East Grand Forks skated to a 4-3 overtime win over the Thief River Falls squad Wednesday. Thief River Falls suffered another one-goal loss the next day as Roseau came up with a 3-2 win in the first road game of the year for the Thief River Falls team. A strong team effort earned a 7-4 victory over Fargo North Sunday as strong-skating Kent Hamre continued to lead the scoring parade with three goals and two assists while John Thompson scored twice and Mitch Wilebski and David Stengrim added single tallies.

Merchants Pee-Wee B team improved its record to 7-3 while winning two and losing one last week. Single goals by Tom Brouse in each of the first two periods, plus third period tallies by Blake Tangquist and Derick Joppru helped Thief River Falls post a league win over Crookston. Thief River Falls then blasted East Grand Forks 10-2 as Derick Joppru scored four goals, Tim Nelson three and Michael Howe, Tom Brouse and Paul Bolin single goals. A Fargo North goal with just 35 seconds remaining gave the North Dakota team a 3-2 victory in an interstate game played in the old arena Sunday. Chad Numedahl and Aaron Tofte scored Thief River Falls goals.

After sweeping a three-game series over St. Boniface, Manitoba, coach Rory Anderson's VFW Bantam A team continued its winning ways with a dramatic 4-3 overtime victory over arch-rival Roseau. Thief River Falls trailed 3-0 with 3½ minutes remaining when Troy Hanestad, Bob Brieland and Al Erickson scored to tie the game in regulation time, and Erickson scored the winner in overtime to give Thief River Falls a great victory. Thief River Falls also lost to East Grand Forks 7-5 and beat Fargo North 5-2.

VFW Bantam B team, coached by the popular Scott Bergland, had a tough week, losing four games while winning one. Playing in the East Grand Forks Invitational tournament, Thief River Falls lost its opening game 4-2 to Fargo South, skated past Bagley 3-2 in double overtime and lost to Fargo North 4-2 in the consolation championship game. Thief River Falls also lost to East Grand Forks 4-0 and to Fargo North again 3-2.

Plummer Girls Defeat Oklee

Plummer improved its record to 5-1 Tuesday with a 63-36 girls high school basketball win at Oklee.

Overcoming a sluggish start in their first post-holiday outing, the Cardinals turned a 12-5 first quarter edge into a 30-14 halftime spread and then broke it open in the third quarter, 52-22.

"We played a good third quarter," acknowledged Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, who cited the play of Sheila Jaeger, who scored 15 points on a 7-for-11 shooting night.

Jody Pahlen led the Cardinals with 23 points. Bonnie Fisher added 12 points and 18 rebounds. Jean Lindquist scored 12 points for the Bobcats.

Plummer shot 40 per cent from the field (24-for-60) and 63 per cent from the free throw line (15-for-24). Oklee didn't fare as well in the shooting department, shooting just 23 per cent from the field (17-for-75) and only 29 per cent at the line (2-for-7). Plummer finished with a 49-46 rebound edge.

The Cardinals host Polar Conference rival Fisher Thursday.

Grygla 28
Tri-County 22

Offense was at a premium Tuesday as Grygla beat Tri-County 28-22 at Karlstad.

"It was a little ragged," noted Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. It was the first game for both teams after a holiday break.

Grygla led 6-1 at the end of the first quarter, but would up in a low-scoring 10-10 tie at halftime and fell behind 20-17 in the third quarter before out-scoring Tri-County 11-2 over the finals eight minutes.

"We played real good defense, but we've got to generate some offense," pointed out Raduenz.

Tammy Anderson had 14 points and 13 rebounds for the winners, who improved their record to 4-2.

Grygla shot 23 per cent from the field, (13-for-56) and 22 per cent at the free throw line (2-for-9) while Tri-County shot 21 per cent from the floor (9-for-41) and 40 per cent at the line (4-for-10). Grygla had a 48-25 edge rebounding.

THE BALL BOUNCED away from Thief River Falls guard Paula Wilkens as Moorhead defender Karla Larson looked on during the first half of Tuesday's high school girls basketball game played here. Michelle Olson of the Prowlers trailed the play. The Spuds, with Larson getting 11 of her 13 points in the first half, rolled to an easy 52-31 win over the Prowlers.

Northmen Host Hibbing In Weekend Hockey Set

Northland community college hockey team, limited to just three games prior to a lengthy holiday break, will get into the swing of the 1982-83 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) schedule beginning this weekend when the Northmen host Hibbing in a two-game series at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Games will be played Friday night at 7:30 and Saturday afternoon at 1.

Northland has been idle since a conference-opening Dec. 17-18 trip to International Falls where the Northmen split a weekend series with Rainy River, winning 5-4 in overtime the first night but losing 6-5 in the final seconds the next afternoon.

Only other Northland outing to date was an exhibition game 7-2 loss here to the Roseau Leafs back on Dec. 8. Hibbing, meanwhile, got off to a shaky 0-4 start in league play.

Games against Hibbing will kick off a busy 16-game, month-long schedule of MCCC games for the Northmen, who will be hosting Hibbing, Mesabi, Rainy River and Rochester in weekend series during that time while making weekend trips to Hibbing and Mesabi. In addition, starting next week, northwestern Minnesota rivals Northland and University of Minnesota-Crookston will be starting their weekly Wednesday night single-game encounters on an alternating home ice sites, with the Trojans in Thief River Falls Jan. 12 and Jan. 26, while the Northmen visit Crookston Jan. 19 and Feb. 2.

The Hibbing series kicks off a five-game MCCC homestand for the Northmen. The Trojans follow the Cardinals, with Mesabi here Jan. 14-15.

"Our biggest problem at this point," said first-year Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr.," is the fact we've had three weeks off and now just one week to prepare. Then we get 16 games in 37 days. It's going to be an interesting schedule."

Northland will line-up this weekend with sophomore Todd Gregoire (EGF) centering Thief River Falls sophomores Murray Jorde and Todd Bergland; freshman Tom Ose (TRF) centering Fargo North freshmen Tom Raymond and Ladd Bjugson; with freshman Vic Evavold (Fergus Falls) between freshman Scott Steinbach (Fergus Falls) and sophomore Tony Loeffler (TRF), filling in for freshman Jeff Imgrund (TRF), who twisted a knee in practice this week. Available as a fourth line are freshmen Jeff Toussaint (Fargo North), Jim Dillon (TRF) and Scott Trana (Fargo North). Toussaint, through an error at the school, was throught to be academically ineligible and missed the first part of the season.

Defensively, sophomores Keith Huerd (Warroad) and Trent Peabody (EGF) will work together, as will Fargo North sophomores Todd Graalum and Bob Rockwood.

Freshman Bill Bye (Fargo North) is expected to be in goal, with sophomore Greg Harder (TRF) also available.

"We're starting over at square one," acknowledged Dorn. "We're working hard this week at practice to get ready for Hibbing. The guys are already looking ahead to playing Crookston, but we've got to take them one at a time."

Huskies 74-33 Winners Over Plummer At NDSU

Goodridge evened its record at 3-3 while Plummer fell to 0-6 Monday as the Huskies defeated the Cardinals 74-33 in a Polar Conference high school basketball game played at North Dakota State University as a preliminary game to an NDSU meeting with Valley City State.

"It was a great experience for the kids," pointed out Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "It was fun."

Goodridge, ahead 15-8 at the end of the first quarter, blitzed Plummer 22-4 in the second quarter to take a 37-12 half-time lead.

"Our kids really hustled," said Nelson. "That was probably the best individual quarter of basketball we've played this year."

Goodridge reserves saw extended playing time as all but one member of the Huskies' squad played at least five minutes.

Darin Easthouse scored 15 points for the winners, with Scott Groven getting 14 points, Ross Parnow 13 points and 9 rebounds and Tim Bakken 10 points. Tim Gagner had 12 points to lead Plummer.

Goodridge shot 42 per cent from the field (29-for-69) and 67 per cent at the free throw line (16-for-24). Plummer shot only 23 per cent from the field (13-for-57) and just 33 per cent from the line (7-for-21). Goodridge had a decided 47-27 rebound advantage and Plummer topped the turnover figures 26-19.

"I was happy with the way our press worked and I was happy with our offense," said Nelson.

Goodridge will be at Oslo Friday, with Plummer hosting Fisher Thursday.

DNR Muskies

More than 12,000 of the genetically superior "Mississippi" strain muskellunge were produced this year from four rearing ponds operated by the Department of Natural Resources.

Ranging in length from 9 to 12 inches, the fish were stocked in seven lakes that previously had no muskies, and also in Leech Lake and Lake Bemidji.

Eggs for the project came from Leech Lake fish and 1,570 of the rearing pond muskies were stocked back in the lake. Lake Bemidji received 2,700 muskies - due to the excellent growth of a small number stocked in the lake in 1978, and a desire by fisheries managers to add enough muskies to provide angling recreation and a future source of eggs for the muskellunge program.

Seven lakes stocked with the fingerlings, in addition to Leech and Bemidji, were Eagle Lake (435) and Rebecca (381), both in Hennepin county; Owasso in Ramsey county (523); Island lake in Pine county (1,120); Elk Lake in Clearwater county (407); Plantegenette in Hubbard county (3,890); and Little Wolf lake in Cass and Hubbard counties (742).

Eggs eventually produced from these fish will enable the DNR to use all Mississippi strain muskies in the muskellunge program, and dispense with the use of the slower growing "Shoepack" strain currently being relied upon to provide eggs for hatchery propagation.

DNR fisheries chief Richard Hassinger emphasized that there will be no changes in the fishing regulations on the above lakes because of the recent muskellunge stockings.

DNR Public Meetings

Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander would like to hear some new ideas on regulations and fisheries management when the Department conducts a series of six public meetings around Minnesota starting Jan. 20.

For several years the DNR has held public meetings with sportsmen to discuss hunting regulations and wildlife management programs, and Alexander said the fishing meetings will follow a similar format.

"It gives us a chance to hear how our regulations and management programs are viewed by sportsmen and an opportunity to explain the reasons for our policies. The meetings also bring out the fact that sportsmen are far from being of one mind when it comes to either regulations or management."

Meetings will be held at Brainerd, Vo-Tech cafeteria, Jan. 20; Rochester, Fridell Building, Hwy. 14 & 63, Jan. 27; Fergus Falls, Community College, Feb. 3; Willmar, Community College, Feb. 10; Grand Rapids, Community College, Feb. 17; and St. Paul, Vo-Tech Institute, Feb. 24.

All meetings start at 7 p.m.

Alexander said he hopes that individual anglers and representatives of sportsmen's groups, resort associations and others interested in the future of Minnesota fishing will set aside time to attend one or more of the meetings.

DNR Trails

When the snow finally comes, the trails for snowmobilers and cross country skiers will be ready for use, the Department of Natural Resources promised this week.

Department officials said the trails have been cleared of any brush or fallen trees, maintenance work has been completed on bridges, washouts have been repaired and other work done to prepare the trails for winter use.

Don Carlson, director of the trails and waterways unit, said grants have also been made to certain local units of goverment to assist in the preparation of local trails for the winter.

Snowmobile trail and skiing guides and information on snow conditions can be obtained by contacting the Minnesota Travel Information Center — Minnesota Tourism Division, 240 W. Bremer Building, 419 No. Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101; telephone toll free 1-800-652-9747.

Another source is the DNR Trails and Waterways Unit, Box 52 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; 612-296-6699.

Carlson said that the trails will be groomed as necessary. He urged trail users to observe the rules on safety and courtesy, showing particular concern for the property of landowners adjacent to the trails to avoid trespassing problems.

Walleyes Stocked

More than 63 tons of walleye fingerlings averaging five inches in length were stocked in Minnesota lakes this fall, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

"This is the largest walleye stocking operation in the nation," said DNR fisheries chief Richard Hassinger.

The nearly four million walleyes were removed from natural lakes that freeze out during the winter.

"These natural rearing ponds, which are stocked in the spring with fry, are rich in food for walleyes and do not have competing species of fish," Hassinger explained. "The fingerling walleyes were stocked in over 500 lakes; statewide that have management plans which call for periodic stocking to maintain populations."

He said the walleyes are removed from freeze-out lakes during the fall when the fish have reached maximum growth and can be transported and stocked aided by cool air and water temperatures to insure survival. Many sportsmen's clubs and lake associations cooperated in the project and provided equipment and manpower to complete the plantings before the winter freeze.

The stocking included 21 tons of walleye for northwestern Minnesota lakes; five tons to northeast lakes, 13 tons to lakes in the central part of the state and 20 tons for southwest lakes.

Twin Cities metro area received five tons of the five inch walleyes.

"These stockings should insure good walleye fishing three and four years from now," Hassinger said.

UMC Professor Elected To Wildlife Office

Dr. Daniel Svedarsky, associate professor of natural resources at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), was elected secretary of the north central section of The Wildlife society at the annual meeting held recently in Des Moines, Iowa.

Wildlife society is the professional organization of wildlife biologists, researchers, and educators with over 1200 members in eight states comprising the North Central section. As secretary, Svedarsky will be responsible for Section correspondence, coordinating the newsletter, and reporting at the next annual meeting in St. Louis, Missouri. Lee Gladfelter of the Iowa conservation commission was elected president, and Dr. Stephen Havera of the Illinois natural history survey was elected treasurer.

Svedarsky was also recently elected president of the Minnesota Prairie Chicken society, and Terry Wolfe, wildlife manager with the Minnesota department of natural resources in Crookston, was elected vice-president.

Prairie chicken society is made up of professionals and lay people interested in the conservation of prairie wildlife in Minnesota with special emphasis on the greater prairie chicken and the sharp-tailed grouse. The group coordinates an annual census, promotes educational and research activities, conducts fund raising, publishes a periodic newsletter, and sponsors the annual meeting.

1983 meeting of the Minnesota Prairie Chicken society will be held in Rothsay, the official "Prairie Chicken Capital" of Minnesota, to commemorate the town's centennial observance.

Individuals interested in The Prairie Chicken society can contact Svedarsky at (218) 281-6510, extension 210 or Wolfe at (218) 281-5952.

Wildlife Group Poster Contest Winner Picked

Vickiann Gloria Vail of Lewiston, MN was named a winner in the 1982 National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest.

Her poster illustrating the contest theme "Sportsmen and Conservation Working Together" had already been selected as a winner in a locally sponsored poster contest before being entered in the national NHF Day poster contest.

Vickiann, a seventh grader at St. John's Lutheran School in the southeastern, MN community of 1,000, won a merit award and will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

Her poster was but one of thousands entered in local NHF Day poster contests sponsored by sportsmen's clubs, civic organizations and schools throughout the country. In addition to local prizes, there were 52 national awards totaling $5,200 in U.S. Savings Bonds for youngsters who best illustrated the contest theme.

Sportsmen have contributed more than $5 billion toward wildlife conservation in this country since the turn of the century. Through license fees and special taxes, sportsmen have paid for fish and wildlife management programs and the acquisition of millions of acres of vital habitat that benefit all wildlife.

Designed to foster an increased awareness of the need for conservation and the role sportsmen play in America's conservation efforts, the 1982 NHF Day poster contest was open to all students in grade 5-12.

For information about the 1983 National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest, contact NHF Day Headquarters, Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

I HEAR THAT YOU USE open face reels only—have you always done this?

Nope, I started out like most everyone of my generation . . . with a cane pole and a can of worms, and those are still some of my happiest fishing days of all. Guess it was because my Dad and my uncles made it such a special thing for us boys. I have used everything from a ZEBCO 33 to an Ambassador, but I just have found the open face to suit my kind of fishing best and I'm more comfortable with it. For the young angler, women just learning to fish, or for the older anglers ZEBCO has a super line of rods and reels that are not hard to handle but get the job done. ZEBCO has come out with a super line of graphite rods with reels to match that are unbeatable. This is the line I am using now and I could not be more pleased with them. I use three sizes, small, medium and light salt water gear.

TO MY YOUNG FISHING BUDDIES: Are you taking part in the ZEBCO FISHAMERICA PROGRAM? If you're not, get busy. It's a great thing for all you boys and girls that love to fish. My most important question is, are you having a good time with your fishing and are you releasing all your fish you do not intend to eat? Please do this for ol' Tom and for yourselves good buddies, because I want you to fish for the rest of your lives and you can do it if you don't waste. Brag about the ones you put back, some folks will believe you, and those who don't, well, put'um back anyways.

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

MISTER TOM: A couple of guys catch a lot of bass from submerged stumps marked by metal rods they drove into them. I cast to these same rods and get nothing. Why?—Puzzled Pete

HELLO PETE: Some sneaky stump markers will drive their rods five to ten feet to the left or right of a stump to fool other fishermen. Try casting a plastic worm to both sides of the rods and see how far away the stump is when you locate it. Once you find their key you'll know how to fish all their stumps.

DEAR TOM: When I see a fallen tree in the water, I never know whether to start casting at the tip or butt. Which?—Castin' Cal

HELLO CAL: I like to use a plastic jellyworm to fish the bottom right off the tip where the water is deepest . . . then a deep-running crank bait like a Rooter . . . next a Little George spinner about midway . . . and finally a Top Mann surface spinner in the shallow water near the butt. Tip to butt, Cal, is my preference.

DEAR TOM: I want to take my grandson fishing for the first time. What do you suggest?—Grandad Brad

HELLO GRANDAD: I suggest you get him a cane pole, bobber, monofilament line, No. 4 Aberdeen hook, and some split shot. A can of worms for bait will do it, and ask questions to find where the nearest bluegill or catfish hole is. Be sure to keep his first fish, no matter how small. It's special to him.

MISTER MANN: I can't seem to get any distance casting a plug with my spincasting reel. Got any hints?—Shorty Caster

HELLO SHORTY: If your line is too heavy for the weight of the lure . . . if there is too little line on your reel spool . . . or if the line on your reel is twisted . . . all these can ruin your distance. Have a good service man check your reel.

HELLO TOM: Is it true that northern pike will not bite when they are losing their teeth each season?—Ebon Eezer

HELLO EBON: Pike do not lose their teeth seasonally and when they break one off nature later replaces it. When pike aren't hitting some fishermen claim it's because of shedding teeth.

TOMM MANN: I use one anchor tied to the bow of my boat. My partner says I should have one on the stern, too. Why?—Davey Potts

HELLO DAVY: Tom has only one M, but you need two anchors. Otherwise your boat will swing about and neither of you can properly fish a piece of cover. Your boat should be perpendicular to the hole you are fishing, at all times.

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and relatives who helped in any way during the loss of our beloved husband, father and brother Ernest.

Thank you to Father's Stanley Bourassa and David Super and Sister's Mardella, and Caroline for their prayers and also for a beautiful funeral service. Belmont's funeral home, all the pallbearers, to all who sent flowers, to the ladies who served lunch after the funeral, to Chris LaCoursiere - the organist, Bud Fontes - soloist, St. Bernard's adult choir, to all who brought food to our house and to all who sent cards and memorials.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

SOME TRUTHS ON ADVERTISING

Advertising experts — the International Newspaper Advertising Executives — have come up with some tips on how to organize advertisements efficiently.

There are five major elements to consider: the headline, the illustration, the body copy, the price and the signature, or logo.

There are a number of standard advertisement layouts, designed so that one can simply drop in the elements to create a layout. This gives a retailer more time to work on the parts of his or her job which can't be so easily reduced to a system.

For instance in a one-item ad, the headline may be placed on top, with the illustration on the left, copy on the right and the store name at the bottom of the ad. Another possibility would be to place the headline on top with the illustration directly below and the copy directly below that.

Two item ads present special organizational problems. If the two items in the ad are related, use a common headline, one which applies to both items. If items in an advertisement have something in common, it's a good idea to organize them under a common headline.

Sometimes the two items have nothing in common. This may call for each item getting its own headline, illustration and copy, with only the logo being common to both.

Three-item ads are treated similarly. If the three items have something in common, write a common headline and play each item off the headline.

This same principle of orderly division of the available space applies no matter how many items you have in an ad. As long as the items are all related to each other in some way, it is a good idea to organize them under a common headline, such as "The Great Garage Sale," for auto accessories.

Lost Bronze Age Found In Thailand

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

An eerie silence greets visitors to the basement storage room in the venerable University museum of the University of Pennsylvania. Here, a few flights below exhibition halls displaying treasurers from past civilizations, are 5,000 unbleached cotton sacks, unceremoniously stacked on dozens of floor-to-ceiling shelves.

Containing more than one million scraps and fragments of excavated pottery dating back 55 centuries, the mute bags have already spoken volumes about an ancient agricultural people who settled and thrived in what is now the village of Ban Chiang in northeast Thailand. The prehistoric people of Ban Chiang carved no tablets, painted no frescoes, built no cities, but they left evidence in their pottery and metalwork of an artisitically and technologically sophisticated civilization which flourished for some 4,000 years.

"The discoveries at Ban Chiang, particularly early bronze metalwork dated to sometime after 3000 B.C. and some of the oldest ironwork yet unearthed in East Asia, were completely unexpected," University museum archaeologist Joyce White says. "Finding these objects thousands of miles from the accepted centers of cultural innovation has caused scientists to rethink traditional theories about the development of civilization in Southeast Asia, long considered to be a cultural backwater of China and India."

The public now has its first opportunity to glimpse this remarkable lost culture in a new exhibition — a rich array of handsome pottery spanning four millenia, bronze tools, utensils and jewelry such as anklets and bracelets and other artifacts uncovered from the excavations. The show opened last month, appropriately, at Philadelphia's University museum, which, with Thailand's department of fine arts, undertook the excavations and subsequent scientific analyses. Those organizations and the Smithsonian institution traveling exhibition service are sponsoring the exhibition, which will visit eight major American cities before traveling in 1985 to its permanent home in Thailand.

The story behind the exhibition begins more than 15 years ago, in July 1966, when Stephen Young, son of the then U.S. Ambassador to Thailand, was carrying out anthropological research in Ban Chiang and stumbled — literally — over the site. While walking down a sloping path, Young tripped over the root of a kapok tree.

"I caught myself with my hands as I fell forward," Young recalled. "When I hit the ground, right underneath my face was a round circle . . it was obviously the top rim of a pot. . . I got up to look around and saw that the entire area. . . was littered with these round tops. I guessed it was the top of a burial ground."

Young took samples of the potsherds to Thai experts, and eventually the sherds were sent to the University museum for dating. Soon after, Thai scientists conducted test excavations at Ban Chiang, uncovering stone tools and bronze as well as more pottery.

Then came the startling news: One of Young's potsherds seemed to date back to 4630 B.C. (a date that was later revised substantially). "This date for a Bronze age site in Southeast Asia was unheard of!" says White, who has been involved with the Ban Chiang project for six years and, as a research associate at the University museum, has been the creative force behind the exhibition. "Moreover, excavations at a site near Ban Chiang, Non Nok Tha, had turned up bronze axes and bracelets that appeared to be made locally and might have dated back to 3000 B.C." The finds created a sensation, and Ban Chiang became famous almost overnight.

"After all," White says, "the traditional theory held that bronze technology was established originally in the Middle East around 300 B.C. and eventually spread — about 2,500 years later — to Southeast Asia. Although Bronze age items had been reported from haphazard excavations all over mainland Southeast Asia for over 100 years, everyone assumed that they had been introduced from other regions — India or China, for instance.

"Basically," she explains, "little research had been done in Southeast Asia. It was a vicious circle. No one did research there because the area was considered culturally uninteresting, and it was considered uninteresting because no one had done research."

That soon was to change. A full-scale excavation was launched at Ban Chiang in 1974. The largest ever conducted in Southeast Asia, the excavation was directed by the late archaeologist Chester F. Gorman of the University museum, who had earlier excavated a Stone age culture dating to 12,000 B.C. at Spirit cave in northern Thailand, and Pisit Charoenwongsa of the Thai fine arts department.

Tons of soil were sifted to retrieve every sherd, scrap of bone and fragment of metal. After two seasons of fieldwork, 18 tons of material, including more than one and one-fourth million pottery sherds, 200 pots and 2,000 other artifacts — most associated with burials — were sent to the University museum for analysis. The skeletal remains from 123 human burials were sent to the University of Hawaii, animal remains to New Zealand. A battery of the latest sophisticated scientific methods was employed to study the metal objects. Pots were laboriously reconstructed in the basement of the University museum. Data were computerized for easy retrieval.

In 1979, White went to Ban Chiang for 20 months to gather information on current lifestyles and the present-day ecology to see what might be learned about the past. From years of detailed study and analysis, a picture of life at Ban Chiang has begun to emerge.

The early inhabitants, White says, settled around 4000 B.C. on a rise near two seasonal streams, bringing with them the rudiments of an agricultural village lifestyle. They built simple huts on piles, collected much of their food from the wild, cultivated rice and rasied some domesticated animals such as cattle, pigs and chickens.

Sometime after 3000 B.C., the villagers began to make cast bronze tools and ornaments. Earlier on, however, the villagers had begun making beautiful ceramics. Many of the oldest pots unearthed at Ban Chiang have abstract freehand curvilinear designs, embellished with burnishings, painting, applique and impressions from cord.

The Ban Chiang people also buried their dead with great ceremony. "Vulcan," for example, was a middle-aged man nicknamed by the excavators for the Roman god of metalmaking. He was buried around 1500 B.C. with a socketed bronze adze and four bronze bracelets, a painted and incised pot at his feet and 30 pellets beside his head, possibly projectiles used with a bow.

"Later, between 1000 and 300 B.C.," White says, "an elaborate new funeral rite came into use, in which large, delicate pots were shattered over the body. This suggests a society willing to 'throw away' items requiring considerable labor."

The most important and unanticipated discovery from this period was the presence of iron artifacts — bangles, bracelets and spearpoints — some of the oldest iron objects found in East Asia. "Since the technology for casting bronze is not directly transferable to iron," White explains, "the appearance of iron indicates a considerable expansion in the metallurgical repertoire of the ancient metalsmith."

For another 500 years, beginning around 300 B.C., the Ban Chiang culture continued to blossom and prosper. The villagers painted elaborate pottery designs and carved intricate clay rollers, which may have been used to print textiles. They also fashioned delicate, twisted wire necklaces from a unique kind of bronze made with a high tin content, a type of material requiring exceptionally high skill in handling because of its brittle nature.

Archaeologists have been unable to find traces of the Ban Chiang culture later than 200 A.D., and, since the villagers left no written records, scientists can only speculate that the society was eclipsed by Buddhist cultures that spread from India and China in the third century.

As might be expected, the excavation of Ban Chiang has raised more questions than it has answered about the development of civilization in Southeast Asia.

"The Ban Chiang people," White says, "had a very sophisticated metallurgical tradition, which apparently developed independently of China or India. Yet to focus exclusively on the metal is to miss much of the story and significance of Ban Chiang. Metals do not create cultural development, people do.

"What's surprising is that, in contrast to other prehistoric sites, none of the objects found at Ban Chiang imply any military purposes or an urban setting. Why did the exacting, labor-consuming technology of bronze-working become established at such an early date in a Southeast Asian agricultural village society?

"Everything we've seen suggests a peaceful society endowed with economic prosperity, security, stability and high aesthetic achievement for 4,000 years."

Who, then, were these people? Where did they come from, what was their influence on other regions and where did they go? "That so many questions remain to be answered," White replies, "means that this region will be one of the most exciting areas for archaeological research for years to come."

BUY QUALITY — NOT LABELS

Generic cigarettes cost from $1 to $1.50 less per carton, offering consumers savings while maintaining quality.

Many Americans who are accustomed to buying quality without worrying about a label may be surprised to learn they can do the same with cigarettes.

With the doubling of the federal excise tax on cigarettes, and many cigarette brands going to more than a dollar a pack, buying a no-name brand instead makes a lot of sense, and can save some cents in the bargain. Right now, in 85 percent of the supermarkets in the United States and an increasing number of convenience stores, gas stations, drug stores, military bases, discount stores and newsstands, consumers can buy generic cigarettes at a price which averages 10 to 15 cents less per pack (or $1-$1.50 less per carton) than national brands.

Generic cigarettes are the cigarettes with no name, usually packaged in a plain wrapper or marketed as "house brands" by major retailers. According to Gary Tobacco Co., the nation's largest manufacturer of generic tobacco products, more consumers are expected to try generics as the price increases take effect.

A recent survey has shown that 85 percent of all those who try generics like them as well or better than their current branded product, and 94 percent told market researchers they would buy them again.

It appears that the lower price of generic cigarettes is getting smokers to try "no names" in increasing numbers, and the high quality of these cigarettes is retaining many of the smokers who try them.

All of which makes a lot of sense to consumers looking for high quality at a low price.

Plans Bill To Reauthorize Fund Sharing

Senator Dave Durenberger says he will introduce a bill to reauthorize the General revenue sharing program, "which provides vital general-purpose funding to local governments."

The program is set to expire on Sept. 30, 1983, but Durenberger said action on reauthorization should begin immediately since President Reagan is now formulating his fiscal year 1984 budget, to be delivered to Capitol Hill in February.

In a "Dear Colleague" letter sent to all members of the Senate and co-signed by four other senators, Durenberger said he will introduce a simple reauthorization of general revenue sharing in January, on the first day of the 98th Congress. The bi-partisan effort would preserve the current funding level of $4.6 billion per year for three years, employing the present allocation formulas.

"Although a relatively small component of the overall grant-in-aid system (comprising about 5.5 per cent in fiscal year 1981), general revenue sharing is very important to many local governments," the letter said.

"Over 40 per cent of all small cities, for example, receive no other federal aid. According to a recent survey of cities across the nation, 80 per cent of those surveyed said they would be forced to cut services next year if the program were reduced or eliminated, and 50 per cent felt they would be forced to raise taxes." The survey was conducted by the National League of Cities.

General revenue sharing has been reauthorized twice since its inception in 1972. Although the program originally involved both state and local governments, state governments have not taken part since fiscal 1980.

How to keep up with the Joneses

Do you keep your nose to the grindstone trying to give your family everything the Joneses have?

Then observe these neighbors carefully. They probably have something that escapes your notice.

They have family, friends and material possessions. But they have something more.

Notice that the Joneses always attend the services of their Church. They have found that without spiritual guidance their other treasures are worthless. And they have discovered new solutions to their everyday problems. They view the world from a different slant, for they have found the faith to take life as it comes along.

If you really want to keep up with the Joneses, follow their lead. Find and cultivate the faith they've found. Go to your Church or Synagogue this week . . . and every week . . . and seek fulfillment for your life.

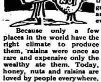
Food Facts & Fancies

There are more than 10,000 varieties of bees in the world but only four or five of those varieties have anything to do with the storing of one of our most prized delicacies—honey.



Although the U.S. produces more English walnuts than any other country, the nut is not indigenous to our shores. Originally brought here from southern Europe, these popular nuts are now grown chiefly in California and Oregon but enjoyed in every state of the union.

Because only a few places in the world have the right climate to produce them, raisins were once so rare and expensive only the wealthy ate them. Today, honey, nuts and raisins are loved by people everywhere. Now they're the basis of a crunchy new all-family cereal. It's from the Post Cereal people and it's known as Honey Nut Crunch Raisin Bran. Its theme is it starts crunchy and stays crunchy.

One Boy's Opinion

Following is said to be a boy's essay gleaned from the Middle River Record of 1928:

I don't know how newspapers got into the world and I don't think God knows for He ain't got nothing to say about them in the Bible. I think the editor is the missing link we read of. I think he stayed in the bushes after the flood and then came out and wrote the thing up. He has sort of been lying in the bushes ever since.

If the editor makes mistakes, folks say he ought to be hung. If the doctor makes mistakes, he buries them and folks don't say nothing because they can't read and write Latin.

When the editors make mistakes, there is a big lawsuit with swearing and a big fuss. If the doctor makes one, there is a funeral with flowers and complete silence.

A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anyone else knowing what it means. A editor, he has to spell it.

If the doctor goes to see another man's wife, he charges the man for the visit. If the editor goes, he gets a charge of buckshot.

Any college can make a doctor. Editors has to be born.

Let's Not Be Fooled Again

Following article was written by U.S. Senator Steve Symms of Idaho, a member of the Senate budget and finance committees, and was entitled "Some Chilling Facts About the 'Freeze':

Advocates of a "freeze" on nuclear weapons development sincerely believe that their plan is the best way to preserve peace.

Opponents of the freeze proposal are just as sincere in their belief that a strong national defense and an effective deterrent to a Soviet attack are the best ways to prevent nuclear war. In fact, they fear that a freeze would make it harder for us to keep the peace or prevent war.

Personally, I am convinced that a nuclear freeze would be very dangerous right now, or in the near future, for the following reasons:

1) Because the Soviets have already achieved a position of unquestioned nuclear and military superiority over the United States, a nuclear freeze would lock us into a position of strategic inferiority and vulnerability.

2) A freeze would reduce Soviet incentives to negotiate a real reduction in nuclear forces since it would preserve their big strategic advantage.

3) It would not be verifiable or enforceable.

4) It could actually increase the Soviet temptation to engage in nuclear blackmail, adding to the risk of nuclear war.

5) It would prevent the U.S. from modernizing the strategic weapons it needs to regain parity with the Soviets by the late 1980's.

As these five factors suggest, a freeze would be very advantageous to the Soviets. Perhaps that is why the late Russian leader Leonid Brezhnev began promoting the idea almost two years ago, long before most Americans had ever heard of the freeze movement.

Although I don't support the freeze, I do favor negotiating with the Russians for a mutual — and verifiable — reduction of nuclear weapons and stockpiles. I'm pleased that President Reagan has brought the Soviets to the negotiating table, and I hope the arms reduction talks will lead to an agreement that is truly balanced and equitable.

Many people do not realize that there has not really been an arms race since the early 1960's. For 20 years the U.S. has unilaterally restricted or frozen the development of its strategic weapons, while the Soviets have continued to build more and more of their own.

Since 1977, the U.S. has actually reduced or deactivated 710 strategic delivery vehicles and 6,000 nuclear warheads each year, while the Soviets have been adding 1,000 nuclear warheads to their forces. Since 1974, the Russian buildup has continued relentlessly, despite detente and strategic arms limitation treaties or negotiations.

In the past two decades, there have been several unilateral or bilateral nuclear "freezes" — and the Soviets have not reciprocated or complied with any of them.

Former Secretary of Defense Harold Brown summed up the "arms race" problem very aptly a few years ago. He said that when the U.S. builds weapons, the Soviets build them, but when the U.S. stops, the Soviets keep on building weapons.

The late President John F. Kennedy also offered advice about dealing with the Soviet Union that is worth remembering: "The Soviet Union tested while we were at the table negotiating with them. If they fooled us once, it's their fault; if they fool us twice, it's our fault."

Let's not be fooled again.

Being "Just A Farmer"

Following was written by columnist Ed Curran for the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

Feeling a bit low? Think being "just a farmer" doesn't count for very much after all? Then consider the following:

Fifty years ago, the United States had 6.5 million farms that averaged 145 acres each and were operated by a farm work force that totaled 13 million. And each of those farm workers produced enough food and fiber for 11 people.

Today, there are only 2.3 million farms in the United States and they average 450 acres each. And, there are only 3.7 million in the farm work force now. But each of those farm workers produces enough food and fiber for 78 people.

The reason, of course involves a highly productive agricultural research and the world's most efficient farmers.

As a result, the United States, with only three-tenths of one per cent of the world's farm work force, produces 63 per cent of the world's soybeans, 56 per cent of its grapefruit, 46 per cent of the corn, 31 per cent of the sorghum, 25 per cent of the tomatoes, 24 per cent of the poultry, 23 per cent of the green peas and beef, 13 per cent of the tomatoes, 14 per cent of the eggs; 17 per cent of the wheat and 13 per cent of the pork.

Besides providing food and clothing, each American farm worker creates 5.2 nonfarm jobs for people who produce things farmers need and who process, transport and merchandise the crops American farmers produce.

All of which means that American agriculture is the world's largest commercial industry . . . An industry with assets exceeding $1 trillion . . . An industry employing nearly 23 million people . . . 22 per cent of America's total work force . . .

And American farmers are consumers and taxpayers, too. Farmers pay $3.5 billion in farm real estate taxes, more than $600 million in personal property taxes and nearly $4 billion in state and federal income taxes annually. They also pay out more than $130 billion each year for goods and services to help produce their crops. Being "just a farmer" is big business.

A More Colorful Era

Early days of journalism provided news converage presented in a much more colorful fashion than it is today. Considered good news reporting now is the presentation of the facts only, leaving the opinion to be covered in editorial columns or least in by-lined articles where the writer is identified.

Not so years ago, when the opinion of writer was expected and nearly always presented in almost every local news item. An example is an item which the Kittson County Enterprise published recently and was written by editor W.F. Wallace in the Hallock paper dated Oct. 21, 1882. The item follows:

"Last Saturday an accident occurred, which might have resulted fatally, in this wise: Mrs. Sundberg was driving out to the farm owned by her husband, Mr. Gus Sundberg of Hallock, and when near P. Wests, a dog, noted for his vicious habits, sprang out on the horse from where he was hiding in the grass, at the side of the road.

"The suddenness of attack and the bite of the dog frightened the horse into a terrible rate of speed. When Mrs. Sundberg, seeing that the dog still continued to pursue the horse and frighten him, with a presence of mind seldom found like the Siberian sleigh travelers, first threw out the boy, then the girl, but unlike them, jumped out herself. Strange to say, the little girl escaped without a scratch, while the boy and Mrs. Sundberg are bruised up considerable as well as distressed by the shock.

"We are happy to say at this writing that they are all right, but what might have been is a distressful thought. At any rate it was a most lucky escape, and the shooting of such a dangerous dog should certainly follow, as this is one of his favorite tricks and many complaints have been made against him."

Borrowed Nonsense:

Young Mother: "How do you keep your children out of the cookie jar?"

Slightly Older Mother: "I lock the door to the pantry and hide the key under the soap in the bathroom."

Energy Saver's Checklist

Five Key Areas To Fight Rising Costs

An energy-conscious homeowner can look at five key places to save dollars on heating.

Homeowners who want to fight back against rising energy costs should concentrate on five key areas.

That's the word from the experts at Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation. To get the biggest energy savings for your dollar, look to these places first:

- Attics
- Crawl spaces
- Caulking and weatherstripping
- Storm windows and doors
- Water heaters

An insulated attic, brought up to proper levels, can cut home heating bills by 18 to 33 percent, according to U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) figures.

To determine proper insulation, use a ruler to measure the thickness of present insulation. Bring a sample to your local building supply dealer. He'll be able to tell you the approximate R-value of the material, whether it's adequate or if you need more.

R-values considered adequate a few years ago don't reflect today's high heating costs. Adding insulation is an easy do-it-yourself job with batt or blanket insulation. Building supply dealers can give you detailed instructions.

Crawl spaces need insulation, too. It can save up to eight percent of heating costs, the DOE says. The vapor barrier should be positioned against the warm-in-winter side. Use wire mesh screening to hold the insulation in place.

Proper caulking and weatherstripping can have a major impact on a home's energy use. Department of Energy figures indicate that a complete set of storm windows and doors can save ten to 19 percent of a home's heating costs. Check the caulking and weatherstripping around them, too.

Finally, the DOE reports that 14 percent of a home heating bill goes to heating water. Most hot water heaters are set much higher than necessary. A temperature of 120 degrees F. or 140 degrees, if you have a dishwasher, will save you money.

Some of these steps may make you eligible for energy-improvement tax credits. Your utility office can advise you on this.

COOKING CORNER

Ideas from Betty Crocker's Working Woman's Cookbook

A recipe for busy women . . . Easy Taco Dinner

The number of women in the American work force has increased by some 15 million in the last decade. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, there were 48,621,000 women working outside their homes in July, 1982, and countless others work within the home.

For a majority of those women, providing wholesome, nourishing meals is an added challenge. Here to help with some answers is a new volume from Betty Crocker called the Working Woman's Cookbook. The hardcover, attractively illustrated volume is filled with quick-and-easy and do-ahead recipes for the busy woman and her family.

The book covers everything from meat, poultry and seafood main dishes through salads, sandwiches, appetizers and beverages. Published by Random House, the volume sells for $10.95 and is available at many neighborhood bookstores and department stores.

Here's one typical quick-and-easy recipe:

EASY TACO DINNER

1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, chopped (about 1 cup)
1 envelope (about 1 1/4 ounces) taco seasoning mix
1 cup water
1 package (12 ounces) tortilla chips
1/2 head lettuce, shredded
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
1 can (2 1/4 ounces) sliced ripe olives, drained
1 cup shredded Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese (about 4 ounces)
2/3 cup dairy sour cream

Cook and stir ground beef and onion in 10-inch skillet until beef is light brown; drain. Stir in seasoning mix and water. Heat to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes. Spoon beef mixture onto chips. Top with remaining ingredients. 6 servings.

TIPS ON TRIPS

If you're traveling to a foreign destination check to see if your travel package contains a tipping guide. A good tour operator prepays tips for included features such as baggage handling, hotel staff and local guides. On optional sightseeing tours, it is customary to tip the local guide and bus driver. It is also customary to tip the tour director at the end of a trip.

Pack a flat fabric bag in the bottom of your suitcase for holding purchases made during the trip. This will ease your way through customs on the homebound trip. Keep a log of all purchases, including the amount of foreign currency spent and the American equivalent, to make the completion of customs forms an easier task.

Hints for Homemakers
TIPS TO HELP YOU

One way homemakers are fighting the battle of the bulge is through good old-fashioned home cooking. There's less emphasis on the expensive, ready to eat dishes and a new stress on buying fresh ingredients and cooking from scratch. The results may taste better and cost less.

One item that's making a comeback in many kitchens is the onion. It's a tasty ingredient in such treats as crispy fried onion rings or as an onion cheese pie or a nourishing soup. With the convenience of "The Dazey Stripper™," the new appliance that peels onions automatically without tears, many good cooks are rediscovering this versatile vegetable.

Fried onion rings are a universal favorite and especially appetizing when freshly made. Combine one and a half cups of biscuit mix with one and quarter cups milk to form a smooth batter. Dip onion rings in batter and drain slightly. Fry in deep hot oil until golden brown on both sides.

Consider Taxes When Planning Investments

How can you get the most from your investments? Plan carefully to suit your investment goals, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs), and that means considering the tax effects.

From now until the end of the year, CPAs note, is a good time to review your investments for tax effects, especially considering changes effective under the tax equity and fiscal responsibility tax act of 1982 (TEFRA).

One of the most widespread effects of this act for individuals is a 10 per cent withholding, by the payer, on interest and dividend income. This provision affects amounts paid or credited after June 30, 1983.

Although you won't actually lose this money — you will be able to claim it as a tax credit against your liability — you will lose the compounding effect. If you estimate your tax payments, however, be sure to account for this withholding in your payments.

Payer is responsible for withholding unless recipients file for a withholding exemption. Those eligible for exemptions include individuals whose tax liability for the preceding taxable year did not exceed $600, or $1,000 on a joint return. If you're 65 or older, these thresholds are $1,500 on a single return and $2,500 on a joint return. Certain trusts, some pension plans, profit-sharing plans and IRAs may be exempt.

While payers must withhold on dividend payments unless you are exempt, the payer may allow you to file for an exemption on withholding from interest payments if your annual interest doesn't exceed $150.

New law also provides for withholding from pension payments beginning January 1, 1983. Although this withholding will be optional, and will apply only to payments exceeding $5,400 annually, you will have to file for an exemption.

More importantly, TEFRA calls for changes in the pension plans of private companies that could diminish retirement benefits for workers currently employed. New requirements reduce maximum contributions and benefits from corporate retirement plans, with the intent of spreading benefits out more equally among all workers, in small private corporations as well as large companies. While lower paid employees may gain from the new restrictions, others might lose some pension benefits.

CPAs suggest you review your retirement plan and investigate how well your retirement will be provided for. Wheather you think your plan is sufficient or not, you can still open an individual retirement account (IRA), which allows you to deduct a maximum of $2,000 of contributions annually, but not more than 100 per cent of your salary. And, while this is part of year-end planning, you have until April 15 to open the account. What's more, the money, which you can't withdraw without penalty until age 59½, grows tax-free.

If you're self-employed, you can open a Keogh account, and contribute up to $15,000 annually, in addition to an IRA. Keogh accounts, CPAs note, must be set up by December 31 (or the end of your tax year), although contibutions can be made up to the due date of your tax return.

While you're reviewing your investments with interest and dividend withholding and retirement planning in mind, you should anticipate capital gains or losses you may have. At year end, a capital loss can be used to offset a long term capital gain, 40 per cent of which is subject to tax. Although you probably don't want to plan a capital loss simply to lower your tax bill, a strategy involving losses and gains might be beneficial. Since the taxation of gains and losses is complex, check with your tax advisor for complete guidelines.

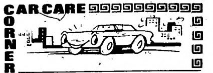
CAR CARE CORNER



Some Wise Words For Winter Driving

Racing your car engine when one or both drive wheels are stuck in snow, ice or mud can do serious damage to your tires. The force can even cause a free-spinning wheel to disintegrate.

One of the wisest steps you can take for winter driving is to equip your car with appropriate tires. Many cities and counties have "snow emergency" rules which are invoked during heavy snowfalls. Under some of these rules, motorists are subject to fine if their cars aren't equipped with snow tires and block traffic.

You can avoid this problem by equipping your car with tires marked "mud and snow" or "M/S" on the sidewall. This means the tires comply with voluntary industry standards for design of snow tires. The all-season radial tire is an alternative in most regions of the country. It provides increased traction in snowy as well as rainy weather. It also saves making seasonal changeovers.

Racing your wheels is NOT the way to get out of a snowdrift.

The tire experts at Uniroyal advise, if you change to snow tires, that you be sure they match the size and construction of the car's other tires. For instance, if you have radials on the front, don't put bias or belted bias snow tires on the rear. It could cause serious handling difficulties.

If yours is a front-wheel drive car, the snow tires go up front. Rear-wheel drive takes the snow tires on the rear.

If you're considering studded snow tires for added traction, you'll need them on all four wheels of front-wheel drive vehicles. If you use chains, be sure they're the proper size for your tires. Otherwise, they could damage the sidewalls and even cause tire failure.

AIRLINES competing to provide replacement service to Thief River Falls regional airport met with the airport committee of the Thief River Falls city council on Thursday, to review their bids. In the back row of the upper photograph are (left to right): Mesaba Airlines representatives Walt Osborn, mechanic; Eugene Voight, director of maintenance; Allan Hann, director of marketing; and Robert Swenson, president and chief executive officer. Seated in front of them is local citizen Bill Hogan. In the lower photo, Bemidji Airlines were represented by (front row, left to right) Larry Diffley, president; Mark Shough, vice president; and Barbara Berggren, general manager. Seated behind them are local citizen Roger Tunberg, Linda Reierson, KKAQ reporter; and Irv Schmitke, local representative of Republic Airlines.

Airline Proposals Reviewed By City

Two of the four commuter airlines proposing to provide replacement carrier service to Thief River Falls regional airport attended a meeting with the airport committee of the city council on Thursday, January 6, to discuss their proposals and plans for the future if selected by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to replace Republic Airlines here.

Members of the airport committee include Aldermen James Womack, Don Goodrich, and Ambrose Wysoski, Mayor Bob Carlson, City Attorney Robert Wurst and City Clerk Jerry Wigness.

Mayor Carlson welcomed representatives of Bemidji Airlines, Bemidji, and Mesaba Airlines, Grand Rapids, noting that two other airlines making proposals, American Central, Dubuque, IA., and Executive Airlines, Cambridge, MA., had stated they would be unable to attend the meeting due to transportation difficulties. American Central was grounded due to bad weather, and Executive Airlines had claimed they were unable to make connections. American was to be rescheduled to meet with the committee this week.

Bemidji Airlines reviewed its proposal first, with general manager Barbara Berggren acting as spokesman for the company. President Larry Diffley and Vice President Mark Shough were also present.

Berggren noted that the airline had originally made two separate bids, but had dropped one which proposed using a 15 passenger Beechcraft-99. Remaining proposal was to use a nine-passenger Beechcraft Queenair, making five round-trip flights between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis, Monday through Friday; and three flights on Saturdays and Sundays. Two of the flights on Saturdays and Sundays would be non-stop, with four of the five weekday flights stopping in Bemidji.

Bemidji projected that 9,500 passengers would be carried between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis, with 4,845 to originate from Thief River Falls. They projected that 4,000 passengers would be carried between Bemidji and Minneapolis.

On questioning regarding how the airline could guarantee the city its essential air service requirement of 56 seats while still offering service to passengers in Bemidji, Berggren commented that the number of seats was

TRF Passenger On Fatal Flight

Steve Young of Thief River Falls, a therapist at Northwestern hospital, was a passenger on the Republic Airlines flight which met with a fatal accident Sunday evening in Brainerd. Young was seated directly behind an elderly woman killed in the accident and near a six-year-old girl who had a foot severed in the mishap.

Republic Airlines' initial report indicated that there were two passengers with a Thief River Falls destination on the passenger list for the flight but immediate identification was not available. Passengers on the flight who were destined for Bemidji and Thief River Falls were to be transported to those locations by bus today because the Brainerd airport was closed pending investigation of the accident.

A representative of the Republic Airlines public relations department in Minneapolis said the accident happened when Flight 927 skidded on an icy runway when landing at the Brainerd airport. The flight was enroute to Thief River Falls via Brainerd and Bemidji.

According to the report, the airplane skidded into a snowbank and when a propeller on the turbo-prop engine struck the snowbank it separated from the engine. Fragments of the propeller entered the passenger compartment of the plane, killing one passenger, seriously injuring another and causing less serious injuries to two other passengers, the airline spokesman said.

There were 30 passengers and three crew members on board the plane at the time of the accident. Representatives of the Federal Aviation administration were on site to begin investigation this morning and investigators from the national transportation safety board were to travel to Brainerd by car from Minneapolis this morning. The airport has been closed at Brainerd since the accident.

Registration For Ice Revue Skaters Open

Registration of skaters to take part in the eighth annual Thief River Falls parks and recreation department ice revue will take place through Thursday, January 20.

Police Search For Missing Woman Here

As of publication time this morning, all available personnel from the Pennington County law enforcement center were still looking for Mildred Frizinger, 76, a resident of the Valley Home, who was discovered missing sometime after 4 p.m. on Saturday, January 8.

Mrs. Frizinger is described as being aboug 5 foot 2 inches tall, with silvery hair. Although she uses a cane and wears glasses, those items were reportedly left behind in her room. An individual matching her description was reportedly seen at approximately 5 p.m. Saturday, walking north, near the Riverside Grocery.

Any person having any information regarding her whereabouts should contact the Law Enforcement Center immediately. Mrs. Frizinger is a diabetic and may need medical attention.

MEN'S RIGHTS GROUP was formed Thursday evening in Thief River Falls as 56 people from Thief River Falls and area communities gathered in the law enforcement center meeting room. Myles Koop, who moderated the discussion and was later elected temporary chairman, is shown at left. After discussion as to whether use of the term "men's rights" in the name of the organization would alienate female supporters, the group adopted the name Northwest Men's Rights association. "Men's right are where the problem is," one person attending said. "We might as well state it like it is."

56 Attend Meeting On Men's Rights In Divorce

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Fifty-six men and women, many of whom claimed unequal treatment in divorce cases, attended the organizational meeting of the Northwest Men's Rights association Thursday evening in the meeting room of the Pennington county law enforcement center in Thief River Falls.

Myles Koop of rural Thief River Falls served as moderator for the meeting and later was elected temporary chairman. Milan Borsheim of Thief River Falls was elected acting secretary. The group seemed eager to meet again and established the first Thursday of each month as the assolcation's regular meeting date.

Committees were discussed to work in the areas of legislation, welfare, publicity and judges and members will likely be assigned to committees at the next meeting. In addition to Thief River Falls, people attended from Warren, Grygla, Roseau, Strandquist, Newfolden, Middle River, Viking and Angus. Among those attending were about 10 women.

Disappointment, anger, frustration with the system and a strongly felt need for change were evident emotions at the meeting.

"I was married for 32 years, raised six children — five of them living — my wife ran off, then sued me for half a million dollars," one man told the group: "I've been in jail three times, including once for trespassing on my own land when I needed a place to stay after being forced out of my house. They've made a criminal out of me and that's why I'm here tonight."

Another man commented on visitation rights. "I have visitation rights," he said, "but my former wife has the kids 1,000 miles away. It's a little hard to get there on weekends."

Another said that in his divorce case the court had ordered a home study by the county social services department and the study results included the recommendation that he should have custody. But the court awarded custody to his former wife. "How can a judge ignore a recommendation from a study that he ordered?" the man questioned.

Joint custody was mentioned as a means for both partners in a marriage dissolution to have influence on the children. "I had a signed agreement from my wife for joint custody when we went into court but the judge wouldn't permit it," one man said. "He told my attorney that no way was he going to award joint custody."

The term "liberal visitation" came up for discussion as well. "Visitation rights may be granted as liberal," another man said, "but the person with the children — which is almost always the woman — can exercise control. This makes it necessary to appeal through the court and that means more costs and more hassle."

Evening Lions Club Notes Third Year

Thief River Falls evening Lions club will note its third anniversary at the regular meeting Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the Terrace room of the Rex cafe. Anyone interested in joining the local service club or learning more about its activities is welcome to attend.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Paul Arlyn Nordbys Are At Home In Grygla

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Arlyn Nordby are at home in Grygla following an exchange of marriage vows at a four o'clock wedding at the Grace Lutheran church in that city, and a wedding trip to parts of North Dakota.

The bride, the former Tammy Jane Sistad, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wally Sistad of Grygla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Nordby, also of Grygla.

Rev. Percy Smerek officiated at the double rink ceremony attended by approximately 350 guests. At the organ was Mrs. Joy Nordby, aunt of the groom. She played "Colour My World," for the processional and "Trumpet Voluntary," as the recessional. During the ceremony, Kim Sistad, a sister of the bride, sang "Wedding Song;" and as the couple lit the unity candle, Sandi Nordby, a cousin of the groom, sang "Through the Eyes of Love."

Wine colored bows marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white organza and Wedgewood lace featuring a tulle yoke trimmed with Venice lace, pearls and iridescents. A wide Victorian lace ruffle edged the yoke styled with a Venice lace mandarin collar. Her lantern sleeves of chiffon and lace were complemented by Venice lace appliques. Five tiers of Wedgewood lace formed her bouffant skirt which flowed into a chapel-length train. Her headpiece was a derby bridal hat trimmed with Venice lace and pearls. She carried wine colored roses in a cascade of white stephanotis.

Maid of honor was Kim Sistad, a sister of the bride. She wore a wine colored organza gown over wine taffeta styled with a ruffled neckline with bow trim, capelet sleeves, and a flared skirt in bustle effect. Her headpiece was a wine mesh hat trimmed in back with a bow. She carried three long-stemmed pink roses.

Wearing similar attire and carrying a single long-stemmed pink rose were the other attendants: Casandra Sistad and Sherry Peterson of Grygla, sister and friend of the bride; Kari Stratton, Grygla, the bride's cousin, who served as flower girl; Becky Klein, Grygla, a friend of the bride, and Carol Sistad, Thief River Falls, aunt of the bride, who were the usherettes.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, John Nordby, Grygla. Groomsmen were Bob Nordby and Mike Brateng of Grygla, cousins of the groom. Philip Brateng, Grygla, another cousin of the groom, carried the rings.

The groom wore a white tuxedo and a white ruffled shirt with a wine Sweetheart rose pinned on his lapel. His attendants and ring bearer were attired in silver gray tuxedos and white ruffled shirts tipped in wine. Their boutonnieres were wine Sweetheart roses.

Serving as ushers were Brent Klamar, Gatzke, and Jim Mitchell of South Dakota, a friend of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sistad selected a wine colored polyester knit gown featuring a blouson bodice with spaghetti straps. Topping the gown was a cream colored polyester jacket. The groom's mother wore a wine polyester knit gown with a high collar and fitted waistline. Lace and Schiffli embroidery trimmed her gown. Their identical corsages were of pink Sweetheart roses.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stratton, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Sistad, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Ole Byklum, godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Art Nordby, Mrs. Elizabeth Brateng, grandparents of the groom; and Jody Sistad, the bride's aunt, who was the bride's personal attendant.

A supper reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Leo and Jane Hoy and Tim and Yvonne Hoaas. Mrs. Maureen Nordby and Mrs. Kathy Stratton were at the guest book and Mrs. Debbie Hanson and Mrs. Cheryl Sistad served the punch.

The wedding cake, baked and decorated by Janice Peterson, was cut and served by Mrs. Gail Kotrba and Mrs. Carol Lee. Mrs. Vivian Sunsdahl and Mrs. Arlene Brateng poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Stephanie Hoy, Angie Stratton, Tracey Stratton, Kristi Peterson and Terri Sistad. At the gift table were Letti Sistad, LuAnn Sunsdahl, Liza Hoaas, Deanna Kotrba and Shelli Hoy.

The bride and groom are graduates of the Grygla high school and are engaged in farming in the Grygla area.

Nathan D. G. Fanfulik Baptized at St. John

Nathan Donald George Fanfulik, son of Mr and Mrs. Donald Fanfulik of Thief River Falls, was baptized on December 19, during Sunday morning worship services at St. John Lutheran church. Rev. Allen Ashbacher officiated.

Sponsors were Jeffrey Carlson, Moorhead, an uncle of the child, and Denise Carlson, Virginia, a cousin. Witnesses were Michael and Deborah Fanfulik of St. Hilaire, uncle and aunt of the child.

The baptismal attire wore by the child was a gift from his great uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rundell of Grygla. They were guests at the dinner that followed at the Fanfulik home. Other guests were the sponsors, witnesses, the child's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fanfulik of St. Hilaire, Kevin Fanfulik, also of St. Hilaire, Val and Joel Merck, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Anderson and children of Goodridge, and Robin Twite of Virginia.

Abuse Of Food Stamps Target Of USDA Effort

Samuel J. Cornelius, administrator of the U.S. department of agriculture's food and nutrition service, says a recently expanded nationwide monitoring system will help his agency tighten the rules grocers must follow when redeeming food stamps at banks.

This will reduce the potential black market value of food stamps, said Cornelius, because it will be harder to redeem the stamps for cash at commercial banks.

Expanded monitoring also should help authorities keep better track of the $11 billion in food stamps spent each year. Cornelius said the monitoring system will help put an end to the redemption of food coupons from grocers without the required documentation.

"Because of this practice, it is possible that illegally obtained food stamps have been redeemed for dollars at some banks," he said.

While the vast majority of stores and banks comply with requirements, Cornelius said, the system will give investigators the information they need to pinpoint quickly any stores or banks that are improperly redeeming food stamps. It will also help identify any stores that are trafficking in illegally obtained food stamps.

He claimed the new monitoring system will provide a better record of how many food stamps are spent at 225,000 stores and redeemed at 13,000 banks. USDA food and nutrition service computer center in Minneapolis stores and compiles this information and makes it available to program managers.

Expanded monitoring system will directly affect stores and banks but will not affect the 7.5 million households using food stamps.

When the first phase of the system is initiated, commercial banks and federal reserve banks will make administrative changes in the handling of food stamps. These changes will facilitate the flow of information on food stamp redemptions to the USDA computer.

Next, over an 18-month period, new food stamp redemption certificates will be issued to all grocers participating in the program. New forms will be easier to fill out than old forms, and are designed to reduce incidence of error.

Commercial banks will be issued new forms that will immediately flag them if they redeem coupons without documentation.

Then, the USDA food and nutrition agency will install a sophisticated optical scanner that will automatically read the 2 million documents processed by the agency's computer center each month.

"We have tested the new system in Georgia with the cooperation of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta since April 1981. We know it works," said Cornelius.

"For example," he said, "using the new system, we determined that a number of banks had redeemed a significant amount of food stamps without proper documentation. When we informed the banks, they quickly stopped the practice."

Diabetes Signs Should Not Be Left Unchecked

"Each year insulin-dependent diabetes strikes from 7,000 to 8,000 young people throughout the United States," according to Dean K. Midboe, M.D., president of the American diabetes association in North Dakota. "Most new cases of this serious disease, for which there is treatment but as yet no cure," Dr. Midboe noted, "develop in children from five to 14 years old, and most occur between late fall and early spring."

Medical expoerts expect that over the next three months about 4,000 children may develop this chronic, lifelong disease. Increased thirst, frequent urination, and weight loss are three main symptoms of this disease.

American diabetes association urges that persons having these symptoms should be checked for diabetes by a qualified physician. If this type of diabetes is not detected and treated, it will progress to diabetic acidosis, coma and death. In addition to increased thirst and urination, symptoms of diabetic acidosis include nausea, vomiting, fatigue, and shortness of breath. If you have these symptoms, be sure to let your doctor know.

American diabetes association says that greater public awareness of the symptoms of diabetes, and prompt medical treatment when these symptoms occur, can save the lives of thousands of children and young adults who develop diabetes each winter.

For more information on diabetes, contact the American Diabetes Association, North Dakota Affiliate, Inc., P.O. Box 234, Grand Forks, ND. 58201.

Exercise Is Important For Everyone

Exercise is important for everyone, including people affected by arthritis, according to the arthritis foundation. Cartilage in the joints depends on exercise to gain nourishment. Without exercise, cartilage will deteriorate, muscles and tendons will weaken, and calcium loss to the bone will occur, a foundation spokesman said.

Persons with arthritis must choose their exercises according to the kind of arthritis they have, the foundation spokesman added. Those with inflammatory kinds like rheumatoid arthritis should perform range of motion exercises several times daily, up to their pain limit, in order to prevent permanent stiffness. Swimming, although not in a cold pool, is also an excellent exercise.

Arthritis foundation has a special message on exercise and arthritis that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Free literature on exercise is available to callers.

Student Paper's Rights Intact, Rules Court

U.M. News Service

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Renner has ruled that the University of Minnesota did not violate the constitutional rights of the Minnesota Daily when it changed the students' fee for the newspaper from mandatory to refundable upon request.

Daily alleged that the change in fee collection was retribution for a June 1979 "humor" issue, which was roundly criticized for being obscene, racist and anti-religious. After the university regents changed the fee collection system in May 1980, the Daily filed a lawsuit claiming the action violated its right to freedom of the press under the first amendment and state constitution and the rights of due process and equal protection under the fourteenth amendment.

Renner ruled that none of these rights were violated and ordered the Daily to pay the university some of its legal expenses.

"I am pleased with the outcome because the regents and I are strongly committed to the first amendment," said university President C. Peter Magrath, who along with the regents was a defendant in the suit. "Freedom of speech and expression are bedrock in a university, and Judge Renner's opinion confirms that these vital principles have in no way been impaired by the fee change that gives students a choice about supporting the Minnesota Daily."

There was no immediate comment on whether the Daily would appeal the ruling. "We'll have to study the judge's findings," said Christopher Ison, current editor. Three former Daily editors, the Daily's publishing board and the newspaper itself were plaintiffs along with Ison in the suit.

In his findings Renner noted that at the same time the regents approved the plan to allow students to get a refund of their Daily fee, they raised the fee from $1.80 to $2 a quarter. With the fee increase the Daily received $15,826 more in fee support during the first year the fee was refundable. The second year saw an additional $14,914 increase.

During the first two years of a refundable Daily fee, total refunds amounted to $11,723, Renner noted. Most of the Daily's revenue comes from advertising. In the year the "humor" issue was published, the Daily's total revenue was more than $1.2 million, of which $192,147 was from student fee support.

"By their actions increasing the amount of financial support from the student fees each of the years during which the refundable fee system has been in effect, the regents have demonstrated their individual and collective concern for the financial well-being of the Daily," Renner wrote in his findings.

Renner called the regents' action on the fee "a rational exercise of their legislative authority." He found "no intention on the part of the regents. . . to deprive any plaintiff of any constitutional right."

Renner also noted that even before the publication of the 1979 "humor" edition groups of students had requested the option of not supporting the Daily. Student fee collection for the university health service and for the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG) also gives students the option to seek refunds.

"One basic point should be kept in mind despite this unhappy controversy," Magrath said. "The Minnesota Daily is one of the nation's very best student newspapers, and it's a very vital part of the open and lively climate that I hope will always characterize the University of Minnesota."

Solutions To Economic Crisis Are Two-Fold

Solution to the economic crisis farmers face are two-fold, the president of the Minnesota farmers union said here today. Farmers must take the lead by proposing creative solutions, and they must also demand that congress, the President, and other leaders take responsibility for the policies they enact that are hurting farmers and rural communities, he said.

Speaking at the 41st annual MFU convention at the Radisson South Hotel, Cy Carpenter said this is a case of "fighting for our survival."

"Someone must be responsible for the plight of farm families and rural communities. We must hold accountable those people in decision-making positions. Someone is responsible for the damage to rural areas — to families, to farms, to lives," Carpenter said. He dismissed the government's theme that farm problems are due to "bad managers."

"This demand for accountability must take place across-the-board. We must meet with congressmen in our territory — so that they can view the effects of their actions, or inactions, and be held accountable for the damage they have caused."

Carpenter called on farmers to help solve the dilemma facing farmers by coming up with creative solutions.

"From our discontent must come new direction and creativity to agricultural policy. We can use existing agencies to solve problems such as low prices and surplus products. We can require USDA, as our representative, to contract for the processing of surplus farm goods. That surplus can be distributed as food to those in need; to those starving in our own nation.

"That surplus can also be used as fuel. We could burn setaside corn as fuel to dry the rest of the crop, for example. Under the current system, 20 per cent of the food is wasted after it reaches the retail level. Twenty per cent of the food we produce is buried. Certainly, using set-aside grains for fuel would be a creative and efficient way to overcome waste, to cut down on energy costs, and still not endanger the food supply in our nation," he said.

Nation cannot afford to eliminate farmers or rural communities, the farm leader said. Farmers have a unique position for proposing creative solutions.

"While our leaders may have lost this sense of community, we have not. Never has it been more important for us to control the decisions made on our behalf," Carpenter said. "We have the power to set priorities for this nation."

Minnesota farmers union is a general family farm organization - representing more than 24,000 farming families across the state. Its annual convention, where policy is drafted following a series of grass roots resolutions, will continue through November 23.

Region's Crop Harvest Statistics Compared

Findings reported in the recently completed "Region I Agricultural Commodity Movements — 1981" indicate the importance of a healthy agricultural sector to the well-being of the entire region's economy. Of the 5,465,600 acres of total land area in Region I, 84 per cent (4,583,536 acres) is considered to be land in farms. This compares with a statewide figure of 57 per cent of total land in farms. Average size of farms in the region in 1981 was 567 acres, which is well above the 1981 state average of 291 acres per farm.

Cash crop production is the dominant form of agricultural activity in Region I. Average county total cash income received by farmers for the seven counties of Region I in 1980 was $97,572,000. Of this amount, 82 per cent was derived from crops, 14 per cent from livestock and four per cent from government payments. The comparable state average total cash income in 1980 was $76,113,000 per county with an average of 45 per cent being derived from crops, 54 per cent from livestock and one per cent from government payments. Since 1975, when comparisons began being recorded in the Minnesota ag statistics yearbooks, Polk county has been the leading county in Minnesota in cash farm income from crops and has been the leading county in total cash farm income since 1979.

As shown in the table, the counties of Region I led the state in the production of several crops in 1981. Polk county has led the state in the production of wheat, barley, potatoes and sugarbeets since 1976 and in sunflower production since 1978. The other counties of Rigion I have also ranked consistently in total cash farm income since 1979.

As shown in the table, the counties of Region I led the state in the production of several crops in 1981. Polk county has led the state in the production of wheat, barley, potatoes and sugarbeets since 1976 and in sunflower production since 1978. The other counties of Region I have also ranked consistently high in the production of these crops as well as oats and flax. Roseau county is the leading flax producer in the state.

Marshall county placed first in government payments, second in wheat and potatoes, third in barley and sunflowers and sixth in sugarbeets. Pennington county was fourth in sunflower production, seventh in government payments, eighth in barley and ninth in wheat.

A great deal of variation in the region exists among the acreage harvested of the various commodity types. Wheat is by far the leading crop in terms of acreage harvested. Over half (52 per cent) of the region total is accounted for by wheat alone. Barley and sunflowers are also widely grown throughout the region, with 17 and 14 per cent of the regional harvested acreage respectively.

Although sugarbeets accounted for only four per cent of the region's total harvested acreage, they comprised 40 per cent of the total 1980-1981 tonnage produced in the region. This is followed by wheat which at 1,542,657 tons accounts for 32 per cent of the regional total crop production of 4,805,328 tons.

The heavy tonnage associated with sugarbeet production is shown by comparing the tons per harvested acre for the various crops. At 16.6 tons per harvested acre, sugarbeets are by far the heaviest, exceeding the regional average of 1.7 tons per harvested acre by nearly a factor of 10.

Potatoes and corn, at 6.8 and 1.9 tons per harvested acre respectively, are the only other commodities to exceed the regional average. At the other extreme is the very light density of flax, at .3 tons per harvested acre. Sunflowers, at .6 tons per harvested acre are also considered to be a bulky, low density commodity. Wheat and barley are nearly equal, at 1.1 and 1.2 tons per harvested acre respectively.

The most dramatic change in crop production in the region has been the rapid popularity which sunflowers gained during the latter half of the 1970s. The advent of hybrid varities which provided more volume per acre of oil seeds and the favorable growing conditions of the Red River Valley promoted sunflower development.

Since the peak production in 1979, sunflower production has been declining in the region. This may be attributable to several factors including in initial overexpansion of production, stalk rot in 1978 and midge problems during the dry year of 1980. Sunflower production has shown signs of stabilizing during the last couple of years. Future market demand will largely dictate their future use.

Specialty crops such as dry, edible beans, timothy and bluegrass are grown in particular localities throughout the region. Corn and soybean acreage has increased in recent years due to the introduction of early maturing varities. Continued expansion of these more intensely cultivated crops will depend in large part on continued development of these early maturing varieties. Continued expansion of these more intensely cultivated crops will depend in large part on continued development of these early maturing varieties. Interest has also been recently expressed in growing selected crops for energy production.

56 Attended Meeting On Men's Rights

have had a divorce and felt they got a bad ruling from the judge?" Koop asked of the group. A show of hands indicated 13 with such an opinion.

"How many men went into their divorce proceedings with the feeling that they had a chance to get custody?" the question was asked. One had was raised. "Other than being told by their attorney?" The hand was lowered.

A number of complaints were made about divorce laws. "The way it stands now," one man said, "if a person files for divorce, that person can have the other partner thrown out of the house. The law should be changed so that the person who files for divorce is the one who has to leave. That is the person who wants the marriage to end — why should the other person have to leave?"

Changes in what were considered to be "liberal welfare laws" were also favored by a number of people in attendance. More than a dozen indicated that they believed easy access to child support through welfare agencies had contributed to their divorces.

The Martha Rogers Ripley alliance for battered women in Thief River Falls also came in for criticism. Opinion was expressed that the shelter did not have qualified counselors and was more interested in helping women get property settlements, child support and welfare benefits than in saving marriages.

Regarding suitability of either parent to provide custody of children, complaint was made that men were not given a period of custody time to prove their ability to provide care. "It is assumed the woman can care for the children but a man has to prove that he can," one man said. "And how is he to prove it if the woman has custody of the children from the time a divorce is filed."

"Judges say they give equal enforcement to their orders," another man said, "but they don't. They will order back payment of support if payments are missed, but have you ever heard of one ordering accumulated visitation if visitation has been denied?"

One of the men attending expressed the opinion that the person who runs away from a family should forfeit the property left. One of the women attending agreed, saying her husband had deserted her and her family. And she defended the battered women's shelter, noting that she had put up with abuse for three years without any place to go. "I wish it had been here four years ago," she said.

Koop had opened the meeting by saying it was the goal of the people calling the meeting to gain equality in the system in the areas of child custody, child support and division of property. Those goals will be considered at the meeting of the association February 3 at 7:30 p.m. Because of the size of the group, it is expected to hold the meeting in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Sparby Named To Legislative Committees

"As a farmer myself," he said, "I am very concerned with farm problems and the problems our agricultural communities are facing. I am pleased at the chance to work on some solutions this session."

Chairman of the agriculture committee, Representative Steve Wenzel, DFL- Little Falls, said, "There are going to be many serious issues for the agriculture committee to work on this session. We are indeed furtunate to have someone with Representative Sparby's background and experience on the committee as we seek to resolve the problems facing Minnesota's farmers."

If anyone has questions or concerns about the issues dealt with by these committees or any matters to come before the Legislature this session, Sparby said, he can be reached at his legislative office, Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Airlines Make Final Proposal To Council

calculated at a 50 per cent load factor, noting that all seats would be guaranteed to Thief River Falls passengers, providing that reservations were made 72 hours in advance.

Bemidji proposed a one-way fare to Minneapolis of $85. Revenues to the city would include $7,132.40 for terminal rent, $10,000 for hangar rent, and two per cent of its on-line revenue at $7,778.55, for a total revenue to the city of $24,910.95. Subsidy requested from the civil aeronautics board would be $241,441.

In addition, the airline proposed to spend $12-15,000 on advertising and promotion in its first year of operation, and would have three employees stationed here, including three counter people, six pilots and maintenance persons.

Mayor Carlson questioned the airline representatives regarding their hopes and dreams for the future, to which President Larry Diffley responded that "every airline hopes to become bigger," but noted that they were primarily concerned with providing good service, adding that it depended on the future of the region. "As the region grows, we hope to grow with it," he said, "but not so soon as to go broke."

Mesaba Airlines President Robert Swenson spoke for his company, also calling on Eugene Voight, director of maintenance, and Allan Hann, director of marketing, in their areas of expertise.

Mesaba proposed to provide three daily round trip flights using a 15 passenger Beechcraft-99, between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis, Monday through Friday, with two flights on Saturday and Sunday. All flights would be nonstop. They projected to carry 4,900 passengers originating in Thief River Falls, with a one-way fare of $80.

Revenues to the city would include $7,852.40 for terminal rent, $10,000 for hangar rent, and two per cent of its on-line revenue at $7,840, for a total revenue to the city of $25,692.40. Subsidy requested from the civil aeronautics board would be $495,072.

In addition, Mesaba proposed to spend $20,000 for advertising and promotion in its first year of operation. Locally stationed employees would include three ticket people and approximately five or six other employees. He also noted that crews would be staying overnight in the city, which would mean an additional $1,500 to $2,000 in revenue.

Voight emphasized that the turbine engined planes used by the company had proven to be more dependable than piston-engined aircraft, and Swenson claimed that even if a flight had to be grounded for mechanical reasons, with five planes in their system, by delaying two flights for an hour, they could provide a backup aircraft to make the flight. He also noted that the airline's plans for the future included further expansion, stating that they already had larger aircraft on order.

Hann noted that additional incentives would be offered by the airline to passengers in the form of promotional fares, including excursion fares at $120 for a round trip, plus a $60 rate for military and senior citizens.

Mayor Carlson thanked the airlines for attending the meeting, adding that he had inquired about opinions of Mesaba Airline's service in other cities which it served. He noted that he had received nothing but positive comments in regard to their operations.

He noted that the council will make its final recommendation to CAB this week, which should result in a decision by that organization by the middle of February. Whichever airline is selected, airlines not chosen to provide service and the city of Thief River Falls will have the right to appeal that CAB decision.

Gardening Is Considered Top Leisure Activity

Home vegetable gardening is America's number one outdoor leisure activity, according to a Gallup survey commissioned by the National Association for Gardening. More Americans are gardening than bicycling, golfing, jogging or playing tennis.

In 1982, 38 million American households grew all or some of their vegetables in outdoor garden plots. That means that about 46 per cent of American households have vegetables gardens.

The Gallup survey also shows:

+Vegetable gardening has been growing by one million households a year, though in 1981 gardening gained an unprecedented four million households where it remains at its current high level.

+ About 1.7 million acres of land in the U.S. are committed to home vegetable gardens. This is equal to about one-third the land committed to commercial vegetable production.

+ Home vegetable gardens yeild about 20.5 billion pounds of vegetables a year. At average retail prices, home gardens produce about $18 billion worth of food annually.

+ The typical home vegetable garden was about 600 square feet (roughly 20x30 feet), and it yeilded $470 worth of vegetables.

+ Thirty-one per cent of urban households had vegetable gardens. Fourty-four per cent of suburban households and 45 per cent of small town households had vegetable gardens. Sixty-two per cent of rural households had vegetable gardens.

+ An additional six million households raised vegetables in containers or flower beds.

Federal Manual Features MN DOT Process

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) highway construction selection process will be featured in the Federal highway administration (FHWA) transportation planning series.

William Lake, FHWA Minnesota division administrator, said because Mn-DOT is one of the leaders in the highway construction project selection process, a report of its methods will appear in the FHWA's statewide transportation planning and management series to be published in January.

The publication presents papers primarily from state transportation agencies about statewide planning and programming activities, techniques and procedures. States with outstanding programs in these areas are encouraged to share information with others through publication in this series, he said.

This issue will focus on general and technical aspects of highway programming processes for Minnesota, Idaho, South Dakota and Wisconsin. These states' methods were selected, he said, to illustrate a broad range of technical approaches to highway programming.

In the Minnesota section, the series describes Mn-DOT's six-step programming process: highway project identification, type of highway construction classification, evaluation, program development, review and management. Evaluation criteria are based on program objectives and are explained in detail in the publication.

Fire Hazards Increase With Indoor Living

With the winter season in full swing, most of us will be spending a good deal more time inside, and with more indoor living comes the need to be more aware of home fire hazards, warns the Minnesota department of public safety.

Eighty-two per cent of all Minnesota fire deaths occur in family dwellings, mobile homes or apartments, according to state fire marshal statistics. "Every family should be prepared for fire by installing smoke detectors and fire extinguishers, and by preparing and practicing home fire drills," said Wes Werner, state fire marshal. "Most home fires can be prevented by the following practical measurers that nearly everyone can employ."

If you have or intend to buy a portable kerosene heater, make sure the unit has a U.L. or FM listing and follow the manufacturer's instructions exactly. Use only the best grade of kerosene, usually called K-1 or water clear. Never, under any circumstances, substitute any other type of fuel as this may result in a fire or incomplete combustion. Proper maintenance of kerosene heaters is also important for safe use. Remember, portable kerosene heaters are supplemental heaters only and should never be used as a substitute for your home's heating system. It is absolutely essential that sufficient ventilation be provided to avoid possible carbon monoxide poisoning.

Being inside more can result in the increased use of appliances, television, lights, power tools, hobby equipment, etc. Make certain your electrical system is up to handling the job. If you repeatedly blow fuses or trip circuit breakers, chances are your system is overloaded or the load is not properly distributed. Before using a high-wattage appliance such as an iron or a heater, be sure the circuit to be used is adequate.

Many people use portable electric heaters during cold weather which may overload wiring and present direct fire and shock hazards if they are not used and cared for properly. Always set portable electric heaters away from combustibles and in places where they will not be accidentally bumped over. Do not stand or walk too near a heater because it might set fire to clothing, especially loose, long nightgowns and robes. All heaters should have a safety switch that turns off power to the element in case they are knocked over or picked up. Older heaters lacking this feature should be replaced with safer and probably more efficient new units.

Keep applicanes in good repair and refrain from using extension cords whenever possible. Check all power cords, especially the plug and the part that enters the body of the unit. Repair or replace all faulty cords and all defective wiring and equipment without delay. Avoid the use of extension cords, but if you feel you must temporarily use one, be especially careful where it is placed. Never run extension cords through doorways, windows or under carpet where they may be damaged.

Smoking is a leading cause of fatal home fires. In Minnesota smoking and smoking materials accounts for approximately 47 per cent of fire deaths each year. Have plenty of safe ashtrays available and never put a lighted cigarette down anywhere except in an ashtray. Never smoke when you are drowsy or in bed. Make sure that there are no butts smoldering in the ashtray when you empty it. A good idea is to dump ashtrays into a metal container, which would then be emptied into a trash can outside. Avoid smoking in areas that have a lot of combustible materials, such as the attic or when using flammable liquid products. Finally, keep matches and lighters out of the reach of children.

Never store gasoline in the house for any reason. Keep gasoline in approved containers in the garage. Gasoline will ignite down to a temperature of -45 degrees Fahrenheit and so it is not necessary to keep it warm for your snowblower, snowmobile or even your car.

Wheat Noodles Gain On Rice As Thai Staple

"Please God, give me this day my daily bowl of noodles." This prayer is now heard from thousands of disadvantaged children who reside in the slum areas of Bangkok, Thailand after one of the most successful and heartwarming foreign wheat promotion activities U.S. Wheat (USW) associates has ever carried out, according to Thomas B. Mick, USW vice president for South Asia.

USW under a special financial contribution from the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, conducted a unique type of wheat flour-based food popularization program in Thailand. Arrangements were made with the instant noodle manufacturers association of Thailand, and a privately funded organization, the Duang Prateep foundation, to provide 1300 noodle meals a day, twice a week in seven schools, (six kindergartens and one primary) to underprivileged children who reside in the slums. "The response to and acceptance of a new food item (instant noodles) by the children was tremendous," stated Mick.

Wheat food consumption in Thailand is a foreign concept and thus has experienced considerable resistance, until recently, by the general populace, reported Mick. "We are constantly seeking new ideas that will effectively introduce and increase wheat food consumption," he said. "When the idea was presented to us by the instant noodle manufacturers to conduct a special six-month feeding program with the Duang Prateep foundation, which has the full endorsement of His Majesty the King and the admiration of the people of Thailand, we jumped at the chance to participate in such a novel approach to market development. Not only could we introduce a relatively new wheat food item, but also gain unlimited publicity that would reach millions of people by assisting the foundation."

Foundation was organized and is operated by Ms. Khru Prateep Ungsanthan, better know in Thailand as the "Slum Angel." Ms. Prateep, born in the slums herself, has taken upon herself to educate as many poor and disadvantaged children as possible, with no help or official recognition from the government of Thailand. Part of her program is to provide one meal a day to the students who attend her school, which to many of the children, is their only meal of the day.

Recently, Mick visited one of the schools that was serving the noodles. "I have never seen children so excited over anything as they were when they lined up to receive their noodles," he said. "The anticipation that showed on their faces reminded me of American children at Christmas." Mick added that wheat based noodles are considered a luxury item in Thailand and the students savored every bite. They liked the noodles very much and prefer them over their traditional diet of rice and curries. Noodles were served with a soup broth that included chicken meat balls to add more nutrition to the diet.

Volunteer workers at the Foundation reported that the children had eaten rice noodles before, but they now definitely prefer the noodles produced from wheat flour.

Acceptance of the noodles has been so great, that children are now begging their parents to purchase wheat noodles whenever possible, and now, even the parents themselves prefer these noodles. Instant noodle manufacturers report that sales of their products in the poorer areas of Bangkok have showed good growth as a result of this program. "The people who live in the slum areas are starting to realize that instant noodles offer a quick, good tasting meal that is relatively cheap and very nutritious," said Mick.

Mick, who is stationed in USW's South Asia regional office in Singapore, commented, "I have been involved with many successful market development activities in the past, but never one that was so personally gratifying as this instant noodle feeding program. It's the first time in my 13 years of representing U.S. wheat farmers, that I've been involved in a project that not only meets the objectives of creating a new market demand for wheat products, but also provided such a worthwhile humanitarian gesture that brought such immense pleasure to many hundreds of children."

Exhibit On Red River Trails Is Planned In RLF

New traveling exhibit, "Baggage, Peltry, and Squeak: Life on the Red River Trails," on loan from the Minnesota historical society, opens January 16, at the Minnesota wheat growers building in Red Lake Falls. Photographs from the historical society's collections and text combine to recreate a sense of the long-gone prairie fur trade era.

Trade in commodities has changed greatly since Minnesota's early days. Between 1820 and 1870, long before settlers moved into Minnesota, international trade squeaked along in oxcarts over a network of trails from St. Paul to the Red River settlement, now known as Winnipeg. Drivers of the carts were neither Indian nor white, but a nation in themselves, the mixed-bloods or metis. They supported their community on the Red River of the North by buffalo hunting and the fur trade. Every year they organized great caravans of carts to make the 400-mile trek to St. Paul for groceries, hardware, ammunition, and other manufactured goods necessary for life in the isolated North.

Burdened with "baggage, peltry and squeak," (in the phrase of one traveler in the 1860's), the carts hauled an enormous international trade for half a century before being replaced by railroads. Red River carts were made entirely of wood, and their ungreased wheels created a squeak that could be heard a mile away. Cart was sturdy and versatile, for it was tent, boat, conveyance, and home to whole families on the two-month trip over the prairie. Exhibit is about the people who traveled the Red River trails. . . drivers and their families who lived on the trails and others who merely passed over them seeking land, wealth and empire. When the Red River trade was at its peak, missionaries, journalists, and tourists all traveled the trails, and their accounts form the text of the exhibit.

Exhibit will be open free to the public Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 1 to 4 p.m. each Sunday through February 6, in conjunction with special programs on trade and culture in Northwest Minnesota.

Hospitalization Of Psychiatric Patients Is Cut

Annual evaluation for the community support program, a joint state-county program for the chronically emotionally disabled operated by the Northwestern Mental Health Care, Inc., Crookston, reflects a substantial decrease in psychiatric hospitalization days of individuals presently participating in the program.

Evaluation, which is completed annually for submission to the department of public welfare, St. Paul, is followed by an on-site visit by state office staff of the department.

Community support program is a community-based approach to providing services for people who have experienced emotional difficulties and have recurring adjustment problems. According to Carol Flinn, director of the program, it is designed to reduce costly hospitalizations and to maintain individuals at an optimal level of functioning by making effective use of existing community-based resources.

During the last evaluation period, according to Flinn, clients experienced a 64 per cent reduction in psychiatric hospital days, in comparison to the year prior to their entry into the program.

Local Community Support Program is an outreach program that started in 1980 in Polk, Norman and Mahomen counties. Program was expanded in 1981 to also include Kittson, Marshall and Red Lake counties. It is currently funded by a state categorical grant equal to 90 per cent of cost, matched with 10 per cent from the six participating counties.

"We feel we have a program that is making a positive impact on the lives of the chronically emotionally disabled in our multi-country, sparsely populated area," Flinn said. "Our hospitalization date indicates that we have a program of services that has been able to reduce the total cost for care, while at the same time, provide a program of service delivery that is normalized and close to family, friends and community."

Current staff includes three full time members, located at offices of the Northwestern Mental Health Center at Crookston, Karlstad and Mahnomen, and three part-time group facilitators. Program subcontracts with the occupational development center at Crookston to provide services designed to increase the level of vocational and pre-vocational skills of the individual.

Additional information about the program and specific services may be obtained by contacting Ms. Lois Bergman, Northwestern Mental Health Center, 110 First Street, P.O. Box 204, Karlstad, MN . or by calling (218) 436-2942.

IN 1962, NEARLY 50% OF THE FEDERAL BUDGET WENT TO OUR NATIONAL DEFENSE. YET IN 1982, $187.4 BILLION--ABOUT 20%--WENT TO DEFENSE, WHILE $372.2 BILLION WENT FOR SOCIAL PROGRAMS

THE SOVIET UNION HAS ALREADY BUILT OVER 200 MODERN BACKFIRE BOMBERS--AND IS BUILDING 30 MORE EACH YEAR. YET THE U.S. HAS NOT DEPLOYED ANY NEW STRATEGIC BOMBERS IN THE LAST 20 YEARS

Legislative Make-up

Reduction in the size of the Minnesota legislature has been discussed for a number of years. Many people tend to believe that a reduction from the total of 201 legislators presently holding office would cut costs without damaging government. We feel that any reduction would be likely to further reduce influence of rural Minnesota and concentrate representation in the metropolitan areas. Perhaps the trade-off is worth the price.

Edward Slettom, executive director of the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives, recently pointed out what the make-up of the present legislature constitutes. His comments from the MAC newsletter follow:

With the elections and recounts over, we now know what the make up of the Minnesota legislature will be when it convenes in regular session on January 4, 1983. There will be a total of 62 new legislators and at least 48 of them have had no previous legislative experience. There is a total of 201 legislators serving in the Minnesota Legislature — 67 serve in the Senate and 134 in the House. We have about a 31 per cent change in legislative personnel from the 1982 session.

The legislature will be controlled by the Democratic-Farmer Labor (DFL) legislators. In the State there are 42 DFL Senators and 25 Independent Republicans (R) Senators. In the House the numbers are 77 DFL Representatives and 57 IR Representatives. Rural areas of Minnesota will have 31 Senators serving them while the metropolitan-Iron Range Duluth areas will be served by 35 Senators. In the House the comparable figures show 61 from the rural areas and 73 from the metropolitan-Iron Range Duluth areas. There is now a total of 24 women in the legislature but only three serve rural areas.

Years ago farmers and attorneys made up over 50 per cent of the legislature. Although this percentage is less now, they account for the largest group. There are 18 farmers and 11 attorneys in the Senate. In the House of Representatives, there are 29 farmers and 12 attorneys. A group that has continued to grow is that consisting of persons involved in education either as teachers or administrators. There are 25 educators in the House and nine in the Senate.

Seeking Exemption

Following editorial is from the Philadelphia Inquirer:

The American Medical Association's success in getting what it wanted out of the U.S. House of Representatives may be an example of "the hog rule," says Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., who led the battle on the other side: "In an effort to get everything, they may have gotten nothing."

What they — the AMA, joined by the American Dental Association and the American Association of Optometrists — want is a bill providing nothing less than an exemption, for themselves and all other state-licensed professionals, from the antitrust and consumer protection scrutiny of the Federal Trade Commission.

To get it, they have been engaged in some of the most extensive — and expensive — lobbying seen on Capitol Hill in a long while. The AMA alone provided $1.7 million though its political action committee to congressional candidates this year — not, a spokesman insisted, with any thought that such contributions could "by votes."

Of course not. The medical lobby is interested in assuring high-quality medical care. And as the AMA president, Dr. William Y. Rial pointed out, Americans, polls of public opinion show, "do not want a federal bureaucracy interfering in their personal care."

Neither, however, do they want bloodletting by price-fixing, boycotts and other anti-competitive practices. The FTC has not interfered and has no intention of interfering with the practice of medicine. As FTC Commissioner David A. Clanton, a Republican, has pointed out, "our concern is limited to the economic side of professionals' 'business activities.'"

The FTC for example, has challenged such activities as the refusal of optometrists in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other states to give eyeglass prescriptions in order to force patients to buy glasses from the examining optometrists. It has intervened against the refusal of medical associations to allow hospital and other privileges to doctors working for health maintenance organizations. It successfully has challenged the collective refusal of Indiana dentists to provide X-rays to insurance companies seeking to ascertain whether the work performed on patients was necessary.

The medical lobby argues that such matters can be handled by state regulatory agencies. Anyone familiar with the complaisant ways of those agencies, dominated as they generally are by those whom they are supposed to regulate, knows that isn't so. The exemption bill now goes to the Senate, which ought to dispatch it without ceremony.

Take Lumps With Good Grace

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

Many of Minnesota's thousands of public employees, from custodians to judges to teachers, are wearing long faces these days as they complain resentfully about the pay cut they will be taking as a result of the state's budget-balancing bill signed into law last week.

The package called for all public employees to pay two per cent of the five to seven per cent pension costs which the government now contributes, over one year. It is thus in reality a two per cent pay cut.

The cut would affect pension costs now paid by city, county and state government. It is estimated that of the more than 180,000 public employees in Minnesota last year, 47,770 were employed by the state and 132,600 by local governments. The savings that cities and counties will realize will help the state through an equivalent reduction of their state aid payments.

The cuts would save an estimated $61.8 million in the state payroll, which would help solve the state's $312.5 million budget deficit.

As a result of the balancing package, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the state's major public employee union, is suing to challenge the bill, claiming that the cuts violate public employees' contracts. The Minnesota Education association has joined in the protest, charging that government workers are paying higher taxes like all Minnesotans but also taking the two per cent cut for one year.

No one wants to receive shorter pay checks. The cuts are estimated to cost public employees $20 monthly, or $240 for the year, some less and some more. However, the alternatives to those cuts were alarming.

During long negotiations, Governor Al Quie and legislative leaders debated in good will, we think, but could come up with only so many general tax increases and shifts into the next biennium. Without a plan passed by the Legislature, Quie said the only recourse would have been "unallotments," meaning a slash of the budget to take out whatever hadn't been spent.

This would have meant $45.5 million due in public school payments in December, $9 million due counties, and $16 million due local governments, along with cuts affecting all state agencies, colleges and universities. The result would have been massive layoffs.

Many in private business and industry have already taken cuts; and the many employees laid off have resulted in an increasing unemployment rate.

Unions in the auto industry and others were willing to sit down with management and renegotiate their contracts to save jobs. While it would have been generous-spirited of Minnesota's public employees' unions to act similarly and offer to assist the state with its burden, no one expected them to do that. However, the lamenting and lawsuits aren't sitting at all well with many Minnesotans.

The state will attempt to have the pension money paid by employees be tax deductible in the way payments to Individual Retirement plans are. This would take some of the sting out of the cuts. We hope, as well, that the plan is temporary.

These are tough times for everyone, and all must take their lumps with good grace.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Doctor: "I'll give you a prescription that should solve that problem."

Patient: "Will this really make me hear better?"

Doctor: "No, but it will make you cough louder."

At a commuter train station the woman driver was slumped over her steering wheel. Half laughing and half crying, she explained to an investigating policeman: "For 10 years I have driven my husband to the station to catch his train. This morning I forgot him."

To The Editor:

Last evening, Tuesday, January 4, we attended the East Grand Forks-Thief River Falls hockey game here at the Civic Center. In the row of seats behind us was a group of young men from Thief River. These young people were some of the nicest, well mannered men we have ever had the priviledge of sitting by. Throughout the entire game, there was not one word of foul language used by any of them.

We have attended a number of hockey games in northern Minnesota and across the river in Grand Forks, and more than once we have moved to a different seat or asked the young people around us to please behave. (including east side people).

I complimented your group last evening and I hope they will show this letter to their parents. They all deserve a pat on the back.

I only hope my own kids behave like these young men did when they are out in public.

To The Editor:

In reference to news item "Sparby Names Task Force to Provide Ideas" in the Monday, January 3, 1983, issue of the Thief River Falls Times.

We noticed with concern Wally Sparby's selection of a Task Force for District 1-B. Members represent as follows: Education - 7; managers - 6; farmers - 5; news and services -3; employees -3; retired - 2; clergy - 2; housewife - 1; contractor - 1.

Our concern is that he omitted the small business sector. Small business is the number one employer in the United States. We are responsible for the collection of taxes which maintain our government agencies. For instance: state gas tax, federal gas tax, federal excise tax, liquor tax, cigarette tax, sales and use tax, workmen's compensation tax, just to name a few.

It would seem justified that this sector should be represented on his task force.

Energy System Alternatives Taught At R.W.

Vocational training in alternative energy systems is available at the Red Wing energy education center, a branch of Red Wing vocational technical institute.

Post-secondary education in emerging technologies such as alternative energy is rare, but for the past four years, students at the center have had access to training in solar and wind energy systems as well as energy conservation. Program provides a combination of theoretical and practical experiences, with a considerable amount of time spent on actual or simulated experiences.

Energy center rose from buildings that had formerly been a homestead, with new construction tying together older buildings. Result was an educational facility that not only serves students interested in tapping nature's resources, but is in harmony with nature.

Red Wing energy center is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and welcomes visitors and prospective students. Persons desiring further information should contact: Red Wing Vo-Tech, Red Wing, MN. 55066; phone 612-388-8271 or 612-388-3594.

Wildlife Donations On State Tax Forms Set Record In 1982

More Minnesota taxpayers donated more money to the nongame wildlife checkoff on their state income tax and property tax forms last year than did taxpayers in any other state with a similar wildlife checkoff, according to Carrol L. Henderson, nongame wildlife supervisor, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Over 204,000 Minnesota citizens donated about $633,000 to the nongame wildlife checkoff in 1982. Colorado was second with 124,000 contributors to their nongame wildlife checkoff. There are now 20 states which allow their taxpayers to make voluntary contributions to help wildlife on their state income tax forms.

Approximately one taxpayer in nine made a donation to help wildlife. Average donation was $3.23.

Monday donated to the nongame wildlife checkoff is now being used to fund over 50 projects to help wildlife in Minnesota. Among the species benefiting from this conservation work are the bald eagle, peregrine falcon, trumpeter swan, bluebird, piping plover and loon.

This is a significant indication of how much value Minnesota citizens place on preserving wildlife. For many unhunted wildlife species like the loon, this is the only significant source of funding to help protect them.

For the current tax preparation season, taxpayers may donate to the nongame wildlife checkoff on Line 17 of the M-1 Minnesota Income Tax Return; Line 10 of the new M-1A Minnesota Short Form; or on Line 15 of the M-1PR Minnesota Property Tax Refund Return. Donations are tax deductible and people may make a donation whether or not they receive a refund.

Across the state of Minnesota, new things began happening in 1982 as Minnesota's first donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff were converted to actions for wildlife: diverse projects involved species ranging from Cricket Frogs and Piping Plovers to Trumpeter Swans.

Over 50 activities are now occurring in Minnesota using the $569,277.78 which was donated in the state's first checkoff season in 1981. This is the largest amount received by any state in the first year of a nongame checkoff and it represented donations from 170,177 people.

Joan Galli has been hired to write a comprehensive long range plan for Minnesota's nongame wildlife program. After completing the plan, she will assume the duties as regional nongame specialist for the metropolitan area and southeastern Minnesota.

Staff zoologist Lee Pfannmuller has coordinated surveys on the Blanchard's Cricket Frog, Pickerel Frog and Red-shouldered Hawk in southeastern Minnesota, Prairie Chicken and Sandhill Crane in Wadena county, Rock Vole in the northeast and small mammals in the southwest. Also studied were Yellow Rails and Sharp-tailed Sparrows in north-central Minnesota, prairie songbirds on the northwestern prairies and Mink Frogs in Itasca county.

Research included a study by Dr. Francesca Cuthbert and graduate student Terry Weins of the University of Minnesota-Duluth on the status and ecology of Piping Plovers in Lake of the Woods. The 12 nests they found this summer comprise the largest colony remaining in the Great Lakes region. The information gathered by Weins and Cuthbert will be invaluable for planning future protection of this species.

Another research project focused on a geographically isolated population of Five-lined Skinks along the Minnesota River Valley in west-central Minnesota. These rare lizards only occur on granite outcrops.

Other research projects investigated the effects of the size of aspen clearcuts on nongame birds, feeding ecology of Trumpeter Swan cygnets, behavioral ecology of Bluejays, lead poisoning in Bald Eagles and the feasibility of placing Great Gray Owl nesting platforms in potential habitat to monitor the owl's population status. A survey of bats has also been started in southeastern Minnesota.

DNR waterfowl research banding crew from Bemidji banded a record 40 loons in 1982. This brings the total number banded in the past three years to over 100 loons. This is the largest banding effort that has ever been conducted on this species.

These research projects are being carried out to help provide the baseline information necessary to determine priorities for future nongame wildlife projects. The results will also be useful in determining what kinds of habitat protection and management may be necessary for rare species.

One of the most intense athletic rivalries in the area will be renewed Wednesday when Northland community college and the University of Minnesota-Crookston square off in a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey game at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Players and fans alike get pumped up for Northland-UMC confrontations, making it one of the spirited series in the books. There's plenty of Thief River Falls and Crookston players on the two rosters to fuel the rivalry, and the other kids on the teams quickly get caught up in the spirit of things, especially when the outcome is always a key factor in the conference race.

As custom, the two teams meet each other every Wednesday over the next four weeks, alternating home sites. The Northmen and Trojans will be in Thief River Falls Jan. 12 and Jan. 26, with the teams meeting in Crookston Jan. 19 and Feb. 2.

While the rivalry remains hot, UMC has had a decided edge in the series over the last five years, winning 17 of the last 21 meetings. The Trojans beat the Northmen four of five meetings in 1981-82, including a humbling 12-5 drubbing in the finals of the 1982 MCCC state tournament before a large turnout of fans in the sports arena. Prior to that, UMC beat Northland three of four times in 1980-81; swept the four-game series in 1979-80; won three of four in 1978-79; and also took three of four in 1977-78.

Both teams will bring 3-1 MCCC records into Wednesday night's game. The Northmen are coming off a weekend sweep of Hibbing 9-5 and 6-4. They earlier split at Rainy River, winning 5-4 in overtime and losing 6-5 in the final seconds.

UMC, meanwhile, has been idle since mid-December. All four UMC games have been played against Mesabi, with the Trojans losing the first one 8-7 but winning the next three 9-4, 6-5 and 13-6.

Northmen Open Conference Play

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman, after watching his team complete its nonconference portion of the 1982-83 schedule with a 7-1 record, figures his team has a good shot at a Northwest Division title and can be in the running for a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament title as well.

The Northmen start a string of 11 MCCC games this weekend, playing road games against Northeast Division foes Rainy River and Hibbing that will count in Northland's Northwest Division standings.

"We're ready to go at it," said Engelman. "All things considered, we've played pretty well. I think with a break or two we should have a nice year."

Engelman still insists Fergus Falls is the team to beat in the Northwest Division, and he expects area rival University of Minnesota-Crookston to be a formidable foe, as well. Brainerd, the fourth Northwest Division member, is reportedly down this winter. Overall, the Northeast Division is down, too, he said, but Vermilion is expected to be competitive and Rainy River may finish second to the Ironmen, a key spot since the top two finishers in each of the four divisions across the state earn state tournament berths.

Elsewhere, the Central Division is once again loaded, and balanced, with Golden Valley Lutheran, Minneapolis, Normandale and Lakewood all in the running. Willmar looks tough in the Southern Division, points out Engelman, with Worthington, Mankato Bethany and Rochester also in the picture.

"It looks to me," said Engelman,, "like the whole state is balanced this year." He says the Northmen can be right in the thick of things, "If we can win on the road (in addition to the required home court wins), and not drop a game somewhere we should win."

Northland has been doing a lot of things well in winning seven of eight starts, but a few too many turnovers have been a little irating. "We need to concentrate on maybe sharpening our passes a little," admitted Engelman. But when you use the running game like the Northmen do and have maybe 100 possession per game, you're bound to lose the ball on occasion.

Miscellaneous

+ In his latest Section 8 hockey rankings, Frank Fee of Crookston says the No. 1 spot goes to Bemidji, followed by No. 2 Thief River Falls; No. 3 Roseau; No. 4 East Grand Forks; No. 5 (tie) Lake of the Woods and Fergus Falls. Big games in Section 8 this week feature Fergus Falls at Bemidji and Thief River Falls at Crookston Tuesday; Fergus Falls at East Grand Forks Friday; and Roseau at Thief River Falls Saturday in a match-up of two of the hotest teams in Section 8 right now.

+ Roseau forward Chad Johnson, ranked among the top Section 8 high school hockey players this winter, will be out of the Rams' line-up until at least next week after breaking a bone in his right foot in a recent game against Virginia. The Rams are scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. game that has been designated as Don Olson Appreciation Night, honoring the longtime voice of high school hockey in northwestern Minnesota at KTRF radio who has announced his retirement.

+ Bemidji climbed to No. 2 in the latest Associated Press high school hockey poll behind only St. Paul Hill-Murray, but coach Bryan Grand of the Lumberjacks told Frank Fee of Crookston he isn't surprised by the team's success. "I felt we would have a very good team, with good forwards and excellent goaltending," said Grand. As for Don Smith (22 goals, 6 assists in 8 games), Grand said, "Even I didn't expect this kind of start for Donny. He's played just spectacular." Bemidji is averaging about 1,700 people per game for five starts in the BSU arena. Crookston averaged about 600, said Fee.

+ East Grand Forks high school hockey coach Tony Palmiscno, after a 4-4 overtime tie with Thief River Falls last week, told the East Grand Forks Exponent, "Thief River Falls is a real good hockey team. They'll definitely be heard from in Section 8. Bemidji is the obvious favorite, but after that it's up for grabs. They've (TRF) got two of the better forward lines that we've faced."

THIEF RIVER FALLS defenseman Jim Geatz dived in front of a shot by Lake of the Woods wing Curt Bitter and deflected the puck away from Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin in the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game played here. Defenseman Rod Harder, who scored the first Thief River Falls goal, was also on hand to help out on the play, with center Tom Kenville watching the action, as well. The Prowlers beat the Bears 4-2 for a 4-3-1 record.

TRF Posts Hard-Earned Win Over Strong LOW Squad . . .

Prowlers 4-2 Winners Over Bears

Yes, Virginia, the 1982-83 Lake of the Woods high school hockey team is for real. The once-lowly Bears, who have made it be known they intend to be among the top finishers in this year's Section 8 race, proved their worth in front of a good-size turnout of fans in the Thief River Falls sports arena Saturday before succumbing to the Prowlers 4-2.

"We're very well satisfied with the way we played, said Lake of the Woods coach Jerry Drewes. "I thought is was a well-skated hockey game."

It was just the third loss in ten starts for the Bears, who earlier this year beat Warroad 6-3 and lost to Roseau by just a 5-4 count. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, after an 0-3 start this winter, ran its current unbeaten streak to five games, including a 4-4 overtime tie the previous time out at East Grand Forks, for a 4-3-1 record.

"Again, we're pleased to win," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, "but we don't feel we played particularly well, especially in the finishing aspect of it. We felt we had some exceptionally good scoring opportunities we should have capitalized on."

The two coaches agreed, almost word-for-word, that both goaltenders — Thief River Falls' Kerry Wollin, who had 23 saves, and Lake of the Woods' Doug Ebeltoft, who had 32 stops, played well and neither coach was happy with the number of penalties their teams took — six on the Prowlers and five on the Bears. Four of them resulted in power play goals: two apiece.

It took until the 11:32 mark of the first period for the two high-scoring teams to dent either goalie, and it was Thief River Falls defenseman Rod Harder who did the trick, sending a slap shot from the point that sailed a couple of feet off the ice past Ebeltoft, who had to contend with several players on both sides in front of the net.

A Thief River Falls power play goal made it 2-0 at 7:38 of the second period as the Prowlers worked the puck around the offensive zone until Tim Bergland scored on a hard wrist shot from the face-off circle to the right of the Bears' net.

However, just 25 seconds later Lake of the Woods responded with its own power play goal as Jeff Solheim took a feed in front of the Thief River Falls net and rammed it home at 8:33 for a 2-1 game.

It stayed that way until Tom Kenville's power play slap shot from the right point gave the Prowlers breathing room at 3:49 of the third period.

Rick Spong padded the margin to 4-1 when he slipped a soft, easy backhand shot under Ebeltoft at 12:03, but Lake of the Woods made it a 4-2 final when Solheim got his second goal of the night by deflecting a power play shot off Wollin's pads with just 38 seconds remaining.

Thief River Falls visits Crookston Tuesday and will host Roseau Saturday.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE wing Todd Bergland watched his shot hit the back of the net after Hibbing goalie Joel Troumbly missed the puck with his glove hand in the third period of Friday's hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The goal by Bergland came at the 15:48 mark of the third period, providing the Northmen with an 8-5 edge that became a 9-5 victory.

Prowlers Tip Lumberjacks On Good Defense 44-37

Thief River Falls built a 30-18 halftime lead, then was able to withstand a third quarter Bemidji rally to wind up with a satisfying 44-37 North Half Region 8AA basketball road win Friday.

While the Thief River Falls offense had its ups and downs, the Prowlers' defense played well for the full 32 minutes, pointed out winning coach Tom Hunt.

"We did a good job defensively," said Hunt. "I think our defense won it for us. Even though our offense didn't come around in the second half, our defense held us in there."

Thief River Falls started with a 15-6 first quarter lead and opened up that 12-point spread at halftime, 30-18. Bemidji, though, out-scored the Prowlers 13-4 in the third quarter as the Thief River Falls lead shrank to 34-31.

"In the third quarter we missed a lot of high percentage shots," explained Hunt. The Prowlers, he said, did a good job finding the open areas of a Bemidji zone in the first half and really didn't do badly against Bemidji's more aggressive man-to-man defense in the second half, either, except for missing the shots that were offered to

An easy 103-63 home court win over the Bemidji State University junior varsity Saturday night closed out the Northland community college basketball team's nonconference schedule with a 7-1 record.

Remaining 11 Northland regular season 1982-83 games will be played against Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) teams, including a weekend trip Friday at Rainy River and Saturday at Hibbing.

Northland had a 44-32 halftime lead Saturday, and after Bemidji managed to pull within 46-38 four minutes into the second half, expanded the margin over the remaining 16 minutes, hitting the 100-point barries for the fifth time in eight games on a Matt Fontes slam dunk rebound shot with 57 seconds remaining.

Fontes finished with 32 points and 11 rebounds for the Northmen, who beat Bemidji 93-75 earlier this year. Scott McKeever had a 20-point game for the Northmen, while Rick Van Camp had 15, Kyle Ramsey 14, Shorty Johnson had 16 rebounds and Duncan Gregory had nine assists.

"I thought we did a pretty fair job," explained Northland coach Chet Engelman. "McKeever played very well for us, again. He carried us in the first half (7-for-8 from the field). Matt had his usual fine game; Van Camp did a good job off the bench; Johnson really got on the boards strong; and Steve Halloway (8 points) had his best game he's played in a long time."

Northland shot 54 per cent from the field (47-for-87) and 69 per cent at the free throw line (9-for-13). Bemidji shot only 36 per cent from the field (27-for-76) and 60 per cent at the line 9-for-15). The Northen had a 57-43 rebound advantage and BSU topped the turnover figures 26-22.

The Northmen meet Rainy River Friday at 8 p.m. at International Falls and play at Hibbing Saturday afternoon at 2.

Northwomen Games Canceled During Weekend

Northland community college women's basketball team continues to lose games — literally — although the record of the Northwomen remains at 3-3 for the year.

Originally scheduled to play an alumni team Friday and the Grand Forks Air Force Base team Saturday in the Northland gym, the Northwomen were canceled out of both dates when the opposition couldn't come up with enough players.

Those cancelations follow an abreviated Itasca invitational tournament back on Dec. 16-17 that was turned into just a single game for the Northmen — a 63-35 win over Itasca — when the host Vikings couldn't fill the scheduled four-team, two-day event.

Northland will try to get things going this weekend for the start of the 1982-83 Minnesota Community College Conference season, a weekend trip that will feature a 6 p.m. game Friday vs. Rainy River at International Falls and a 12 noon game Saturday at Hibbing.

WITH THE PUCK on his stick, Northland freshman Tom Raymond was photographed just a split second before he shot the puck in the net for the first Northland goal against Hibbing during Friday's community college hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Raymond had a wide open net to shoot at off a rebound shot by Ladd Bjugson (right). The Northmen spotted the Cardinals a 2-0 lead but bounced back to claim a 9-5 win in the opener of the two-game weekend series.

Northmen Sweep Cardinals; Host Rival Trojans Wednesday

Buoyed by a weekend sweep over Hibbing, the Northland community college hockey team is geared for the first of four consecutive Wednesday night meetings with area rival University of Minnesota-Crookston this week, a 7:30 p.m. game in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

The Northmen ran their Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) record to 3-1 with the two wins over Hibbing in the sports arena, beating the Cardinals 9-5 Friday night and adding a 6-4 victory Saturday afternoon.

UMC, idle over the weekend, is also 3-1 in conference play.

"The guys are really keyed for it," said Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. about the Wednesday night confrontation with the defending state champion Trojans. "It was nice to get these two home wins under our belt."

Northland will also be at home this weekend with Friday-Saturday games against Mesabi.

Northland 9
Hibbing 5

Northland found a simple soluntion to win Friday's series opener in front of a good turn-out: put the puck on net. It took the Northmen until the third period to figure that out, though, as they made hard work out of a 9-5 victory.

Hibbing coach Frank Cantani didn't pull any punches when it was done, either, putting the blame squarely on the shoulders of freshman netminder Joel Troumbly. "I thought our guys skated hard, but our goaltending let us down," pointed out Catani. "I thought we played well enought to win if we would have gotten any goaltending at all."

Northland, after spotting Hibbing a quick 2-0 headstart, came back for a 3-2 first period lead, made it 4-2 in the second period and then pumped five goals past Troumbly over the final 20 minutes.

"That's the name of the game — put the puck on net," said Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. "That's what I've been preaching all year long: we need more shots on net. That's what they did in the third period."

Dorn, too, agreed that Hibbing got burned in the nets, but was quick to point out that the Northland goals all came on "good, hard shots."

Eight different Northmen scored — Tom Raymond, Scott Steinbach, Murray Jorde, Todd Graalum, Todd Gregoire, Vic Evavold, Todd Bergland and Ladd Bjugson, with Graalum, a freshman defenseman from Fargo North, getting two. Gregoire, a sophomore center from East Grand Forks, had five assists. Tom Brownell, a freshman center from Hibbing, and Scott Bellefy, a freshman wing from Taconite, both scored twice for the Cardinals.

Brownell scored on a scramble in front of Northland goalie Bill Bye just 1:18 into the game for a quick 1-0 Hibbing lead and Bing Timmerman made it 2-0 at 5:32.

"We were flat at the start," admitted Dorn," mostly due to the fact we hadn't played in three weeks. We were sloppy getting the puck out of our own end. But I thought we played better as the game progressed." Still, he said he "wasn't at all satisfied" with the overall Northland performance. "We had too many mental lapses. We didn't do a very good job getting the puck out of our end."

Raymond scored the first Northland goal when he had a wide open net for a rebound on a power play at 12:12 of the first period. Second Northland goal, scored by Steinbach, who tipped a Gregoire slap shot from the point at 15:06, came just one second after a Northland power play had expired. Jorde then put Northland ahead by scoring on a beautiful 2-on-1 rush with Gregoire, steering the centering pass past Troumbly at 18:04.

Graalum scored the only goal of the second period, catching the upper corner of the net on a long rebound with just 48 seconds remaining.

Then just 35 seconds into the third period, on a power play, Gregoire scored on a breakaway for a 5-2 cushion.

Bellefy cut it to 5-3 on a 2-on-1 rush at 4:10 and Brownell scored on a rebound with both sides skating a man short at 8:48 to slice the lead to 5-4.

However, Graalum killed Hibbing's momentum by scoring just 36 seconds later for another two-goal edge, 6-4.

Bellefy put a low backhand shot under Bye at 11:44 during a delayed penalty call against Northland as the lead shrank to 6-5, but once again Northland answered in prompt fashion as Evavold put a hard shot over the left shoulder of Troumbly on the short side a quick 34 seconds later.

Bergland clinched it by beating Troumbly, who played at Greenway-Coleraine, cleanly with a sharp 25-footer over his shoulder at 15:48 and Bjugson, shooting from the same area — to the goalie's right — scored on him low on a power play at 16:55. Both of these, and others, were saveable.

Northland 6
Hibbing 4

Like Friday night, Northland spotted Hibbing a 2-0 lead before coming back for the win, 6-4, Saturday afternoon.

Ladd Bjugson, a freshman forward from Fargo North, had a hat trick for the Northmen — scoring the final three goals for the winners. Murray Jorde, Todd Graalum and Tom Ose scored earlier for the Northmen, who trailed 2-1 after the first period, but led 4-2 going into the final period.

Bing Timmerman, a freshman wing from Hibbing high school, scored twice for the Cardinals, getting them both just 2:26 apart early in the first period for that quick 2-0 Hibbing lead.

Sophomore Greg Harder made his first start of the year in the Northland nets in place of Bill Bye, who suffered a slight muscle pull in his back Friday night. Harder responded with a 63-save effort that brought praise from Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. "Greg really came through for us," said Dorn. "I have confidence in both of our goaltenders."

MCC Girls Beat Grygla

Grygla girls got good grades on defense Thursday, but failed on offense in a 44-16 North Border Conference high school basketball loss at the hands of unbeaten Marshall County Central.

"We played good defense," reported Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "We held Sue Olson to 10 points when she's been averaging 21, so we did a good job on defense. But when you shoot 6-for-51 like we did, you aren't going to win many ball games."

Grygla mustered just eight points through three quarters before doubling that output in the final eight minutes.

Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 10-1, 24-6 and 34-8.

Winning coach Tom Mjelde thought the Nordics would receive credit for shutting down the Grygla offense. "I was really impressed with our defense," he said. "It was probably the best defensive game we've played all year. We just wouldn't let them get inside."

Nancy Nelson led Marshall County Central with 11 points, while Olson, the leading scorer in the North Border Conference with a 21.1 average, had 10. She also had seven assists and could have had more if the Nordics would have shot better, according to Mjelde.

"We had a lot of good shots that just wouldn't go in," he explained. "We missed a lot of shots inside."

Grygla did not have a scorer with more than four points.

Marshall County Central shot 43 per cent from the field (20-for-46) and just 33 per cent from the free throw line (4-for-12). Grygla shot a mere 12 per cent from the floor (6-for-12) and 66 per cent at the line (4-for-6). The Nordics had a big 51-34 rebound edge, including 23 offensive rebounds, and the Eagles topped the turnover figures, according to Marshall County Central charts, 26-21.

Grygla, 4-3, visits Warroad tonight (Monday) and hosts Badger Thursday. Marshall County Central, 6-0, entertains Roseau tonight and visits Middle River Thursday in a match-up of North Border Conference leaders.

Goodridge Defense Nets 50-35 Polar Conference Win At Oslo

Goodridge defense produced a Polar Conference high school basketball win Friday as the Huskies won 50-35 at Oslo.

"Defensively, I was really happy," reported Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "That was by far our best performance of the year defensively."

Goodridge limited Oslo to just nine first half points as the Huskies built quarter leads of 11-4, 18-9 and 33-23.

Ross Parnow, a 6-1 junior, paced the Huskies with a 20-point, 10-rebound performance. "He played probably the best game of his life," praised Nelson about the play of Parnow, even though he had to sit out most of the second quarter with foul problems.

Goodridge shot 33 per cent from the field (19-for-57) and 63 per cent at the free throw line (12-for-19). Oslo shot 48 per cent from the field (16-for-33) and 60 per cent at the line (3-for-5). Goodridge finished with a big 30-18 edge on the board against the bigger Bobcats. The teams split 40 turnovers.

"I was super happy with everybody's play," said Nelson, whose team climbed above .500 for the first time this winter at 4-3. The Cardinals visit Grygla Tuesday.

Middle River 58

Middle River watched a six-point lead evaporate in the final three minutes Saturday as the Skippers dropped a 61-58 decision at Hallock.

"I guess we just choked," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "There's really no other way to explain it. We just broke down."

Middle River also had problems at the start, trailing 12-6 at the end of the first quarter and down the 30-26 at halftime before taking a 44-38 third quarter lead.

"We played a horrible first half," noted Sparby. "We were lucky to still be in the game. In the third quarter, and up until and last three minutes of the fourth quarter, we played well."

Ahead 44-38 with exactly three minutes left, Middle River suddenly fell apart. The Skippers made four trips downcourt without getting a shot off and got out-scored 9-1 to fall behind 47-45. Then 6-5 John Bloomquist salted the game away for the Bears at the free throw line. Bloomquist, a three-year starter who led all scorers with 33 points, was 6-for-6 at the line down the stretch and 15-for-17 at the line for the game.

"He killed us," acknowledged Sparby.

Kevin McKeever led Middle River with 18 points while Kevin Roppe added 12.

Middle River shot 40 per cent from the field for the game (23-for-58) and 55 per cent at the free throw line (12-for-22) where Hallock was shooting 60 per cent (19-for-28).

The Skippers, now 2-3, will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Tuesday and entertain Warroad Friday.

MCC 46

Marshall County Central took on a strong East Grand Forks squad Friday and came out on the short end of a 67-46 ball game at Newfolden.

"We were really impressed by East Grand Forks," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "I can't imagine anybody better than them in northwestern Minnesota."

Marshall County Central stayed with the much taller East Grand Forks squad in the first quarter, trailing just 18-14. And the Nordics might have even had the upper hand if it hadn't been for 6-6 sophomore Warren Menge of the Green Wave, who scored eight points underneath as the Marshall County Central defense kept a close watch on 6-5 Dale Johnson and 6-3 John Miller, normally the top Green Wave guns.

"That wrecked our defense," said Ueland.

As the game wore on, Johnson and Miller made their presence felt, with Johnson netting 23 points and Miller 13. Menge wound up with 14.

"They were extremely consistent," explained Ueland. "They took the ball inside on us very well."

East Grand Forks pulled out to a 35-24 halftime lead and made it 50-34 in the third quarter.

Scott Anderson had 13 points to lead the Nordics, whose offense was pushed away from the basket by the tall Green Wave defenders, resulting in a 21-for-69, 30 per cent shooting night.

Still, Ueland felt his team did an admirable job against the heavily-favored East Grand Forks squad. "It probably could have been the best game we've played all year, outside of our shooting percentage," he said.

East Grand Forks shot 58 per cent from the field (30-for-52) and 54 per cent at the free throw line (7-for-13) where the Nordics were 4-for-8. Despite the size advantage, East Grand Forks did no better than a 29-26 edge on the boards and topped the turnover charts 18-11.

Marshall County Central, 2-3, will be at Stephen Tuesday and will host Kennedy Friday.

Grygla 42

Lake of the Woods' size advantage was too much for Grygla to handle Friday as the Bears beat the host Eagles 52-42 in North Border Conference play.

Grygla had a 15-10 first quarter lead, but fell behind 25-17 at halftime and trailed 36-25 at the end of the third quarter.

"Their height was what made the difference in the game," explained Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "Our press had been our most effective weapon, but they just threw the ball right over the top of our players. They're a real good club. They could be the best team in the conference."

Joe Krouss, a 6-5 junior, scored 20 points for the winners. Grygla' 5-6 Jeff Klein ended up trying to defense Krouss most of the night and did a good job, said Johnson. "He played an excellent game defensively against Krouss. Give him a lot of credit. Krouss got 20, but if it wasn't for Klein, he would have had 30," pointed out Johnson. Mike Brateng scored 14 to lead Grygla.

Grygla shot 34 per cent from the field (19-for-56) and 44 per cent at the free throw line (4-for-9). Lake of the Woods shot 36 per cent from the field (19-for-53) and 56 per cent at the line (14-for-25). The Bears had a 32-25 rebound advantage.

Grygla, 1-4, hosts Goodridge Tuesday in a renewal of a spirited area rivalry.

EVIDENCE that all those fish houses on the river in front of the Eighth Street bridge are there for a reason was brought in Thursday by Roger Hiller, Thief River Falls. DNR NEWS

Catfish Stocked

A total of 365,362 catfish were stocked by the Department of Natural Resources in Minnesota lakes and rivers during 1982 according to Dick Hassinger, fisheries chief.

Fish were of fingerling and yearling sizes and were stocked in 17 lakes and three streams in the southern one-half of the state.

Hassinger said that Ripley Lake in Meeker county and Allie Lake in Renville county received 52,000 channel catfish each — the largest stockings during the year. Other lakes receiving large numbers of channel catfish included Clear Lake in Meeker county (51,680) and Big Swan Lake in Meeker county (32,000). Des Moines river in Jackson county was stocked with 10,260 fish.

Number of fish stocked in other waters ranged from 1,000 to over 25,000 per lake or stream.

Many of the catfish were obtained by the DNR from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Flathead catfish, which are known to prey heavily on bullheads and rough fish, were stocked in waters where studies are being conducted on biological control of rough fish. These flathead catfish were produced in the state fish rearing facilities in Waterville.

Catfish are highly regarded as a food fish in southern states, but few Minnesota anglers have had an opportunity to eat them.

Whitewater Park

Several field trips are being offered this winter at Whitewater State Park in southeastern Minnesota, some involving the use of skis or snowshoes.

Department of Natural Resources said the Saturday trips are scheduled for January and February. Those interested in participating are asked to call the park for reservations at 507-932-3007 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on week days, or write: Interpretive Services, Whitewater State Park, Route 1, Box 256, Altura, MN 55910.

There is no charge for the field trips, however, a motor vehicle permit is required to drive into the park and may be purchased at the park office at a cost of $3 for a bi-daily permit or $10 for an annual permit.

Included in the field trips are a visit to an historic stone house built before Minnesota became a state, a viewing of eagles and waterfowl, exploring caves, observations of wild turkeys and winter photography.

Trips are scheduled for Jan. 8, 15, 22 and 29; and Feb. 5, 12, 19 and 26. Dave Palmquist, Whitewater park naturalist, said 15 pairs of snowshoes are available for the program but participants must furnish their own skis and transportation.

If snow conditions are not suitable for skis or snowshoes the trips will be made on foot.

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

MISTER MANN: My farm ponds produce some excellent fishing but, man, am I plaqued with weeds! Got any help for this kind of problem?—Fishin' Farmer

HI WEEDY: Yep, I know two ways to control weeds in farm ponds. One is proper use of fertilizer or herbicides, the other is the use of the white amur carp. Consult your state fisheries biologist about both of these, he might have just the answer.

OH TOM: What are your thoughts on a 14-inch bass limit being imposed by some tournaments?—Bassin' Man

HELLO BASSIN' MAN: It can be good on one lake, bad on another. I believe in letting qualified fishery biologists in each state set a size limit based on careful study and analysis of each lake.

DEAR BRER TOM: Is it true the faster you wind a crankbait the deeper it will run?—Ol' Clunker

HEY CHUNKER: Not necessarily so. The lighter your line the deeper your crankbait will run. Also, sticking your rod tip under water will help drive it deeper.

HELLO TOMBO: A friend told me she caught a northern pike from Georgia's Lake Seminole. I say she's fibbing. Whatchoo say, you're the expert?—Fishin' Fanny

FANNY GAL: Don't judge your friend too harshly, now. She didn't catch a northern pike but she did catch a close lookalike, a big chain pickerel. There are some whoppers in Seminole, and like their cousins, the northern pike, they belong to the pike family which also includes the mighty musky.

Extinction, A Problem With No Easy Answer

by William G. Schulz
Smithsonian News Service

They leave quietly. Most go unnoticed. Few people mourn their immediate loss, yet all of us are profoundly affected by it. They are the animal and plant species our planet loses every day — forever.

Figures are dismal. An estimated five to 10 million species of plant and animal life, the majority still unidentified — inhabit the Earth. By the end of this century, more than one million will have vanished. At that rate, the Earth is losing nearly one species an hour, according to such experts as Dr. Norman Myers, a conservation scientist who has spent 20 years studying the situation in Africa and whose book, "The Sinking Ark," has called attention to this alarming problem.

Extinction was the topic that brought Myers and other prominent scientists to the Smithsonian's national zoological park in Washington, D.C., for a recent symposium, "Animal Extinctions: What Everyone Should Know."

"What happens to the animals on this Earth ultimately happens to us." With those words, National Zoo Director Dr. Theodore H. Reed set the grave tone of the conference. A zoo, he noted, is an appropriate place to discuss extinction. "For some animals; zoos are the only hope there is."

Dr. David Challinor, assistant secretary for science at the Smithsonian Institution, put it this way: "Extinction is the norm. Survival is the exception. Perhaps two-thirds of all the animals that ever existed are now no more."

Extinction is, in fact, a natural process, but before humans began heavily altering the environment, species died off at a very slow rate, a result of gradual processes such as changes in the Earth's global climate, sea level and vegetation. "Today, however, we can no longer attribute the increasing decline in our wild animals and plants to 'natural processes,'" the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service states.

Rather, human beings are the major cause of today's situation. "There are too many people," claimed Dr. Elliot Norse, former director of science and policy at the center for environmental education in Washington, D.C. At least four billion people live on Earth, and another two billion could be added by the year 2000. These increasing human numbers lead to "habitat disruption," the main threat to wildlife.

Conservationist Myers defined this disruption as "any significant modification of natural environments and life support systems." When tropical forests (where nearly half of all animal and plant species live) are cleared for timber, when marshes are drained for construction projects or waterways polluted, some form of life will probably perish or become threatened. Modern technology has accelerated the entire deadly process.

But what is it about animals like the cheetah, the blue whale or the black rhinoceros that keeps them hovering on the brink of extinction, while other animals like cockroaches, rats and house sparrows thrive? Biologists point to the reproductive differences between large mammals and the so-called "pest" species.

Typically, the "pests" are opportunistic species. As individuals, they are short-lived but they reproduce at very high rates. They adapt readily to new environments and can survive almost any human alteration of nature. The house mouse is the classic case.

At the other extreme are large mammals like the cheetah, which exploits its environment efficiently, but produces fewer offspring than the pests and cares for its offspring longer. Since there are longer gaps between cheetah generations, the habitat can support only stable populations. This harmony is exceptionally fine-tuned. Once the environment is disturbed or destroyed, so is the cheetah.

Not surprisingly, humans fit into this same general category. "We must never forget," Challinor said, "that humans, too, are susceptible to extinction."

One reason so many species are gone or threatened is that people fail to recognize their potential value, beyond an aesthetic one. "Organisms have to be looked at very carefully before being called useless," Norse pointed out.

This is especially true of plants, which are often overlooked, even when they are endangered. For instance, Zea diploperennis, a very rare but hardy species of wild corn discovered in 1977 in Mexico, can be crossbred easily with domestic corn (an annual species), eventually producing a type of perennial corn that is phenomenally resistant to damaging viral diseases, according to Dr. Hugh H. Iltis of the University of Wisconsin-Madison. However, like many endangered plants, Z diploperennis is found only in a small, isolated area — in the Sierra de Manantlan. Iltis and others fear that, without intensive study and appropriate protection, such localized species will soon become extinct.

What can be done about the vanishing species problem? There are, according to the experts, two different approaches: preservation and conservation. Preservation can help save individual species; conservation of natural environments can prevent countless others from moving so dangerously close to extinction.

In the preservation area, zoos play a special role. According to Dr. Ulysses Seal, a University of Minnesota expert in the science of rebuilding small populations of animals in captivity, the challenge facing zoos is to design environments and mating systems that will sustain indefinitely healthy animal populations in captive facilities. Zoos not only provide the public with information about endangered species but also conduct research on individual species that can help save those animals still in the wild. "Guiding principle," Seal continues, "is ultimately to return to the wild."

Dr. Robert Jenkins, vice president of The Nature Conservancy in Arlington, VA., admits that many of his group's strategies are like other emergency preservations attempts. Conservancy identifies and acquires land containing isloated pockets of endangered plant and animal species — a short term solution, he acknowledged.

"The world is closing in on the wildlife of East Africa very fast," Myers said. And, for that reason, he proposes a more radical approach to preservation and conservation — a plan known as the "triage strategy." Term "triage" comes from the World War I medical practice of French doctors who found they had more battle casualties than could be treated with available medical resources. Each injured soldier was assigned to one of three categories: Those who could be helped by medical attention, those who could probably survive without attention and those who would probably die regardless of medical attention. Those in the first category absorbed all the medical services available; the others were ignored. Myers insists that a similar strategy for threatened species "would enable conservationists to make the best use of their finances and skills."

Another part of his strategy is "cropping", systematic harvesting of some herds of non-endangered wildlife in Africa. Primary goal is to keep the herds from becoming overpopulated and further destroying habitat. Secondary goal is to help provide food for a growing number of Africans who would otherwise apply pressures on their governments to open the animal preserves for farming — a situation that would surely wipe out many species. This controversial technique of game management would produce thousands of tons of canned meat, enough to feed hungry Africans. Surplus meat could be exported to other continents to generate funds to maintain the animal preserves.

Myers, as well as many others, is clearly pained by this kind of last resort to save some of the majestic African wildlife. Symposium audience listened in collective horrified silence as he described the cropping by shooting of a herd of elephants in the Tsavo National Park in Kenya.

"They were screaming," Meyers related. "They weren't just trumpeting, they were screaming. And, when elephants make as much noise as they can because they are very frightened, the noise is as if there is no air, as if the whole Earth is being torn apart."

"Many tough decisions will have to be made," Myers notes in "The Sinking Ark." "Nobody will like the challenge of deliberately consigning certain species to oblivion." But, Myers says, man, through his actions, is deliberately consigning large numbers to oblivion anyhow, so "he might as well do it with some selective discreation."

Regardless of what choices are made, experts agree that today's extinction problem is a complex one and that solutions for saving the diversity of life on Earth will require the diligent efforts of many nations and wildlife organizations as well as individuals. Several speakers at the symposium suggested that educating the public, which was the symposium's major goal, is probably one of the most important priorities. As Myers has written: "The question is not whether we can afford to support conservation of the natural heritage. Rather the question is, can we afford not to support it."

Students Read In Battle To Beat Disease

Students in a number of Thief River Falls area schools will be reading more than usual this month, and for a lot of good reasons, as they participate in the Multiple Sclerosis (MS) Readathon.

MS Readathon is a unique motivational reading program in which students sign up sponsors, read books throughout the month and collect pledges for the fight against multiple sclerosis, an often disabling disease of the central nervous system which affects people aged 15 to 50. Minnesota ranks second in prevalence of the disease in the United States.

As part of the MS Readathon, educational assemblies on issues and rights of disabled persons will be presented in many elementary schools in Minnesota to encourage handicapped awareness, thereby giving the students a "reason to read." Students will also be eligible for many great prizes, including the opportunity to bring their families to a celebrity "Dinner of Champions" with Minnesota Viking, Matt Blair.

Community support of students participating in the program is important to encourage reading and a good feeling about helping others. Person desiring further information about the program or details on how businesses can provide matching pledges for local students may call 1-800-582-5296, toll-free.

Farm Computer Use Gains With Cheaper Units

A successful farm relies on accurate and timely information. Computer-oriented "information systems" are rapidly making their way into the farming industry as farms become fewer in number, larger in size, and thus more competitive, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Since larger farms can use computers more economically, they will likely pioneer use of computers in the ag industry.

Computers are going the way of calculators. A decade ago, a pocket calculator capable of simple arithmetic cost $100. Today, they can be found for $5.

Home computers (microprocessors) are on many farms today. They're self-contained and programs are available or farmers can write their own. While initial cost is high right now, operating costs are low. They're best used in repetitious processes or where data storage is important.

They can analyze farm management problems, store large amounts of data, control devices like gates and pumps, and do many jobs that normally occupy much of a farm operator's time. As with the calculators that preceded them, their capabilities are rising while their cost is decreasing.

An alternative: the interactive terminal, which is less expensive. They don't store data but instead rely on a phone hook-up to a central computer, where programs and data are stored. The farmer pays a monthly user fee and sometimes a special program fee.

Farmers using this system may have access to more information than those using the home computer. By sharing costs with other users, the access to this information may be less expensive. Types of information available on this system: stock and commodity market quotations, market news services, feed blending, animal nutrition plans, etc.

Our society has become "information-oriented" and information has become a product to be purchased like any other. Farmers are becoming more competitive managers and demanding more information and analysis. If computers prove to be a cost-effective information system, they will be the system of choice today and their use will increase.

Holthusen Has Job Promotion

Johnny Holthusen, an employee of Thief River Jobbing company since 1969, when he began working in the warehouse and as a relief driver for the route salesman, has been promoted to a position in charge of the company's sales.

Holthusen, 34, has been working in the company's office since 1981. The business wholesales confections and tobaccos and has five salesmen covering northwestern Minnesota. Johnny and his wife Barbara reside on route five and have three daughters, Kristy, Keri and Heather.

Since 1928, when national statistics first became available, nearly one-half million pedestrians have died in traffic accidents.

Despite Yields, State Slips In Crop Rankings

Minnesota's 1982 spring wheat yields tied last year's record of 40 bushels per acre. Although production of the state's all wheat and spring wheat were lower in 1982, Minnesota retained its number seven ranking in all wheat and its number two slot in spring wheat.

Average oat yields were the second highest on record, making for a 1982 crop of over 107 million bushels. Nonetheless, Minnesota lost its number one oats crown to South Dakota and now places as the second largest producer.

Minnesota's average barley yield of 58 bushels per acre was a record. With fewer acres harvested, however, output dropped 12 per cent and Minnesota moved from third to fourth place in production.

The 1982 state rye crop was 14 per cent higher than 1981 and yields were the second highest on record. But North Dakota, with a large acreage boost, ousted Minnesota from its Number two rye ranking and the state moved to third place, according to the annual small grain summary published in late December.

Library Seeks More Labels For Collection

Northwest regional library headquarters has announced that it is making progress with participation in the Campbell's Soup "Labels for Education Program". The library has set a goal of collecting 19,400 Campbell product labels which it can then redeem for a carousel slide projector.

The library often has need of such a projector and has always had to borrow a unit from the county extension office.

"So far, we've collected 14,000 labels and we are very thankful for the enthusiastic response we have received", said Paul Lutenske, assistant director of the library.

"We would particularly like to thank the people at Trinity Lutheran church, who have donated over 9,000 labels. If this response continues, and we certainly hope it does, we should reach our goals by the February 12 deadline."

Labels from soup and other products of the company may be left at the Library at 101 East First street.

Fourth Budget Bill Passed MN. Legislature

June 30, 1983 is the date on which the state budget has to balance. Legislators have been planning to meet that deadline since January, 1981.

For the fourth time since January of '81, legislators have passed a bill to rearrange spending and taxing so that the budget will balance by that fiscal biennium closing date of June 30.

On December 10, during the third special session of 1982, lawmakers passed HF4, a bill that raises the sales tax from five to six per cent until June 30, 1983, and the income tax surcharge for the same period from seven to 10 per cent. Also under the new law, corporations will conform to federal tax laws on certain transactions sooner than they planned, and pay telephone transactions will be taxable.

School districts will have to use some of next school year's property tax money to pay this year's bills. State departments will see more budget cuts. State will pay two per cent less toward public employee pensions. Employers will contribute an added two per cent from their salaries.

Bill similar to HF4 failed to pass the House on December 7. That bill asked public employees to pay 2.5 per cent of their income into pension funds, added the sales tax to long-distance telephone calls, and required property owners to pay taxes a month earlier.

Financial Plan Should Include Overall View

If you've been planning how to reduce your 1982 federal income tax bill, don't quit while you're ahead. Now is also a good time to review your entire financial situation, says the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs).

Your net worth should increase from year to year. So before you start making New Year's resolutions to control your spending more tightly, evaluate your budgets for spending and saving. Draw up a detailed plan for good money management.

First determine your current net worth. Not only will this tell you the amount of money you have for investments and acquisitions, but it will also reveal whether you're increasing or decreasing in value.

To find this figure, first list your assets. They include real estate, cash in savings and checking accounts, bonds and certificates, stock holdings, home furnishings, clothing and autos or boats. Then list your liabilities which include debt or loan payments, taxes due, and rent or mortgage payments. Subtract your liabilities from your assets to find your net worth. If you compare this year's figure to last year's and find you're not any better off, a realistic look at your spending habits might be in order.

Your next step, CPAs note, is reviewing your budget. Using your 1982 budget and estimates of your expenses for 1983, set up a practical budget for the first quarter of the new year. Or, if you didn't have a budget last year, add up what you spent during the last three months of 1982 for necessities, such as food and clothing, transportation and utility bills, as well as the cost of entertainment and recreation.

Now decide where your expenses might increase or decrease. For example, if you entertain often during the holidays, you probably spent more on food than you usually would. That amount should be reduced for the next few months. Or, if predictions are for a colder than normal January, you might have to increase your allotment for heating bills.

More important than seasonal adjustment of your budget, CPAs stress, is a reassessment of your priorities and use of available funds. Say, for instance, that you borrowed continuously from your food money or savings to purchase clothing. If buying clothing is a priority need right now, you should increase your clothing allowance.

But, CPAs warn, if your spending habits disregard your budget completely, you might have underbudgeted all your needs. Allow some money for unexpected expenses, to take advantage of sales, emergencies, such as car repair, and the occasional impulse purchase. But be sure to include a set amount for saving.

Once your budget is complete, plan to invest the money you will save. Set goals for yourself. And remember, whether it's for eventual purchase of a house or just a growing nest egg, your money should never be dormant. Investigate savings accounts, as well as other investment opportunities to find one that suits your liquidity needs and provides the best interest or return.

Your planning should encompass present, future and long term needs, CPAs say. Review your plans for retirement, educational needs of your children, life insurance coverage, and estate planning. If you currently find yourself paying high taxes on investment interest, but have no established fund for your retirement or your child's education, now is the time to take definite measures. Perhaps you would benefit from setting up a trust for your children where the money is transferred to them and, since they have less income, is probably taxed at a lower rate. Or perhaps you should set up an individual retirement account for yourself and reduce your tax bill with yearly contributions of up to $2,000.

Evaluate your total financial situation annually, CPAs advise. Using basic money management tools such as a budget, and a balance sheet to determine your net worth, you can control your spending now, and save toward future goals.

Storytime Is Offered Again At The Library

Northwest regional library will resume storytime on January 19th. It will be held every Wednesday at 10-10:30 a.m. and 1-1:30 p.m.

All pre-school children between the ages of three and five, not enrolled in kindergarten, are welcome. There is no registration or fee for the sessions.

This is a good opportunity for pre-school children to get acquainted with the library and other children their age, according to librarian Barbara Jauquet.

4-H Officers Had Training Sessions Here

Training sessions were held for 20 officers of 4-H clubs in Pennington County on Wednesday morning, December 29. Teaching the sessions were county 4-H ambassadors and junior leaders.

President and vice-president roles were taught by Scott Muzzy of Steiner and Dale Rupprecht of Silverton; Cindi Russell of Silverton taught secretaries; Jerry Bjerke of Silverton, treasurers; Cindi Solem of City View, reporters; and Dave Spengler of Silverton taught basic parliamentary procedure. Each group of officers met in small groups and did some activities relating to their particular office.

PREPARING TO SEARCH a portion of the Red Lake river in Thief River Falls on the theory that Mildred Fritzinger, 76, may have drowned is Gary Thompson of Ada, leader of a crew of divers conducting the search yesterday and today. Mrs. Fritzinger has been missing since early Saturday evening from Valley Home. Search was directed to the river because Mrs. Fritzinger's daughter, Mrs. Ernest Morben, lives across the river and some tracks had been found near open water on the river. Although ice was nearly a foot thick near open water, current has caused a number of spots to remain open where the search is taking place near L.B. Hartz park below the national guard armory. Gravel had been spread on the ice in the photo above to provide more secure footing for workers cutting an entrance hole and aiding the divers in their work.

TRF Schools Looking For $900,000 In Budget Cuts

Budget reductions of $900,000 for the 1983-84 school year were requested by the Thief River Falls board of education from its administration at a regular meeting of the board conducted Monday evening in the school district service center.

Budget questions drew lengthy discussion at the meeting as the board considered the reduction process and assumptions. Budget review timetable was adopted which calls for final action on the budget to be taken on March 7. Initial budget cuts would go to the board January 31, under the proposed schedule, with public hearings to follow board review prior to the March 7 deadline.

While budget cutting was a major part of the meeting, the board also voted Monday evening to extensively update the district's computer program by purchasing six Apple or Franklin computers and related software and hardware at a price not to exceed $9,900. The equipment will be used at Lincoln high school and the funding will come from interest acorued in the fund contributed to the school district by Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Swenson. Their permission was granted for the purchase.

Approval was given by the board for sale of the AVTI carpentry house located on Lot 4 of Thyren's first addition to Mr. and Mrs. Luther Anderson at a price of $48,000.

Discussion was held relative to the potential or feasibility of converting the Arctic Enterprises building into a high school facility. Supt. Robert Block, who comments that an architectural study would be necessary and costly, was asked by the board to provide information on costs at a later meeting.

Official approval was given to the final closing of the St. Hilaire elementary school effective immediately. The school has not been in use during this school year.

Because of costs associated with laundering of gym towels in the district, the board gave consideration to a study on the district providing its own laundry service rather than contracting for it. Preliminary study figures projected that commercial laundry equipment could be paid for with laundry cost savings over a two-year period. Further study will be done before board action is taken.

The board was informed that as a result of board committee meetings with the city of Thief River Falls finance committee, it would be recommended to the city council by the finance committee that rental of the arena and baseball field to the school district continue at $20,500.

Continuation of the kindergarten aide positions for the remainder of the 1982-83 school term was approved following discussion. Also approved was an agreement with Bemidji state university to provide student teaching experiences for BSU students in the local schools. A resolution was approved directing the superintendent and AVTI administration to consider the discontinuing of programs or positions at the AVTI.

Dealing with transportation department measures, the board sold a 1974 Chevrolet school bus to the Williston (ND) school district for $1,500 and gave authorization to readvertise for bids on the 1973 IHC bus. Bid of Northern Motors for a 1983 Chevrolet eight-passenger Sportsvan for use in the special education program was accepted. Approval was given to advertise for bids to purchase two 87-90 passenger diesel transit buses. A request from the Pepsi-Cola bottling company to rent a bus to go to Fargo on January 15 was approved.

Patti Lipp was assigned to be LD resource teacher at the Mark Twain and Franklin complex and Tom Lawrence was employed as electronics instructor at the Northwest vocational center.

Resignation of Robert Reeve, a long-term employee of the school district and currently counselor at the AVTI, was accepted effective June 30, 1983.

Many of the board members will attend the Minnesota school boards association convention in Minneapolis January 16-19. Next regular meeting of the board will be January 24.

Monday night's regular meeting of the board followed a meet and confer session with Thief River Falls Education association members, and brief tours of the Knox and Northrop elementary school

Quin County Board To Elect 1983 Officers

Quin county board of health and advisory committee will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Newfolden community center to elect officers, hear reports and transact other business. The board regularly meets the third Monday of January, April, July and October in Newfolden.

Business items on the agenda include joint powers revision, division of Quin county responsibilities and the 1984-85 planning process, according to Viola L. Rud, administrator.

Missing Person Search Moves To Red Lake River

On the theory that 76-year-old Mrs. Mildred Fritzinger may have drowned after going into open water on the Red Lake river in Thief River Falls, divers have been summoned by the Pennington county sheriff's department to conduct a search under the ice near L.B. Hartz below the national guard armory.

Mrs. Fritzinger has been missing since early Saturday evening from Valley Home for the aged at Arnold av. S. and highway 32. Search of the area and questioning of relatives and area residents provided no information on her whereabouts.

Law enforcement officials said that weather conditions on the weekend (new snowfall with blowing and drifting) had made it difficult to find tracks but that some tracks had been located in the river area. Officials said the tracks appeared to be small and indicated a shuffling gait. A tracking dog owned by Tom Wachsmuth of Greenbush — the same dog used in apprehension of an armed robber here about two years ago — took a trail into Hartz park twice when summoned into service on Monday.

Further adding to speculation on the potential drowning is the fact that Mrs. Fritzinger's daughter, Mrs. Ernest Morben, lives across the river from the point where the tracks were found. Although ice is quite thick on most of the river in that area, swirling currents continue to keep a number of spots completely open.

Gary Thompson of Ada heads the group of divers who began the search under the ice at mid-afternoon Tuesday. Also searching underwater were Greg Whiting of Crookston and Kevin Poppen of Fargo with Warren Perala of Crookston and Perry Lakeman of Ada assisting as line tenders. Local sheriff's office personnel, police department officers, city crews and several volunteers assisted in the search.

Thompson has been a diver for about 10 years and with other divers has assisted in searches for drowning victims throughout the area. Searching continues here today.

Restriction On Visitations At NW Hospital

Beginning Tuesday, Northwestern hospital services began limiting visiting to immediate family only due to the increased incidence of flu and flu-like illnesses in the community.

"Since the symptoms of the illness occur later than the actual onset of the illness, our patients need to be protected from potential exposure," stated Richard A. Spyhalski, president of the hospital association.

"Restrictions on visiting privileges are for the protection of our patients and will be in effect until further notice," Spyhalski said. "In previous years, the community has cooperated beautifully when visiting restrictions were necessary and we hope they will do so once again."

DRAMATIC GROWTH is predicted for the 1983 by Doug Dehnert of United Satellite Systems in Thief River Falls. The four-year-old company which began in a rented farm shop southwest of St. Hilaire now is utilizing 19,600 square feet of manufacturing and warehouse space on the northwest edge of Thief River Falls. Dehnert, who has seen wide acceptance of his satellite receiving stations in the United States and a number of foreign countries, predicts sales of half a million dollars a month for the coming year. Watch for the story in Monday's edition of the Times.

Council Faces Dilemma Over Tax Assessing

First meeting of the year for the Thief River Falls city council found them, and the taxpayers, faced with a dilemma regarding property assessments, in which the only local winners are likely to be the city attorneys. Other major topic, amidst much routine business, was the selection and final recommendation of Mesaba Airlines as the replacement carrier to provide service to Thief River Falls regional airport when Republic bows out.

Dilemma regarding propoerty assessments was discussed as a result of a meeting of the tax and finance committee, held just prior to the council meeting. That committee had met with John Heron, representing the property and tax division of Burlington Northern Railroad company, which is objecting to its $51,855.50 assessment for work done on Brooks Avenue under the 1982 street improvement project. Objection is based on the opinion that the value of the property was not increased by the amount of the assessment. Heron had suggested that the railroad might consider accepting an assessment of $28,500.

Dilemma for the taxpayers comes about because the only other property owner along the area of Brooks which was improved is the city. If BN's assessment is reduced, the city will have to pick up the difference. Mayor Bob Carlson estimated that if they took Burlington to court, they.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz

Sen. Boschwitz To Review PIK Program Here

Senator Rudy Boschwitz will be coming to Thief River Falls Thursday to discuss the payments-in-kind (PIK) program and other areas of agriculture with local farmers and anyone else interested.

Sen. Boschwitz will speak for five or 10 minutes on the PIK program and will then receive questions and feedback from the public. He will be at the Best Western inn meeting rooms from 8 to 9 a.m.

The basic idea of PIK is that farmers are offered an amount of commodity as payment for reduction in additional acreage.

"The way it works is that the farmer sets aside specific acres, not a percentage of his farm," Sen. Boschwitz said. "Then he gets a certain portion of the yield of those specific areas for the preceding three years. This is not something small like a set-aside of a paid diversion program. Those programs haven't worked particularly well and farmers have been pretty ingenious in skirting the intent of the program by laying aside acres that weren't particularly productive. This applies to specific crops and specific areas.

"I think the payments-in-kind program will work back the huge surpluses and have a favorable impact on farm-prices," the senator said.

Young Helps Girl Injured On Plane

When Republic Airlines flight 927 was involved in an accident at the Brainerd airport Sunday evening, a Thief River Falls passenger on the flight was able to provide assistance to an injured passenger. But he considers news treatment of the accident story, particularly in the Twin Cities press, to be insensitive.

"There is no status to involvement in a situation like this," Steve Young explained in a brief Times interview at which he was both cooperative and apparently somewhat uncomfortable. "The accident was a very frightening experience and people involved were there only as a matter of chance. They did not choose to play a role in the circumstances."

Although choice of involvement was not his, Young did play a role in providing assistance to a young girl who was seriously injured. Six-year-old Holly Hartung of Bertha had her right foot severed and left leg broken when a propeller from the plane ripped into the passenger compartment. Mrs. Margaret B. Kloster, 68, of Fosston, was killed in the seat next to the girl when the propeller reportedly cut off her legs.

According to Young, he was seated on the right side of the plane in the fourth row of seats back from the pilot cabin. Mrs. Kloster and the Hartung girl were in the second row of seats with Holly next to the window.

"It seemed we were quite far to the right on the runway," Young said in recalling the landing during snowfall at the Brainerd airport. "It seemed like almost immediately when we touched down there was some sort of drag on the propeller on my side of the plane, and there was a very loud snapping noise.

"At that time the propeller ripped into the plane, there were a lot of flashing lights and a sort of wire-burn smoke smell inside the cabin. It went dark after that and part of the ceiling in the front part of the plane fell in."

Young, a physical therapist at Northwestern hospital services who was returning from a pediatric workshop in Wisconsin, said he was seated over the wing and had no sensation of the plane skidding because he was in a pivotal position. Passengers further back in the plane reported feeling the plane turn as it skidded into a snowbank along the runway. It is believed propellers on the prop-jet were broken by contact with the snowbank.

Young said his immediate reaction after the accident was to go forward to see what had happened. He could hear people calling for help, he said. There was at least a five-foot piece of propeller in the aisle near his seat, he said, and that was moved aside to get further forward in the plane.

The woman occupying the aisle seat in row two (Mrs Kloster) was on the floor of the plane amidst debris from the side and ceiling of the plane and was unresponsive, he said, and the little girl in the window seat was crying for some help.

"I reached over and took her out of her seat and tried to

Steven Burrells Are At Home In New Hope

Mr. and Mrs. Steven John Burrell are at home in New Hope following an exchange of marriage vows at the Brunswick United Lutheran church in Crystal and a wedding trip to Orlando, Fla.

The bride, the former Annie Polanycia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Iwan Polanycia of Belfield, N.D. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Mel Burrell of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Marva Jean Hutchens officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 80 relatives and close friends. Sandi Saliny served as organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white qiana topped by a Chantilly lace, mid-length gown, featuring bishop sleeves and a Queen Anne neckline, accented by re-embroidered lace motifs, touched with seed pearls. A lace ruffle edged the skirt, complementing the ruffles that bordered the underskirt, which flowed into a chapel-length train. Completing her attire was a veil of bridal illusion, in mantilla styling, edged with Chantilly lace. She carried a round bouquet of carnations and roses in pastel pink, blue, yellow and white, accented with blue star flowers and babies' breath.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Maria Polanchek.

Kathy Ann Polanchek of Nevada, Iowa, a niece of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Kristine Litstrom of Plymouth, a niece of the groom. They wore blue floor-length gowns accented with blue tuxedos worn by the best man, David Jon Peterson of Fargo, N.D., and the groomsman, Michael Schimp of Ironwood, Mich. Serving as ushers were Michael Cerny, Thief River Falls and Bob Imholte, Brooklyn Center. All are friends of the groom.

The groom was attired in an all-white tuxedo with a pink rose pinned on his lapel.

The mother of the bride wore a peach colored street-length dress; and the groom's mother was attired in a mint green dress, also in street-length styling. Their corsages were of roses and carnations in pastel colors.

A wedding dinner followed at the Sunshine Factory with the bride's sisters, Maria Polanchek and Olga Maschak cutting and serving the three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pastel flowers. The groom's nephew, Tim Litstrom, was in charge of the gifts.

The couple is at home at 555 Zealand Avenue north, Apartment 108, in New Hope. The bride is employed by Deltak Corporation at Plymouth; and the groom is a cabinet maker, employed by Midwest Kitchens in Wayzata. Photo, Doug Mason, Minneapolis

Mattson-Moehring Vows Spoken At Newfolden

LaVonne Patricia Mattson and Michael David Moehring exchanged marriage vows recently at a two o'clock wedding at the Evanglical Free church in Newfolden.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mattson, Newfolden, and Mrs. Mary Moehring of Starkville, Miss., and the late David Moehring.

Rev. Earl Eveland officiated at the double ring ceremony. Robert Wiens was the organist and Lorie Kaeser and Ron Buehn sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Wedding Song," and "God A Woman and A Man."

Forming the background for the wedding party were candelabras with white candles, accented with peach and brown bows and streamers. Matching bows with a cluster of miniature dried flowers marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white polyester gown which she had designed and made. The gown was styled in empire fashion with a lace bodice featuring bishop sleeves with lace trim, and a mandarin collar accented with a gold pin, which belonged to the bride's grandmother, the late Mrs. Adolph Bakke. The sheer yoke, appliqued in lace, was edged with lace ruffles, trimmed with pearls. Creating back interest were lace ruffles which flowed into a chapel-length train. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a wide brimmed hat, trimmed with lace and pearls. Miniature ribbon roses, made by the groom's mother, encircled the crown. She carried her grandfather's, the late Adolph Bakke, small antique Bible together with a cascade of peach and white silk roses, peach carnations and brown, white and peach ribbon streamers.

Bev Johnson attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marti Benson, sister of the bride; Robbin Thompson and Lorie Kaeser, friends of the couple. Their peach colored gowns, gathered at the empire waistlines, were styled with V-necklines and modified capes trimmed with ivory lace. In their hair, they wore a cluster of peach flowers. They carried round bouquets featuring flowers identical to those in the bride's bouquet.

Stacey Johnson and Annette Benson, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Their dresses in peach with white lace, were made by their mothers. They carried small baskets filled with flower petals.

Personal attendant was Sue Kanipa, a friend of the bride.

Attending the groom were Philipp Buckley as best man, Marlin Mattson, Richard Flodstrom and Larry Bakke as groomsmen. They wore brown three-piece tuxedos, white shirts and peach rosebud boutonnieres. The groom, in a tan tuxedo, had a deep orange rosebud pinned on his lapel.

The mother of the bride wore a long-sleeved, floor-length, rose-colored gown with a corsage of white roses with brown accents. All the flowers were made and arranged by the bride.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Buckley of Crookston.

A reception in the church parlors followed. To correspond with the bride's chosen colors, the serving table was decorated with wedding bells and peach and brown streamers.

Dave and Jan Johnson, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests. Helen Flodstrom, sister of the bride, pinned the flowers, and Colette and Colleen Flodstrom, nieces of the bride, presided at the punch table.

The three-tiered wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Janice Olson, was decorated with peach roses and topped by a double bell ornament, accented with a peach rose and ribbon. It was cut and served by Arlene Ness and Violet Tjosaas, aunts of the bride. Pouring coffee was Mrs. Olga Borgen, a friend of the family. Pam Matheny, a friend of the bride, arranged the gifts. Helpers in the kitchen were Mrs. Anne Vixie and Mrs. Della Elseth.

As the couple left the church, they rode in a horse dawn buggy, with the bride's uncle Larry as driver.

The bride is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, and the University of Minnesota, Crookston. The groom, a graduate of A & M Consolidated high school, College Station, Tex., is also a graduate of the University of Minnesota, Crookston. He is employed by Wendy's of Minneapolis.

The couple is at home at 1011 Blue Gentain road, Eagan.

could spend $15,000 on legal fees, with no guarantee that they would collect the full assessment.

Assistant City Attorney Larry McDowell stated that he could give no estimates regarding cost of a legal battle, nor would he give an opinion on the city's odds of winning in court. He noted that the city had based its assessments on cost figures prepared by the city engineers, adding that those figures were "100 per cent accurate," but commented, "legally, the only standard of determination is whether the value of the property was increased by the amount of the assessment."

Alderman Bill Penning commented that they were dealing with an "impossible situation," since property values could be approached from so many different angles. Alderman Ken Murphy noted that there was a danger of setting a precedent if they allowed Burlington to compromise on their assessment. Mayor Carlson added that they would now have to advise their constituents that assessments could be protested any time they felt their property was not increased in value by the amount of the assessment.

After considerable discussion, Alderman James Womack moved to recommend, "for purposes of bringing it to a vote," that the city offer Burlington Northern Railroad a reduced assessment. Vote resulted in a tie, with Womack, Carlson, Ambrose Wysoski and Clayton Restad voting for the motion, and Aldermen Penning, Murphy, Milan Borsheim and Don Goodrich voting against it. Matter was referred back to the tax and finance committee.

Final proposals by four airlines bidding to replace Republic as the carrier for Thief River Falls regional airport were compared, with a recommendation from the public safety committee that they recommend the selection of Mesaba Airlines, Grand Rapids, to the civil aeronautics board (CAB).

Mayor Carlson reported that the committee had met with representatives of Mesaba and Bemidji Airlines on Thursday, and with representatives of American Central Airlines, Dubuque, IA., on Monday morning. He noted that they had communicated with representatives of Executive Airlines, Cambridge, MA., through correspondence and by telephone.

In comparing the proposals made by the four airlines, Carlson commented that they had a difficult decision choosing between Mesaba and American Central, since the two proposals were very close in nearly all respects. He said the final decision had been based primarily on personalities, with the committee members stating they would feel more comfortable working with people they knew.

Carlson noted that they had not seriously considered the proposal of Executive Airlines, since it was considered a "paper airline," and had shown little initiative in trying to meet with city officials. He noted that Bemidji Airlines proposal had offered more flights than the others, but the committee had felt that stops in Bemidji enroute to Minneapolis wouldn't appeal to many travelers. Bemidji also bid a smaller, 9-passenger aircraft.

According to Carlson, the attitude of the Mesaba people had been very positive, and he said he had personally been impressed with their plans for the future. "They're growing and expanding," he commented. "They already have larger aircraft on order and they're moving into other states."

Recommendation of the committee was unanimously approved by the council, and a letter will be drafted by the city attorney recommending that the civil aeronautics board select Mesaba to replace Republic Airlines, which has filed notice of intent to discontinue service to Thief River Falls regional airport.

Reorganization of the council was conducted, with Alderman Wysoski elected to serve as acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Carlson; The Thief River Falls Times named as official newspaper; First Northwestern State Bank, Northern State Bank, and First Federal Savings and Loan named as official depositories; approval of official bonds for city employees; reassignment of all council members to the same committees as last year; and appointment of Police Chief Ken Froschheiser and Deputy Chief Duane Holland as process servers.

In other business the council:

— Approved setting a hearing on proposed state community development block grants for 7 p.m. January 19, at city auditorium;

— Approved use of the sheep building at the fairgrounds for a cattle sale to be conducted March 3 and 4;

— Approved rental of the sports arena, old arena and baseball field to the school district for 1982-83, at a cost of $20,500. Request for an exchange or sale of city-owned land near the school district service center, was referred to the attorneys, since title to the property is in question;

— Appointed John T. Anderson as the city's representative to Northern Municipal Power Agency, with Alderman Penning as advisor;

— Approved an airport lease agreement between the city and Dave Fimrite, owner of Outer Limits Airways, Inc. Two-year agreement would charge Fimrite $7,500 annually for 1983-84, with an option to renew for 1985-86 at $10,500 annually.

— Assigned development of a five-year construction program on municipal state aid streets to the street committee;

— Approved adoption of an agreement between the city and Minnesota department of transportation, designating MnDOT to accept federal money for the city on joint construction projects;

— Noted that the Minnesota public utilities commission will be holding a meeting in Thief River Falls city auditorium at 10 a.m. Tuesday, January 18, concerning minimum grain rates;

— Appointed John T. Anderson and Alderman Bill Penning as delegates to the Minnesota Municipal Utilities association;

— Approved utilities committee recommendations: that Obert Sunsdahl, meter reader, be granted a progression raise of $25 per month; that a used pickup for the water department be purchased from Courtesy Motors for $4,500; that motor control centers for the water plant be purchased from Wesco for $6,945; and that the policy of assessing a penalty for bills not paid by the tenth of the month would continue;

— Heard a report from Alderman Womack that the finance committee was now considering some consolidation of duties and personnel adjustments as budget balancing moves.

Young Assists Girl Injured In Plane Accident

assess the extent of her injuries," Young said. "The damage was pretty well limited to the one leg. I carried her back through the plane and we went down the chute." (The female flight attendant had almost immediately activated the emergency exit chute at the rear of the plane, a canvas-type unit through which the passengers slid from the plane to the ground.)

"At the bottom of the chute there were probably seven or eight people who were just sort of waiting there, and they immediately offered their coats and jackets to keep her well covered," Young said. Two other men carried the youngster across the snow-covered field toward the terminal while Young concentrated his efforts on keeping pressure on the leg to control bleeding. A pickup truck provided transportation for about the last block of the approximately quarter mile distance from the plane to the terminal.

Young said he stayed with the youngster at the terminal, on the ride to the hospital in the ambulance and until she went into surgery. "She was just marvelous," Young said. "Really great."

Young said it was about 9 p.m. before he was able to call home and tell his wife about the accident. Fortunately she had not heard of the mishap before his call. Because Mrs. Young is a native of Finland, the couple has done a fair amount of international flying.

Passengers destined for Bemidji and Thief River Falls were put up at the Holiday Inn overnight by the airline, bussed to the airport at 10 a.m. Monday to claim luggage (some luggage was destroyed in the accident) and then bussed to their destinations. In addition to Young, aviation mechanics students Lyle Lynch and David Williamson were passengers to Thief River Falls on the flight, as well as an unidentified man who was apparently on a business trip here.

ASCS Should Be Notified Of Farm Changes

Marshall county farmers should report any changes in their farm operations which could affect farm program benefits for 1983, according to Leo Orpen, chairman, Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee.

For ASCS to help producers get program benefits, farm records must be up to date. Therefore, Orpen said, producers should contact the county ASCS office if a farm will have a new owner effective for 1983, or if a change is made in opration of an existing unit.

"Plans to combine farms or divide a farm should be requested as soon as possible because reconstitutions require special processing as well as county committee approval," Orpen said.

Likewise, he said, farmers who want to establish proven yields for 1983 feed grains or wheat should assemble proof of production records for this year's crop.

According to Orpen, production evidence must be kept separate for each year and for each farm. Farmers will be given the opportunity to request a proven yield until the final signup date of production evidence so warrants.

First NW Bank Reelects Board Of Directors

At the annual meeting of First Northwestern state bank Tuesday, directors reelected were Orion Beich, Earl Dagg, Carl Lee, George Martin, Mervin Prestebak, Lowell Swenson, Robert Wurst, James Winjum, Ila Flesche and Roger Reuter.

President Reuter reported below average earnings of the bank for the second straight year, noting that factors affecting the local economy including deflated grain prices, early and late excessive rainfall, late August freeze and unemployment.

Deposit growth of seven per cent was noted for 1982 with a growth of only four to five per cent anticipated for 1983. Reuter forecasts a continued slow economy during the first half of 1983 with the last half showing a steady improvement. This will be caused mainly by the projected lower interest rate stability, he said.

First Northwestern bank employs 50 full-time employees with an annual payroll in 1982 in excess of $864,000.

Grain Hauling Rates Subject Of Hearing

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf issued a reminder Friday that a meeting will be held this month before the Minnesota public utilities commission (PUC) on the subject of minimum grain transport rates. "Grain shippers and carriers will have the opportunity to address the commission on the present minimum rate schedule," Sen Stumpf said.

The meeting will be held at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, January 18, in the Thief River Falls city auditorium basement meeting room.

During the past year, the commission has received many inquiries from shippers and carriers about the minimum grain rates, particularly on grain movements of over 150 miles. Volume of grain transported to terminal markets by many Minnesota truckers has been adversely affected by low grain prices, the general downturn in the economy, the reduction in railroad rates and the surplus of railroad cars available for loading grain.

The commission cannot consider issuing an order changing the minimum rates unless a formal petition is filed requesting such a change. However, the PUC will use the testimony from the Thief River Falls meeting, as well as that from two other meetings in Morris and Marshall, to help guide such policies in the future.

Sen. Stumpf, who represents Senate District 1, said, "I encourage everyone concerned about this problem to attend the meeting, and express their views."

His poems have been published in several literary journals and poetry anthologies. He has also had two collections of his poems published.

About one of these collections, Susan Welch, writing a review in "Minnesota Monthly", said, ". . .he has a gift for portraying the immediacy of an experience, as well as a tenderness for small things, and a generosity in his feelings for other people."

Program is open to the public at no charge. Library is located at 101 East First Street.

To The Editor:

In regard to the formation of the N.W. Men's Rights Ass'n. that was organized on the evening of January 6.

I wish to congratulate those who decided it was time to change the inequities existing in Minnesota's "No Fault" divorce law. I joined this organization for three reasons: (1) I am a Christian, (2) humanitarian and (3) a very concerned citizen.

As a local pastor said, "the no fault divorce law is the most insidious law that the devil ever devised." Yes indeed — with the help of our legislators who make the laws! Don't they?

What I think is the most horrible of all is what happens to the children; how they are treated, "considered" and I think "used". It is claimed custody is "always" granted in the best interest of the children. I wonder.

Please let me relate two ("gems" (court decisions) that I have heard or know about.

One case is of a child who was placed in the mother's custody and the father has "visiting" privileges. During one of those "visits" the child was asked, "does Daddy ever spank you?" The child answered, "Yes, Daddy spanks me when I'm bad". The child then was asked, "Does Mama ever spank you?" The child replied, "Mama hits!" Even a child seems to know the difference between "hitting" and "spanking". Do you, dear reader?

Then there is the case of two boys (ages nine and 14) who twice in about three months appeared before a judge, requesting the right to choose to live with their father and have visiting privileges with their mother. Each time they were denied, even though professional analyses (by the court's order) proved that their father is a fit parent.

To top that, a court order was issued against a law enforcement agency, forcing the agency to take the boys away from their home and their father who they dearly love. How heart breaking that was for those boys, as well as the rest of us who know them.

Think of the psychological effect that action caused those young fellows! Or don't people care?

I detest "child abuse" in any form! However, may I ask which is worse, physical abuse by a parent, teacher, etc., or psychological abuse that may be imposed by the court system?

Regardless of age, the children are the ones who are hurt or suffer the most because of someone's selfishness in divorce. To me they are people! Human Beings! Not chattel! Their feelings should be counted, with the highest regard, in my view. I love children. Those victims of thoughtlessness and greed — when will they be granted their "rights"?

In closing, our only purpose is to work toward constructive changes that increase fairness in Minnesota's divorce laws.

Thanks very much to Judge Larry Jorgenson for his offer, "If this group is out to do that, then I'll support them." I'm sure the Northwest Men's Rights association will accept that, in the same manner it is intended. Thank you.

Your's for Justice,
Rubert L. Wolfgram

To The Editor:

We all want to save money on groceries but what we really want is to pay less money for the same foods we always buy. It won't work! A long time ago, Oscar Wilde wrote that a fool was someone "who knew the price of everything but the value of nothing." So don't be foolish looking at price only. Look to see what you are really buying. Learning a few new buying habits and planning different foods for our meals will cut our food bills.

Allow yourself time to meal plan, to read food ads, to clip coupons and to make a shopping list. Planning makes best use of money spent for food. On a limited budget there is no place for expensive foods or for foods that do not contribute to the nutrient needs of each family member. Check the food you have on hand in cupboards, refrigerator and freezer. Plan these foods into your meals. Use coupons with discretion, clipping only those you'll want to use. You may find a better buy on the shelf.

Watch the ads for specials. If the buy is good on a storable food you often use, stock up, but don't leap at every special —be sure you'll use it up. Compare prices to make sure it is a special.

Shop with your list and stick to it! Never go on a shopping trip when you've missed a meal or feel ravenously hungry. Sticking to your list will limit your trips to the store. Each trip will cost you in time, energy and the extra foods you buy.

Do some cost comparing of brands and styles — canned, fresh, frozen, dehydrated — of the same food. Don't buy higher quality than you need. For example, a can of chunks and pieces of pears for a salad will be less expensive than halves, and will do just as well.

Don't pay money for labor. You can do your own cheese slicing or grating or chicken cutting. You can make your own ham spread, chicken coating mix or granola. Instant-cooking foods are more costly than the longer-cooking kind.

Two eggs will meet your daily protein needs at a cheap price. If there is less than a seven-cent difference between two sizes of eggs, you'll get more per penny with the larger. Buy meats on special when possible and buy by cost per serving, not pound. The larger the turkey, the more meat there is in relation to bones and more servings per pound.

Buy in-season fruits and vegetables. Make a fast substitute if the price on an item you want is out of sight. Comparison shop and read labels of the foods you buy to make sure that you are getting the best buys for the nutrients they contain. Change a few food buying habits at a time. It's worth it! You'll be eating better and your shopping habits will improve.

Happy New Year to all the people in the Thief River Falls Times area — we are lucky to have such a fine newspaper. Don't forget — stick to your shopping list and your grocery shopping will not be eating up your budget!

Ass'n. Objects To Increase In Workers' Comp.

Recently announced workers' compensation rate increase request dated December 29 in the amount of 31.4 per cent, is viewed by the 1,600 members of the Independent Insurance Agents of Minnesota as one which is ill-advised in view of the upcoming legislative discussions concerning the overall economic climate existing in Minnesota.

The association has gone on record as opposing such a rate increase request at this time.

Recognizing the "unfair and much abused benefit schedule under the present system" and "that only the legislative process has the capability of correcting such inequities," the association supports benefit schedule changes, but opposes, at this point, this large rate increase request.

The association said its members will continue to support necessary reform in hopes that the granting of such a rate increase would not be necessary, and further challenges the Minnesota Legislature to act early in the upcoming session to institute strong benefit reforms similar to those which were considered by the last session of the legislature.

The lack of economic growth in Minnesota, and the exodus of business to surrounding states, has been blamed on high taxes, high unemployment benefits, and high Workers' Compensation rates in Minnesota. Approval of such a rate increase will further be detrimental to small business, in particular, and a more widespread exodus will occur, the association said.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Some weeks ago I discussed vandalism (destruction and terror for the fun of it, which, according to available data, is primarily the work of teenagers). I had seen so many examples of vandalism, had been told that it costs our nation more than $3,000,000,000 per year (that could be better spent), lots of injuries, and even some deaths.

I mentioned an older couple living in an "inner city" of a large metropolitan area, who shot some teenagers trying to break into their apartment. These teenagers were making all sorts of threats, and this older couple remembered that just a few weeks earlier some 80-year-old neighbors had been attacked and stabbed more than 70 times, while their cash and possessions had not even been touched.

This column on vandalism had been written before the vandalism relating to over the counter drugs treated with cyanide and other piosons, not for a profit, but apparently just for the fun of killing people at random. The point of that column had been the need to educate our young people to respect other people, their person, property and ideas, with this education a part of the parenting job, assisted by our churches and schools.

After that column was published, I did some traveling and received many comments indicating agreement with my proposal. After all, who could be in favor of vandalism.

Returning from a trip to Washington, D.C., I scanned accumulated newspapers stacked on my desk and found an interesting letter to the editor of one of my publishing papers about that vandalism column. The letter implied that I advocated shooting vandals, which so concerned the letter-writer that he was considering moving his family into the wilderness.

First, I said that shooting vandals was not an appropriate thing to do, though I could understand how a terrorized inner city older couple could be driven to shoot someone breaking into their apartment and screaming threats, particularly after their old neighbor friends were killed a short time earlier, stabbed more than 70 times. Rather than move his family, I wondered why this letter writing father would not persuade his youngsters that vandalism is neither productive nor appropriate, which I believe is a more responsible attitude from a mature father.

Second, the letter author felt that my reference to broken windows, stolen merchandise that was dumped to inconvenience, slashed auto tires, and the rest somehow conveyed the idea that our nation is more interested in property than people. If he had done some research or had been a regular reader, he would have realized that I am much more concerned with people than property, and so are most other Americans. In fact, my primary concern in educating young people to respect others and their property is designed to maintain an attitude and environment that will encourage a continuation of individual freedom. It is respect for other people (and their property) that is critical to the maintenance of real freedom. It is the lack of respect for other people (and their property) that generally precedes the breakdown of a free society.

More disturbing was this letter writer's method for saying, "I disagree." He doesn't have the courage to argue his ideas on their merit, so he does some name calling, personalizing his dispute rather than logically discussing his position. A few personal smears and sarcasm instead of proposing a better way were his answer to a problem that could mean 40,000 permanent new jobs each year, 300,000 temporary jobs, and a variety of other benefits.

Our nation has always provided a base of freedom of speech and press. Everyone has the right to say what they want to say, as long as they do not injure others. If they wish to argue or debate an idea on its merits, they can and should. But when you inject name calling, insinuation and a few other "below the belt" type things into the act, you fight dirty . . . you foul. Apparently some of our people have not learned how to discuss and resolve issues in a democracy . . . . that could explain the millions of "Saturday night special" handguns that are found from coast to coast.

I was pleased that out of more than 210 newspapers and 70 radio stations that carried our vandalism column, there was only one negative response from a guy who missed the point: that vandalism is a breakdown in our family unit. Vandalism indicates a lack of respect for others. Vandalism indicates some parents aren't doing their job well.

A mouth or a pen can be a weapon, just like a gun. They should be "shot off" with care and judgment to avoid injury.

That's Straight Talk!

Stangeland To Discuss Sugar, Credit On Tour

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will repreant the Midwest during a week-long series of meetings with Caribbean leaders during the January congressional recess.

"House Speaker Tip O'Neill has seen fit to cancel nearly three weeks of meetings of the House," Congressman Stangeland said. "Since we won't be meeting in Washington, I accepted an invitation from the House public works and transportation committee to represent the Midwest on a tour to meet key leaders from the volatile Caribbean basin."

Energy and oil supplies will be the topics of discussion with Venezuelan officials during the first two days of meetings. The 10-member delegation is meeting with national leaders in Caracas on January 9 and 10.

Increased trade and the possible effects of President Reagan's Caribbean basin initiative will be discussed with Uruguayan leaders on January 11, 12 and 13. Congressman Stangeland will specifically focus on the impact of Caribbean sugar on the world and American market.

The world credit crisis will be the focus of attention in meetings between the members of Congress and Brazilian leaders. The threat of forfeitures in the world money markets by Brazil and other major borrowers would have a terrible impact on American farm exports, Congressman Stangeland said.

"Hopefully, this meeting will give us a better idea of how to meet the mutual problems of America and our neighbors to the south," he added. "It also should foster better relations between the leaders and nations of the Western Hemisphere."

Storhaug And Johnson Earn BSU Degrees

Rodney Johnson and Mark Storhaug of Thief River Falls were among students awarded degrees from Bemidji state university at the conclusion of fall quarter.

Johnson graduated with a master of science degree in industrial education as one of 14 students awarded graduate degrees. Storhaug received a bachelor's degree in earth science.

Holt 4-H Club Meets Monday

Warren Youth Appointed To Naval Academy

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has announced that Joseph Steffan of Warren, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steffan, has been offered an appointment to the United States naval academy in Annapolis, MD.

"I am very proud that Joseph has been offered this appointment to the U.S. naval academy," Rep. Stangeland said. "The competition was strong and to be selected is a tremendous honor, not only for Joseph and his parents, but also for the people of Warren and the Seventh district.

"The education he will receive will be one of the best in the world. It will prepare him to be an officer and a leader in the U.S. navy and in his private life. I am truly pleased to see such a fine young man, who has worked so hard to achieve this goal, awarded with the opportunity to attend this service academy."

Steffan, a 17-year-old senior at Warren high school, has been an active member of his high school football, track and wrestling teams as well as participating in band and the 1982 all-state choir. He is also the student council president and a member of the honor society.

Young people who are interested in attending one of the academies begin by contacting their Congressman. In the Seventh District, Congressman Stangeland then forwards their application to the academy screening committee, which he established, to screen prospective applicants. Upon receiving approval from the committee, the application is then forwarded to the service academy in which the applicant has expressed an interest in attending. The academy then begins its own screening process and offers nominations.

Joseph Steffan will graduate from Warren high school in May of 1983 and will enter the U.S. naval academy in July.

FITC To Offer Second Minn. Screen Project

Film in the cities (FITC) will undertake production of its second Minnesota screen project, a dramatic film to be produced this summer with a $50,000 grant from the Northwest area foundation. This year, FITC,' Minnesota screen project was selected to participate in the Sundance institute, Robert Redford's Utah film center devoted to the development of high-quality professional dramatic films by independent filmmakers. Principals in the Minnesota screen project will attend the institute in June to work with feature film professionals who will advise them in various areas of production from scriptwriting to distribution. FITC's Minnesota screen project was selected from over 150 finalists.

FITC is seeking half-hour dramatic screenplays by Minnesota writers for this summer's Minnesota screen project. Screenplay will be produced in Minnesota on a budget of $60,000. Deadline for submission is April 1. Writer of the winning screenplay will receive $2,000 for the rights to produce the screenplay and a $2,000 fellowship stipend. Area Legislators React To Governor's Address

Special To The Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

Moving away from traditional DFL party themes, Gov. Rudy Perpich stressed partnership of business groups, organized labor and government to get the state's economic recovery started.

The state of the state address last week received cautious praise on both sides of the political aisle.

Other main points of Perpich's speech stressed:

+ Reorganizing state government and consolidating agencies;

+ Improved "high tech" school programs;

+ Variable aids to local governments, assuring that they share in state revenue shortfalls;

+ Passage of a workers' compensation bill designed to lower premiums;

+ Study of two controversial agricultural issues — creating a consortium of eight major grain producing states with an eye toward setting higher minimum prices and mortgage moratorium legislation designed to forestall farm foreclosures; and

+ Reinstating general assistance welfare benefits to able-bodied persons who cannot find a job.

Stumpf Comments

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer heard some new themes and a bit of the old in Perpich's speech. "The most basic, traditional DFL themes dealt with the unemployed, those with no benefits," Sen. Stumpf said.

Perpich's proposal to build some reserves in the state budget, re-examining the state government structure and delivery of the most relevent services is part of the "modern DFL outlook on today's situation," according to Stumpf.

Although many legislators are skeptical of any minimum grain pricing scheme developed out of a pact of states, Stumpf is encouraging a moderate approach. "It's very difficult," Stumpf says, but he believes eight unified states can have an impact at the national level. "With eight governors they will have some power," he said.

Stumpf is also grappling with Perpich's support of a study on farm foreclosures. He wouldn't want to see the state initiate a program allowing poor managers to delay paying their debts. "We all have to pay our bills," Sen. Stumpf said.

Sparby Reaction

"I was pretty impressed," said Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls. "Many goals were set, but I'm not sure they'll all be accomplished."

Rep. Sparby will be working on workers' compensation and unemployment compensation reform as a member of the governmental operations committee.

He favors a more active role for the state in promoting agriculture, one of Gov. Perpich's themes. He also believes the minimum pricing idea can have an impact at the national level. "I think it'll have some effect," he said.

Sparby opposes reducing the size of the legislature. "It reduces rural representation," he points out. Sparby represents a district which is nearly the largest among 134 House districts.

Perpich noted that 30 state agency heads presently report to the governor. "Any good management plan would cut that number by half," he said.

Reasserting his long held belief that the legislature is too large, Perpich asked legislators to seriously consider reducing their numbers. "I urge you to consider whether 201 individuals are necessary to represent the people of Minnesota," Perpich said.

These comments drew applause primarily from the IR side of the aisle.

Perpich feels the quality of instruction in languages, science and math is slipping in Minnesota schools. "Minnesota students must be in the forefront of computer knowledge both for their own benefit and for the benefit of Minnesota based industries, which will need them as workers."

Perpich feels a variable aid system to local governments is the best solution to recurring budget crises. "No one benefits from special sessions. I am committed to avoiding them," Perpich said.

Full economic recovery in the state isn't possible "until the depression on our farm trade representative, ordered gasohol use in state vehicles and is researching the full extent of farm mortgage foreclosures and working with eight other governors in the hope of setting up a minimum pricing bill to help farmers dispose of surplus grain.

Perpich feels economic conditions have changed since two years ago when the Legislature barred able-bodied persons with marketable skills from receiving general assistance welfare benefits.

"We cannot continue to penalize those persons who are suffering as a result of bad economic conditions," he said.

The state of the state address is the first major action of the governor since taking office. He is the first Minnesota governor to regain the office after losing four years earlier.

Perpich was much more at ease in making his initial official address than the first time around when he appeared rushed and uncomfortable in addressing the state.

The governor's proposals will be further developed in the coming weeks. He will specifically address new program proposals at the end of January and lay out detailed state budget plans in mid-February.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by LeRoy Stumpf
STATE SENATOR DISTRICT 1

Swearing-in ceremonies for 21 freshman state senators, Governor Perpich's "State of the State" address and usual hectic office and procedural arrangements highlighted the opening week of the 1983 Minnesota legislature in St. Paul.

Initial bill introduction and discussions in Capital corridors indicate the 1983 biennial budget session will be one of the most important — and volatile — in the history of the state as the key issues of balancing the state's budget and restoring the economic vitality of Minnesota's economy head the agenda of the seventy-third session of the legislature.

With the state in the throes of its worst economic downturn in half a century, the legislature currently faces a perplexing dilemma which can only be solved through a strong, bipartisan effort by all parties involved in the process.

Recent projections by the state's finance department forecast a possible $1 billion revenue shortfall by the end of the next biennium (June, 1985) unless the legislature acts soon to prioritize its expenditure and revenue policies based on existing economic conditions.

In his "State of the State" address given to a joint Senate-House session Wednesday, Governor Perpich outlined his administration's general prescription for beginning the state's economic recovery. He expects to submit the first of a two-part budget solution proposal to the Legislature by January 25, which is expected to deal primarily with new and expanded programs to facilitate this recovery. This plan will be followed by more detailed budget, appropriation and tax guidelines on or about February 15.

The newly-elected governor is calling for a number of innovative steps toward improving the state of our economy. These include overseas marketing of state agricultural products; the creation of a seed capital loan fund for new and expanding businesses; the establishment of a farm commodity cartel of Midwest grain-producing states to assure minimum crop prices; jobs and unemployment legislation to protect and retain 185,000 unemployed Minnesotans; and a four-fold increase in the state's tourism budget.

The governor is also proposing a more "realistic" state budget based on more conservative revenue forecasts, a healthy reserve fund and an overhauled tax system. Whether he will propose the extension of the current income and sales taxes expected to terminate by July 1, 1983, remains to be seen.

Underlying all of these budget-related questions to challenge legislators in 1983 will be the need to improve state management overall, especially in the areas of fiscal budgeting, planning and service delivery.

Despite our short-term budgetary problems, and the more long-term economic development problems, the legislature plans to meet these difficulties head-on, based on a prioritization of our state's needs, available resources and ability to manage this complex system.

In addition, the 1983 legislature will be dealing with a wide range of other important issues, including:

+ Workers' compensation rate reform;

+ Balancing a deficit-ridden unemployment fund;

+ Highway, railroad and farm-to-market transportation funding;

+ Environmental cleanup of hazardous waste sites;

+ Housing purchase and home rehabilitation assistance;

+ Soil and water conservation efforts;

+ "Agent Orange" assistance in identifying affected Vietnam veterans;

+ Development of alternative energy sources such as solar, gasohol, etc.; and

+ Improved chemical dependency programs.

I am the vice chairman of the Senate education committee, and will also be serving on the agricultural and natural resources, transportation and local government committees.

I will be reporting to you in this column weekly. If you have any comments, or need assistance, please contact me at my office 306 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155, or call (612) 296-8660.

State Dep't. Drawn Into Tourism Fight

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has demanded action from the U.S. department of state to resolve the conflict created by proposed Canadian tourism changes. He told Bill Newlin (consular officer of the state department's office of Canadian affairs) that "every avenue for resolving this conflict must be explored.

"These proposed rule changes are clearly discriminatory to U.S. tourism interests, particularly those in Minnesota. Such discrimination could lead to retaliation, and that is in no one's interest. This must be resolved."

The proposed Canadian rules changes would require American tourists, sportsmen and recreational fishermen to rent hotel rooms or camping spaces on the Canadian side of the border when hunting or fishing on the Ontario side of the boundary areas. The changes were proposed by Alan Pope, Ontario's minister of natural resources.

"There is no way to estimate the total damage this could do to our small businesses along the border, but it would be disastrous," the Congressman told Newlin. "We can't ask our resorts to tell tourists to rent rooms in Ontario.

"Tourism is a large industry in our area," Congressman Stangeland said. "We can't accept such a destructive policy, especially from an 'ally' like Canada."

Congressman Stangeland will schedule other meetings at the local, state and national level. "I want the state department to become actively involved in protecting our border fishing rights and our tourism industry," he said. "There is a need for fast action because these changes may go into effect this year, instead of 1984 as was first planned."

The four-term House veteran has offered to cooperate in building a joint effort to preserve fish and wildlife in the boundary areas. "Canada and the U.S. can work together on that goal," he said. "But we must stop the restrictions which will damage our small businesses on the Minnesota side of the border."

Radio Series Will Explore Vital Issue

Minnesota's major environmental issues will be explored in a series of 15-minute weekly radio programs entitled "Your Own Backyard", to be carried by over 25 stations across the state beginning the second week in January.

Series is a joint effort of the Minnesota environmental education board and four member stations of the Association of Minnesota public and educational radio stations (KAXE, Grand Rapids; KUOM, Minneapolis; WCAL, Northfield; KVSC, St. Cloud). Effort is supported in part by the Minnesota humanities commission.

"We are not trying to tell people what to think about the issues" said Rodger Kemp, coordinator for the series. "We want to bring out the many different aspects of each issue that make it difficult to resolve. If a problem is easy to solve, it isn't an issue," he said. According to Kemp, the programs will include more than hard fact. "We'll examine attitudes and values that are common and conflicting in our society, some of the history of how these conflicts came to be, and how the groups involved try to persuade and influence each other, he said.

Some of the topics to be featured will include peatland usage, chemicals and agriculture, public lands and public waters, wetlands, water diversion, soil erosion, endangered species, the wolf, and the relationship of energy, jobs and the environment.

Local station carrying the program is KTRF-AM at 12:35 p.m. on Sundays.

Programs are being produced by the volunteer members of the 13 regional environmental education councils across the state under the supervision of the Minnesota environmental education board. It is the responsibility of the regional councils to choose topics they know to be important to their region, and with significance statewide. Radio programs are one of a series of such environmental education efforts carried out each year for communities and schools by the Environmental education councils.

Members of the local Agassiz environmental education council are Deborah Matero, Jack Quinlivan and Ken Murphy of Thief River Falls; Gladwin Lynne, Warren; Betty Johnson, Roseau; Peggy Henry, Crookston; and Shelly Hanson, Lake Bronson.

For more information, a list of participating stations, and a list of program topics, contact Rodger Kemp, (612) 788-7773.

MnDOT Claims Program Saved $4.2 Million

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) value improvement program (VIP) saved Minnesota taxpayers $4.2 million during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1982, claims commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Mn-DOT's program provides for cost reduction, product or process improvement and alternative methods of materials for highway construction of maintenance. For example, the recycling of old bituminous roadway materials for highway resurfacing resulted in savings of nearly $500,000.

Two highway improvement projects were redesigned, reducing costs by more than $750,000 and highway fencing standards were revised extending service life by five years and saving more than $250,000.

Now in its tenth year, VIP has saved taxpayers $42 million. Mn-DOT uses funds saved to increase the number of road and bridge improvement projects that can be completed yearly.

Braun explained, "Minnesota's need for increased highway funding continues because of inflation, more road use and less gasoline consumption. Highway user tax distribution fund is continually falling behind in meeting Minnesota's transportation needs."

"A similar program, with a different set of stories, was presented here three years ago and was quite popular," said Barb Jauquet, library director. "Both the audience and the discussion leaders were very pleased with and enjoyed the high quality of the films and we are very happy to have found another set of films from the same series."

"The American Short Story" is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Minnesota Humanities Commission.

Despite its highly concentrated population centers, Japan had only 5.1 fires per 10,000 people in 1980, compared with the U.S. average of 129 fires per 10,000 people.

A recent federal study indicates that smoke detectors are in use in more than 60% of all U.S. housing units. About 80% of all fire deaths in the U.S. occur in residential dwellings.

In 1981, U.S. fires claimed 6,823 lives, including 123 firemen, and caused about $6.67 billion in property damage.

According to Figgie International's "Automatic" Sprinkler Corporation of America division, 95% of the fires which occur in sprinklered buildings are extinguished before firemen arrive.

Lincoln high school boys and girls basketball teams take on Crookston this week following a pair of impressive performances by the Pirates against Moorhead last week.

Crookston girls beat Moorhead 41-35 Thursday while the Crookston boys lost to Moorhead 68-64 in overtime Friday.

Thief River Falls girls visit Crookston Thursday and the Thief River Falls boys host Crookston Friday. Both are important North Half Region 8AA assignments.

That Moorhead girls team was in Thief River Falls earlier in the week and won 52-31. At that time coach Karen Schumacher said she fully expected 1982-83 to be the Spuds' best year in her seven-year coaching career at the school.

"We played tremendous defense," Crookston coach Harlen Stahlecker told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times after the win. "For the first time this year we played defense as a team instead of just individual efforts. We just didn't give Moorhead that many offensive opportunities."

It was a 4-4 defensive battle for the first quarter, with Moorhead ahead 20-18 at halftime. Crookston went up 30-29 at the end of the third quarter, built a seven-point fourth quarter lead and went into a delay game with 5:50 remaining.

Both teams connected on 17 field goal attempts, but Crookston picked up just seven fouls the entire game and gave Moorhead just one shot at the free throw line. The Pirates, meanwhile, were 7-for-13 foul shooting.

"We came of age in this ball game," said Stahlecker. "We re-established ourselves as a team to be reckoned with. We wanted this game badley and we went out and got it. We had a lot of intensity and our mental attitude has changed. It was our best ball game."

Crookston went to 5-1 with the win, with Moorhead falling to 3-1.

Meanwhile, the Crookston boys rallied from a 60-50 deficit with just 2:08 remaining in regulation time to tie the Spuds 60-60 before losing in overtime.

Toney Kuznik hit a long shot from the top of the key with 15 seconds left to pull Crookston within 60-58, and Moorhead turned the ball over on the Crookston press after the basket. Dave Taus was fouled and missed the front half of a bonus free throw situation. But Steve Berg of the Pirates was there for the rebound, banging it off the glass for the tie with three seconds left.

Moorhead guard Joe Heinen was the difference in the three-minute overtime, connecting on three of four free throws to win it and finish as the Spuds' high scorer with 19 points.

Crookston had a 12-8 first quarter lead and led by as many as eight in the second quarter before settling for a 28-28 tie at intermission. Moorhead led 46-44 at the end of the third quarter.

Thief River Falls also had a halftime tie in an early season game at Moorhead, 18-18, but the Prowlers couldn't match that success in the second half of a 60-46 loss.

Jim Reitmeier, the Pirates' tallest player at 6-3, was game-high scorer with 22 points. He's Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt's brother-in-law. Jeff Bigger had 16 points for the Pirates and Berg had 12.

Thief River Falls, 3-3, is coming off a big win at Bemidji, 44-37 last Friday, and needs a home court win over Crookston this week to keep the momentum going.

TRF Skaters Doing Well At BSU

Bemidji State University hockey coach Mike Gibbons said in a telephone conversation Tuesday that he is "very happy" with the performance of a pair of Thief River Falls skaters on the 1982-83 BSU roster: forward Bob Fitzgerald and defenseman Dave Geatz.

"They're both doing a nice job for us," said Gibbons, the Beavers' coach in the absence of long-time mentor Bob Peters, who is on a leave of absence from the school. Under Gibbons the Beavers are off to a 14-3 start, 6-2 in the NCHA, including a 7-4, 6-2 weekend sweep of Wisconsin-Superior.

"Geatz started real well for us in the first series," noted Gibbons, "but then broke a bone in his foot. It hurt him for a while, but he's come back and has been playing well. He's one of our smaller defensemen, but he's also one of our hardest-hitting defensemen. He's a tough, tough hockey player. He plays very physical."

Geatz, paired with Grand Forks Central's Jim Rood, is getting lots of ice time, according to Gibbons, who skates him on his regular shift, and uses him on the power play and penalty-killing situations.

"Fitz started real well for us," said Gibbons, repeating what he said about Geatz. Statistics prove it to be true, though, with Fitzgerald getting eight goals in the Beavers' first 12 games. But more and more his unit is being used as a checking line against the opponents' top guns, and subsequently the scoring chances have diminished.

"He's made a real improvement over last year, and last year he made an improvement over the year before," pointed out Gibbons. "He's a good, natural athlete — you can tell that right away."

Both Thief River Falls players fit nicely, indicated Gibbons, into a very strong hockey team. "Things are going well," he said. "We have an awful lot of talent. We have championship-caliber talent. It's just a matter of putting it together."

Don Olson Night Is Added To Hockey Schedule

Hockey action in the Thief River Falls sports arena this week will feature three Northland community college games, a Lincoln high school confrontation with long-time rival Roseau and Don Olson Appreciation Night activity prior to the start of Saturday's Section 8 encounter between the Prowlers and Rams.

Giving recognition to Olson, the voice of high school hockey in northwestern Minnesota for 30 years at KTRF radio in Thief River Falls, a promoter of the sport and a statistician for Region 8-Section 8 activity for many years, will take place at center ice before the start of Saturday's 7:30 p.m. game.

The genial Olson has retired as general manager-part owner of KTRF, where he began doing "color" on hockey broadcasts back in 1952. Born in Grand Forks, N.D., but a Thief River Falls resident since 1929, Olson has watched hockey since before the 1944-45 season, which marked the beginning of high school hockey as an official sport under the supervision of the Minnesota State High School League. Saturday, he'll watch the Prowlers and Rams renew their ancient hockey rivalry before departing for Arizona.

Those involved in the sport figured the timing was perfect to give recognition to an individual who has done so much for the sport over the years.

Activity will start with a welcome from Tom Kenville, one of the promoters of the recognition program. Appreciation and awards will come from Bill Rendell of KRWB radio in Roseau on behalf of the area broadcasters; Crookston high school principal Bob Rasmus, chairman of the Section 8 hockey committee; Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck, representing the Minnesota State High School League; Lincoln hockey coach Wendell Grand, representing the Section 8 hockey coaches association; Gayle Kenville and Gayl Bergland, mothers of Lincoln hockey co-captains Tom Kenville, Jr. and Tim Bergland, who will make a presentation to Mrs. Sylvia Olson; John Michael Anderson, president of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club and individual congratulations from members of the 1982-83 Prowlers.

Olson will also take part in a ceremonial puck-dropping to start the game.

Fans are invited to be on hand early for the game to take part in and give recognition to Don and Sylvia Olson.

Meanwhile, the Northland community college hockey team has an important assignment tonight (Wednesday) with a 7:30 p.m. game against the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The two teams haven't met as many times as the Prowlers and Rams, but the rivalry is no less intense. They're both 3-1 in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC).

Northland also has a weekend series here against Mesabi.

Prowlers Beat Pirates 4-2 In Section 8 Play

Ryan Bakke scored twice Tuesday as Thief River Falls got by Crookston 4-2 in Section 8 high school hockey action at Crookston.

Bakke's goals enabled Thief River Falls to gain a 2-2 tie through two periods, then third period goals by Joe Blankenfeld and Tim Bergland won it for the Prowlers, who ran their current unbeaten streak to six games and improved their record to 5-3-1.

A power play goal by Crookston's Mark Lyczewski provided the only scoring in the first period. Bakke tied it 1-1 at 3:56 of the second period, but just 17 seconds later another Crookston power play goal — this time by Rich Clauson — gave the Pirates a 2-1 edge.

Bakke got his second goal for the 2-2 tie at 9:15.

Game-winner was scored by Blankenfeld at 3:05 of the third period, with Bergland adding an insurance goal at 8:49.

Thief River Falls out-shot Crookston 28-20.

"We're very happy with the win," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "That's the second game in a row where we've held our goals-against to two. That's a result of a good defensive effort from the goaltender all the way up to the forwards."

The coaches were also happy with the three-goal production out of the Prowlers' third line, a group that has been playing strong hockey.

It was, however, a costly win for the Prowlers, who lost the services of senior defenseman Rod Harder, who suffered a broken arm in the second period. One of the team's most improved players, Harder will be sidelined for the rest of the 1982-83 season.

"He (Harder) and Jimmy (Geatz) had been playing very well for us on the blueline," acknowledged Grand. "It's a real shame it had to happen. "He's been doing a good job for us."

That forced Brian Johnston into the line-up. Johnston, who was sidelined at the start of the year because of a football injury, made his 1982-83 hockey debut in Saturday's 4-2 win over Lake of the Woods. He was used in spot duty on defense, a role he filled last night until Harder went out.

"We're glad to have had him back," noted Grand. "I feel he played much better than he had in the Lake of the Woods game. Things went much easier for him."

It's been a tough year on the Thief River Falls defensemen. Gary Cornell, hurt at Bemidji earlier this season, remains sidelined and may not return to the line-up until Feb. 1.

TRF Girls Lose After Halftime Tie . . .

Bemidji Is 62-47 Winner With Second Half Burst

A 26-26 halftime tie was shattered by a third quarter Bemidji blitz that crushed Thief River Falls 62-47 Monday in a North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls was to live and die by the outside shooting of Michelle Olson and Paula Meyers. Those two were dynamite when their long-range bombing produced seven of the 10 first half Thief River Falls field goals: four by Olson, who had 15 points by halftime; and three by Meyers, all from better than the 15-to-18 foot range. It was their artillery that made it close in the first half, but their shots were silenced after intermission and the Prowlers' fortunes quickly faded.

"Thief River shot well the first half," acknowledged Bemidji coach Jim Wahl. "That kept them in the game. We played well in the second half; we probably became a little more aggressive and we went to the boards harder."

"We worked the ball around very well in the first half, got some good shots and they were falling," noted Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "Then in the third quarter we hit one of nine, they got all the rebounds and that was the ball game."

Bemidji really didn't get every rebound — it just seemed that way, especially on the offensive boards where the taller Lumberjills scored on seven offensive rebounds in the second half: 14 points. Three times Bemidji got three shots off in a flurry of shooting and rebound activity around the Lumberjills' basket.

"We rebounded a lot better in the second half," agreed Wahl. "We're stronger underneath."

"When their girls are head and shoulders above what you've got, what are you going to do? It finally took its toll," said Schafer about the size difference.

Bemidji started off like a ball of fire, with the Lumberjills hitting their first four shots to jump out 8-2. Lynne Culkins scored from underneath — one of the rare times in the first half the Prowlers penetrated the Bemidji zone — and Meyers lobbed a shot from the corner as a slow Thief River Falls comeback finally narrowed the gap to 12-11 in the final minute of the first quarter. But a Thief River Falls turnover with just 11 seconds left gave Bemidji a last shot, and Kara Abrahamson made it in heavy traffic in the lane as the buzzer sounded for a 14-11 Bemidji spread.

A long swisher from out front by Meyers provided Thief River Falls with its first lead, 19-18, with 4:50 remaining in the second quarter. It stayed close the rest of the half, with a single free throw by Olson tying it 26-26 with 33 seconds left.

All that was quickly forgotten at the start of the third quarter when a full-court Bemidji press that was ineffective the first half suddenly became impassable. After turning the ball over nine times in the first half, Thief River Falls coughed it up 12 times in the third quarter along and got outscored 22-5.

It was rout, 60-37, when reserves took over with still 4:59 remaining in the game.

"It wasn't that we couldn't handle the press," said Schafer. "We just made the mistakes ourselves. The first half we played well, but we weren't in the game mentally in the second half. We made some stupid mistakes."

Abrahamson, one of four seniors in the Bemidji line-up, led the winners with 16 points, but freshman center Tina Erickson, the lone underclassman in the starting five, contributed 13 and Sue Hickerson had 11. Olson had game-high scoring honors with 18 and Meyers had 10.

Thief River Falls shot 32 per cent from the field (17-for-53) and 52 per cent at the free throw line (13-for-25). Bemidji, now 5-3, shot 41 per cent from the field (29-for-71; and 67 per cent at the line (4-for-6). Stats were thrown out of whack by reserves at the end, but Thief River Falls finished with a 37-32 rebound edge — Bemidji did not get a single rebound after the last of the starters left the game midway through the fourth quarter. The Prowlers also topped the turnover figures 27-19.

WITH HER ROUTE to the basket cut off by Bemidji defenders, Thief River Falls center Vicki Fellman passed the ball off to the corner in the second half of Monday's North Half Region 8AA high school basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Bemidji's Tracy Zachman (10), Kara Abrahamson (32) and Tina Erickson (54) converged on Fellman. The Prowlers played the Lumberjills to a 26-26 halftime standoff, but Bemidji ran away with it in the second half, 62-47.

Thursday Night North Border Basketball . . .

MCC, Middle River Girls Match Unbeaten Records

A Marshall County Central-Middle River high school basketball game always generates excitement. It's a feature attraction in those two communities when the long-time rivals renew the series each winter. Thursday night will be no exception as the Nordics and Skippers tangle at Middle River.

However, the spotlight this week is on the girls, not the boys, who normally make the headlines in this match-up. Thursday night it'll be a pair of unbeaten girls teams who square off for the North Border Conference lead and the mid-season bragging rights in Marshall county.

"It'll be a good game," predicted Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "We expect a full house."

"I'm looking forward to Thursday night," said Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "It'll be a tough game. It should be a real even match-up. We're going to have our hands full."

Both are 7-0 and have had strikingly similar scores against common opponents to date. Middle River beat Strandquist 57-16 and Marshall County Central beat the Warriors 58-18. Middle River beat Warroad by 20 points, 51-31, and Marshall County Central won by 25, 66-41. Middle River beat Grygla by 27, 55-28, and Marshall County Central won by 28, 44-16. Last Thursday, Middle River beat Roseau 54-17; Marshall County Central beat Roseau 61-17 Monday.

On the surface it looks like a match-up of Middle River balance against the outstanding individual play of Marshall County Central's Sue Olson. The Skippers have four players averaging between 9 and 14 points: Paula Rantanen, Kari Skoglund, Diane Black and Jody Christofferson. Olson has a 21-point average for the Nordics.

"We need to get better balanced scoring," admits Mjelde, who is confident that players like Nancy Nelson, Debbie Peterson and Shelly Anderson can complement Olson. Neibauer, too, is aware that in addition to Olson, who joined the prestigious 1,000-point club earlier this season, those other girls are capable of hurting the Skippers.

"The transition game is the key," said Neibauer in basketball-like jargon. "If we can keep them out of their transition game (quickly adapting from offense to defense and from defense to offense in fast-break, full-court press style), we can beat them. We don't want to get into a running game with them."

"We're going to have a tough time trying to shut down their offense," said Mjelde. "And we have to cut down our turnovers."

Grygla 46
Warroad 40

Grygla's struggling offense came up with its highest point production of the 1982-83 season Monday as the Eagles won a 46-40 North Border Conference game at Warroad.

In their previous two starts since the holiday break the Eagles had managed just 16 and 22 points.

"I'm more thrilled about the points than I am about the win," quipped Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "We finally started hitting the shots."

Grygla ran up a 17-5 first quarter lead, settled for a 29-21 halftime edge and maintained a 37-29 third quarter spread.

Tammy Anderson had 17 points for the Eagles and Kathy Foss had 10. Robin Marvin of Warroad led all scorers with 27.

Raduenz praised the play of freshman Kari Klamar and Carol Verbout who came off the bench and played well when the Eagles ran into foul trouble.

In the shooting department, Grygla was 18-for-56 from the field (32 per cent) and 10-for-22 at the free throw line (45 per cent) while Warroad was 13-for-51 from the floor (25 per cent) and 14-for-25 at the line (56 per cent). Grygla held a 41-30 rebound advantage.

Now 5-3 Grygla hosts Badger Thursday and visits Greenbush Monday.

MCC 61
Roseau 17

Roseau managed to get off just 18 field goal attempts Monday as Marshall County Central breezed to a one-sided 61-17 home court triumph.

"I was real pleased with our play," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "Defensively we played really well."

Sue Olson scored 24 points for the winners, with Debbie Peterson getting 14 and Nancy Nelson 10.

Marshall County Central shot 41 per cent from the field (26-for-63) and 35 per cent at the free throw line (9-for-26). Roseau shot 38 per cent from the field (7-for-18) and 20 per cent from the line (3-for-15). Marshall County Central had a 36-24 rebound edge and Roseau had 47 of the game's 56 turnovers.

In addition to Thursday's first place North Border Conference showdown at Middle River, the 7-0 Nordics host Warren Saturday.

RLF 36

Plummer started with a 14-4 first quarter lead and went on to record a 50-36 Polar Conference win at Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Bonnie Fisher had a 15-point, 20-rebound game for the Cardinals, who ran their record to 6-1. Jody Pahlen scored 14 points for the winners and Sheila Jaeger had 10.

Plummer shot 34 per cent from the field (23-for-68) but shot just 21 per cent at the free throw line (4-for-19). Red Lake Falls shot 27 per cent from the field (16-for-60).

While happy with the win, Plummer coach Rick Koivisto still wasn't satisfied with the overall play of the Cardinals, who will host Goodridge Thursday.

Nordics Edge Tigers 54-53

Marshall County Central reached the .500 level Tuesday with a 54-53 high school basketball win at Stephen.

Greg Hestekind came off the bench and scored 13 points to lead a balanced Marshall County Central attack, with Larry Larson getting 10. Dan Schindele scored 17 to lead Stephen.

"It wasn't a ragged game, but from our standpoint it lacked intensity," admitted Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland.

Marshall County Central led 16-15 at the end of the first quarter and had a 32-27 halftime edge thanks to some 50 per cent shooting from the field, many of those shots from outside a Stephen zone. The Nordics led by as many as 12 points late in the third quarter before Stephen narrowed the gap.

Ueland was most happy with the play of Hestekind, Lowell Engen and Ken Krohn, who all came off the bench and played well for the 3-3 Nordics.

Marshall County Central finished with a 44 per cent shooting night from the field (26-for-59). The Nordics were 2-for-5 at the free throw line. Stephen shot 46 per cent from the field (21-for-46) and went 11-for-15 at the line. The Tigers had a 28-20 rebound edge but also topped the turnover figures 18-11.

"We probably played the best against pressure defense as we have all year," said Ueland, pointing to the low turnover figures.

Marshall County Central hosts Kennedy Friday and visits Thief River Falls Tuesday.

Middle River 73
Sacred Heart 42

Kevin Roppe pumped in 29 points on a 13-for-18 shooting night to lead Middle River past visiting East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 73-42 Tuesday.

"Roppe had a hot night," acknowledged Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who pointed out that many of those shots were from the 15-to-18 foot range. "That really opens things up when you get somebody hitting like that."

Kevin McKeever added 10 points to the Skippers' attack as they built quarter leads of 19-12, 35-24 and 52-32. Darin West scored 22 points for the Eagles, with 18 of them coming in the first half.

Middle River shot 51 per cent from the field for the game (32-for-63) and went 9-for-12 at the free throw line. Sacred Heart shot 43 per cent from the field (19-for-44) and was 4-for-9 at the line.

The win lifted the Skippers to 3-3 for the year, with Warroad visiting Middle River Friday.

Grygla 47
Goodridge 42

Grygla ended a four-game losing streak and Goodridge saw a four-game winning streak come to an end Tuesday as the Eagles surprised the rival Huskies 47-42 at Grygla.

"I'm very happy. I had kind of forgotten how it feels to win," said Grygla coach Vern Johnson, whose team opened the year with a 48-34 win at Strandquist back on Dec. 3 but hadn't won since.

After a 14-10 Grygla first quarter lead, it was a 24-24 halftime draw. The Eagles went back in front 38-33 in the third quarter.

Rodney Hagen had 14 points and Tony McLean 10 for the Eagles, who were forced to play much of the second half without the services of top Mike Brateng, the team's top player who ran into foul trouble. Johnson credited Jeff Klein, Hagen, Bill Neuschwander and McLean for picking up slack when Brateng was forced to the bench.

Normally plagued by poor shooting, Grygla shot a solid 47 per cent from the field (21-for-45), while Goodridge was the one suffering from cold shooting on a 26 per cent night (16-for-61).

"We took good shots," explained Johnson. "We worked the ball around, hit the open man and for a change, the shots were falling in for us."

"Not to take anything away from Grygla, we just didn't execute," said Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We were just pathetic on offense. You shoot 16-for-61 and you're not going to win many ball games."

Darrin Easthouse scored 17 points for the Huskies, with Jeff Langan getting 11.

From the free throw line Grygla was 5-for-11 (45 per cent) and Goodridge was 10-for-18 (55 per cent).

"I'd have to say it was an upset," admitted Johnson. "We handled the pressure situation better. We didn't break down at the end like we have in the past."

Goodridge 4-4, hosts Plummer Friday. Grygla, 2-4, will wait until Tuesday to host Warroad.

Mustangs Face Tough Schedule Next 2 Weeks

Oklee-Plummer cooperative high school wrestling program dual meet season record climbed to 5-0 Tuesday with an easy 53-9 win over Bagley at Oklee, but coach Charles Bishop says the upcoming schedule will be a true indication how strong the Mustangs really are this winter.

In their next three starts the Mustangs wrestle Thursday at Greenbush, Tuesday vs. Fosston at Plummer and Fri., Jan. 21, at Fertile-Beltrami. That's the core of the Region 8A wrestling power this year.

"We have three tough matches in a row coming up," pointed out Bishop. "We're going to find out in about eight day's time what we're made of."

Grade School Basketball Is Run For Girls

Some 110 participants in grades 4 and 5 are currently involved in the 1982-83 Thief River Falls elementary school girls basketball program, being run by volunteer coaches and help.

Coaches include Cindy Vennes at Northrop, Eileen Daniels and Polly Eddington at Washington, Tim Gould at Knox and Joanne Fletcher at Mark Twain.

A schedule of games will begin Jan. 17, running every Monday and Wednesday through Feb. 16 before playoffs are held. Fourth grade playoff will be staged Feb. 21-23, and fifth grade playoff will be held Feb. 28-March 2.

"It's been a very successful program," explained program coordinator Kaye Marvin, who conducted a similar program for volleyball this past fall. Persons interested in helping out in the program are asked to call her at 681-3259.

Panthers Win 46-38 . . .

Prowlers Lose To Park Rapids

For the fourth straight game a third quarter letdown cost the Lincoln high school girls basketball team Tuesday as the Prowlers dropped a 46-38 decision to Park Rapids in the Lincoln gym after leading 23-14 at halftime.

Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer was at a loss to explain the Prowlers' trend to collapse at the start of the second half. In their last four starts — all losses — the Prowlers have scored five points three times and six points on another occasion in the third quarter to waste strong first half performances.

"We just do not score in the third quarter," acknowledged Schafer. "I don't know what the problem is. I can't explain it."

Thief River Falls came out of the third quarter trailing 31-28, then watched as Park Rapids salted the game away with seven fourth quarter free throws.

Paula Meyers was the only Thief River Falls scorer in double figures, finishing with 16. Orla Hohnstadt, a 6-2 junior, scored 21 points to lead the Panthers. "She's the best big girl we've played against," commented Schafer.

Thief River Falls shot 30 per cent from the field (18-for-61) and was 2-for-8 at the free throw line. Park Rapids shot 38 per cent from the field (18-for-47) and was 10-for-20 at the line.

"Free throws hurt us," noted Schafer. "We missed some 1-and-1 opportunities that hurt us, and they made their free throws."

Rest of the figures were even, with Thief River Falls owning a slight 26-25 edge on the boards and the turnovers even at 19 apiece.

Thief River Falls, 2-5, will be in Crookston Thursday.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

by John Michael Anderson

Coach Rory Anderson's VFW Bantam A hockey team played three periods and most of the overtime in Bloomington Kennedy's end of the rink, but still lost 3-2 in overtime to 'Let's Play Hockey's No. 4-ranked team while playing in the quarterfinals of the Fergus Falls invitational over the weekend.

Al Erickson and Bob Geatz scored Thief River Falls goals against Kennedy. In consolation play, Thief River Falls played Spring Lake Park, the No. 18 team in the state, according to Let's Play Hockey, and lost 4-3, with Chris Solheim scoring the hat trick in a losing effort.

Thief River Falls won the seventh-eighth place game 7-0, with Shayne Anderson getting the shutout to head the team effort as Bob Geatz, Steve Fellman, Scott Novak, Dave Winjum, Jim Breiland, Dave Johnson and Blair Lund scored goals.

It was a strong tournament field, including six teams rated in Let's Play Hockey's Top 20: No. 4 Bloomington Kennedy; No. 18 Spring Lake Park; No. 15 Fergus Falls; No. 16 Columbia Heights; No. 17 Roseau; and No. 18 Bemidji. Final tournament results found the "North" winning all four games Sunday, with Bemidji beating Bloomington Kennedy 7-3 in the championship game; Fergus Falls topping the Columbia Heights 5-4 for third place honors; Roseau over Spring Lake Falls 5-4 for the consolation trophy; and Thief River Falls taking seventh.

Defending state champion Greenway-Coleraine shut out coach Tim Engelstad's Eagles Pee-Wee A team 6-0 in opening round action of the Bemidji invitational. Thief River Falls rebounded to beat Bemidji 6-4 in consolation play. It was 3-3 after one period, with John Thompson, John Azure and mitch Wilebski notching Thief River Falls goals. Kent Hamre scored twice in the second period and once in the third to preserve the victory as goalie Terry Hunt made 14 of his 20 saves in the first period.

Thief River Falls then defeated Fergus Falls 5-2 for consolation championship. John Azure scored one goal while Kent Hamre got the other four. John Thompson and Rick Looker had two assists each. It was a super team effort for Thief River Falls, as their breakouts and passing were sharp and their defense and forwards really moved the puck well as their record climbed to 7-5.

Pee-Wee C team beat East Grand Forks twice on Sunday by scores of 7-0 and 5-1.

MSHSL Record Football Playoff Crowds Noted

Official attendance for the 35 games played in the five classes of the championship series of the 11th annual Minnesota State High School League state football playoffs held during a three-week period throughout the state in November was a record high 87,560, according to MSHSL officials.

The record eclipses the old mark of 74,155 set in 1981.

Paid attendance figures for quarterfinal-round games totaled 28,436; semifinal games drew 16,514; while the five championship games in the Metrodome attracted 42,610 on-lookers.

Highest figure to watch a single game in the quarterfinal and semifinal series was the 5,277 that witnessed the Class AA quarterfinal game at Osseo between Osseo and Elk River.

Thanks to Prep Bowl I and a significant rise in the state girls volleyball tournament the total attendance for 1982 state fall sports MSHSL state tournaments was up 16,761.

A record 118,150 persons watched the six state events where admission is charged. In 1981 a total of 101,389 were on hand for the same six sporting events — football, girls volleyball, boys soccer, girls soccer, girls swimming and diving and boys gymnastics. No admission is charged for the state girls tennis and state boys and girls cross country meets.

State football playoffs increased by 13,405 when a record 87,560 persons watched the 35 playoff games. Girls volleyball attendance reached a record 18,476, (up 3,461); boys soccer totaled, 5,901 (down 1,366); girls soccer totaled 2,881 (up 1,525); girls swimming and diving totaled 2,102 (down 49); and boys gymnastics totaled 1,230 (down 215).

LHS JV Girls Top Park Rapids,

Lincoln high school junior varsity girls basketball team lost to Bemidji Monday but beat Park Rapids Tuesday for a 3-4 record.

Bemidji triumphed 42-21, building quarter leads of 12-5, 26-10 and 33-14. Crystal Larson scored nine points in a losing effort.

Thief River Falls handled Park Rapids 42-16 Tuesday with Penni Johnston scoring 15 points.

Wildlife Group Auction Sale Nets $250,000

Sale of a 10-year backlog of confiscated wildlife products has generated an estimated $250,000 in bids from people across the country, according to Clark R. Bavin, chief of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's law enforcement division. Proceeds from the sale, less administrative costs, will be deposited in the U.S. Treasury.

Bavin said he was pleased to clear out the storage facilities and to be rid of the "paperwork nightmare" of caring for the products. They have been stored at government expense since their involvement in violations of various federal and state wildlife conservation laws.

"It's unforunate that so many people had to learn about these laws the hard way," Bavin said. "Many of the laws have been on the books for years. We hope that everyone, especially those in the travel and fashion industries, will make a special effort to learn about them so that they can be spared the expense and embarrassment of having their shipments confiscated when they arrive illegally in this country."

Bavin said 574 people placed about 28,000 bids in the largest sale of its kind of 380 lots of ivory, reptile leather products, fur coats, and assorted curios made from wildlife. Several people bid on the entire collection, while as many as 150 bid on many of the individual lots. James Pollard, chief of the sales section of the General Services Administration's National Capital Region, said the number of bids was unusually high for a sealed bid sale. "But," he added, "it was not unexpected, given the wide publicity and general interest in widlifematters."

Highest bid, and also a tie bid broken by the flip of a coin, was $14,753.30 for 94 fur coats sold as one lot. The second high bid of $14,144 was for 640 pieces of black coral jewelry. Other winning bids were $357.99 for an armadillo guitar with broken strings; $909 for nine armadillo handbags; $552.60 for 36 elephant hide beer mugs; $1,928.88 for a 53.8 pound elephant tusk; $180 for four stuffed caimans; $200 for a stuffed coatimundi; $500 for a large elephant foot stand; $688 for four elephant foot ice buckets; $220 for 44 hollow ostrich eggs; $1,257 for a lion skin; $1,678 for a mink coat; and $310 for 72 pairs of ladies python shoes.

The six winners Saturday advance to the district level Feb. 5 at Hibbing.

Hunter Education Program

Minnesota advanced hunter education program of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is currently seeking adult volunteer instructors throughout the state.

Classes involving 16 hours of instruction and clinics of three hours can be held statewide with a sufficient number of instructors. Volunteer instructors are responsible for conducting classes and clinics in their local areas.

Advanced hunter education is a program directed to Minnesota sportsmen 16 years of age and older and supports their continued efforts to preserve wildlife habitat and the privilege of hunting. It is a voluntary program designed to deal effectively with hunter attitudes through classes, clinics and sportsmen's peer pressure while increasing the hunter's knowledge and appreciation of wildlife and wildlife habitat.

It is not the youth firearm safety program, which is conducted under the direction of the DNR's Enforcement Division.

All training sessions begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday evenings and end at 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

All participants will receive an instructors I.D. card, arm patch and instructor chevron, credit for attending a full 16-hour class at no charge, and a wildlife art print.

Following are dates and locations for training sessions:

Duluth highway building, Jan. 21-22, Junction of Central Entrance and Mesabi Road; Sauk Rapids high school, Feb. 11-12; Detroit Lakes vocational-technical school, March 11-12; and Willmar city auditorium, April 15-16, 311 SW 6th St.

More detailed information can be had by writing to Dick Anderson, P.O. Box 922, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Resort Closings

Based on a sample survey of Minnesota's approximately 2,000 resorts, the Department of Natural Resources, division of waters, found that the number of resorts in the state is declining.

As part of a project to update information on Minnesota shorelands, division personnel sought interviews with the owners of some 200 resorts.

They found that 37 were no longer in business, many others never answered repeated phone calls and some owners declined to be interviewed.

DNR survey was an attempt to better understand the trends in resort use and the types of problems afflicting the industry, since these factors have direct implications for resource and shoreland management.

"The majority of the resorts seem to fit the 'ma and pa' description," said Steve Prestin, survey coordinator. "If we exclude two very large resorts in the sample having 200 units each, we find the average number of units to be 7.5 with a range of one to 31."

He said the small size of the average resort may be a major factor affecting profitability of the operation. Problems cited by resort operators included high overhead costs, high taxes, rising insurance rates, high interest rates and escalating utility bills.

Some owners said school calendars limit the length of the resort season and others expressed an opinion that fishing was poor.

Prestin said that many resorters seem to view their operations "as more of a lifestyle experience than a business."

More than a third of those interviewed said resort income does not cover expenses and many had little or no information on occupancy rates, the source of their clientele and the per cent of their occupancy that was repeat business.

About one half of the resort owners who responded reported no change in occupancy during the past five years.

Of the 37 resorts in the study that were closed, interviewers were able to determine the reason in only 13 cases. Seven cited low profits, four listed ill health of the owner, one owner retired and one resort closed due to a fire.

Of 18 resorts that ceased operations, the study found six had been subdivided, four had all units relocated, two were converted to cluster developments, two were idle, one became a condominium, one provided employee housing for a bar-restaurant, one was demolished by fire and never rebuilt, and one is used for housing for family and friends.

Questions regarding the study can be addressed to Steve Prestin, DNR Division of Waters, phone 296-9226.

Interstate Seed Announces "Payment-In-Crop" (PIC) Program

A new Interstate hybrid sunflower seed program called PIC - "Payment-In-Crop" - has been designed to help stretch dollars in local communities. PIC will extend the farmers' line of credit and allow them to trade a portion of their fall '83 sunflower crop as payment for Interstate Hybrid Seed. In other words, the farmer hedges his purchase when he buys his seed.

The Interstate PIC program will be managed by local Interstate dealers, who will have available specified quantities of proven varieties that the farmer can use in the PIC program. The varieties available will be IS 894, IS 897, IS 7775, IS 7775S, and IS 7116. All seed will be size 4, the most popular size, and will be available for immediate release.

Complete details will be available the middle of January. If this program interests you, contact your local Interstate dealer now. This program is designed so your local year-round Interstate dealer can offer another service to farmers.

Quantities are limited under the PIC program.

It was pointed out that the district's current $30.00-day may be the lowest in the area. The Board directed the Administration to develop optional substitute pay proposals. These will be brought to the Board for consideration at the January meeting. Substitutes hired in January will be informed that the $30-day rate may be adjusted at the January meeting.

The Goodridge Education Association had no questions or concerns for the Board to consider.

The program offers positions in areas such as Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, Olympic National Forest in Washington, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska, Havasu Resource Area of the Bureau of Land Management in Arizona and on the Appalachian Trail on the east coast.

Requests for applications are currently being accepted by the association. Call or send a postcard with your age to: Student Conservation Association, Inc. P.O. Box 550, Charlestown, NH 03603; phone 603-826-5206.

Positions are offered on a competitive basis for high school young men and women between the ages of 16 and 18, in the high school program, and for men and women 18 years of age or older in the park, forest and resource assistant program. Interest in serving in the program is the only prerequisite for eligibility. Positions are currently available for summer and fall of 1983.

High school program offers group work, educational and recreational experiences of three to five weeks. Equal numbers of young men and women, age 16-18, from all geographic areas of the United States participate in groups of six, 10, or 12 under skilled, adult leadership. Two to four weeks are devoted to conservation work and one week is spent hiking and exploring a wilderness area.

Work projects often include such tasks as trail maintenance and construction, revegetation of overused areas, boundary fencing, and construction of bridges and shelters. The groups are usually located in isolated backcountry areas and operate out of self-contained, tent camps.

In the park, forest and resource assistant program, men and women 18 years of age or older spend between eight and 12 weeks performing duties similar to those of professional agency personnel. The assignments are made on an individual basis. Jobs range from giving interpretive programs for park visitors to conducting field research and assisting rangers in backcountry patrol.

Young men and women who are interested in the high school program and who are between the ages of 16 and 18 should send a postcard requesting a "Program Listing" and application from the Student Conservation Association, Inc., Box 550H, Charlestown, NH 03603. Deadline for applying for high school summer programs is March 1, 1983.

Individuals 18 years of age or older interested in the park, forest and resource assistant program should send a postcard requesting a "Listing of Positions" and application to the Student Conservation Association, Inc., Box 550C, Charlestown, NH 03603. The telephone number is 603-826-5206. Deadline for receipt of applications for park, forest and resource assistant summer positions is March 1, 1983.

Association urges interested persons to apply as far in advance of these dates as possible.

In 1982, 975 volunteers served in nearly 200 areas across the United States. More than 7,500 young men and women have participated in the program since its founding in 1957.

Participants are recruited from all geographic areas of the United States and reprsent a broad cross-section of people from varied socio-economic backgrounds.

Applicants have a wide selection of areas from which to choose. In 1983, the association will carry out programs in cooperation with four federal agencies including the National Park Service, U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. In addition, the program will serve several member clubs of the Appalachian Trail Conference on the east coast, a number of Nature Conservancy chapters, Merck Forest in Vermont and other state and local areas around the country. Programs are financed on a cost sharing basis with these agencies. Association raises its share of the funds from foundations and corporations and from donations from its membership.

Student Conservation Program is an equal opportunity program which considers all qualified applicants for placement without regard to race, creed, color or national origin.

DPS Offers Braking Tips For Winter

Ice and snow make stopping on roads hazardous unless you use caution, warned Commissioner Ken Dirkzwager of the Minnesota department of public safety (DPS). He advised that lowered speed combined with careful steering and braking can effectively reduce the chance of skidding on slippery surfaces.

"Stopping on ice may take as much as nine times the normal, dry pavement distance," said Dirkzwager. "For this reason drivers traveling on icy roads should begin slowing down long before they reach an intersection, stop sign or light and follow behind other vehicles at a much greater distance than on dry roads."

A motorist forced to make a quick stop on ice or snow needs to avoid locking or slamming on the brake. Proper braking technique depends on the type of brakes used.

To stop on a slippery surface with disc brakes, the DPS recommends light, constant pressure to the brake pedal just short of lock-up. Follow this with an easy but slight let-up of the pressure and repeat the entire process as needed. Vehicles equipped with shoe and drum brakes can use the well-known technique of rapidly pumping brakes.

Steering for maximum vehicle control on ice roads, in snow storms or in a freezing rain means both hands on the wheel at all time. Don't oversteer but when the rear end of the vehicle starts skidding to one side, the driver should ease up on the accelerator and steer the front wheels toward the direction in which the rear end is skidding. For example: If the rear of the vehicle is skidding left, turn the steering wheel slowly and smoothly to the left.

Other recommended safety practices for winter drivers include:

—Using vehicle headlights in reduced light or bad weather conditions to see and be seen.

—Removing all snow from vehicle windshields, lights, hood, trunk and roof before traveling. Unremoved snow can slide onto the windshield or rear window obstructing vision.

—Checking tires for sufficient tread and correct air pressure. When possible, use snow tires or chains when traveling on ice or snow.

—Carrying emergency tools such as battery cables, a shovel, flashlight, flares, etc. Being prepared for the unexpected can prevent delays and injuries.

—Examining the vehicle's exhaust system for leaks and rust spots. Failure to repair faulty equipment could lead to dangerous carbon monoxide poisoning.

—Maintaining a safe margin of space between vehicles and lowering speed for adverse weather conditions.

CRD Is Taking Spring Grant Applications

Governor's council on rural development has announced opening of the application process for the spring grant program, and is currently requesting proposals for projects that further its mission and objectives.

Qualified profit and non-profit organizations, public agencies or private corporations are invited to submit proposal applications. In general, the council will consider proposals for projects that: 1) are rural development oriented with short-term, measurable, high-visibility impacts and are action-oriented as opposed to plans and studies; 2) will use grant funds as seed money supplemented by other local, private, or public resources; and 3) have at a minimum a regional, or preferably statewide impact, or which clearly demonstrate strong potential for project replication in other rural areas of Minnesota.

Projects to be considered must be designed to provide primary benefit to farmers, farm families, low-income rural residents, rural women, beginning farmers, rural small business person, rural youth, or unemployed or underemployed rural residents.

Proposals will be accepted at the council's office until 4 p.m., February 15. Funding for projects selected will begin approximately May 30.

And, remember, at your Banco Bank your deposits are insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Four Strings

Only four strings! But these four strings offer endless possibilities of tone and harmony. They open to man new horizons of beauty and happiness.

And yet, improperly played, these four strings can bring forth unbelievable discord!

There are four strings in life—with similar possibilities. Mind . . . Character . . . Courage . . . Faith!

The truths that fill our minds, the ideals that mold our character, the purposes to which our courage is given, the realities in which we believe; these can fill our lives with rich beauty and happiness or drab ugliness and sorrow.

For centuries our churches and synagogues have been the maestro of these strings of life—helping men to bring from their own souls the harmony and beauty God has put there.

You can find music in everyday living through regular worship and prayer.

Making Family Life More Fun

WINTER VACATION TIPS

For families that enjoy change of season vacations, remember that water and sand can reflect enough sunlight to burn you under a hat or a beach umbrella.

According to travel experts, more families are enjoying split vacations these days, taking one in the summer and one in the winter. Here, then, are some winter vacation tips from the experts;

- Don't let bad weather or holiday traffic upset your travel plans. If you're flying, leave enough time to reach the airport 45 to 60 minutes before the flight. This way you'll be calm and relaxed—with all details in order—when you board the plane.
- If you're changing season, and heading for a warm climate, make sure you and the youngsters limit your first exposure to the sun to twenty minutes or less. Then, you can increase your sunbathing daily to achieve a gradual tan.
- Don't forget to take along a sunscreen. Waterproof sunscreens, such as Sundown from Johnson & Johnson, resist removal by water or perspiration, maintaining their labeled degrees of protection for up to 80 minutes in the water.
- Remember that the weather and time of day affect the sun's strength. You can receive a severe burn even on a foggy or hazy day.
- If you've decided on a winter's ski vacation, remember that at high altitudes your risk of burning is greater because there is less atmosphere to absorb the sun's rays. No matter where you are, the sun is strongest between 10 A.M. and 2 P.M.
- It would be farsighted of you, if you wear eyeglasses, to take along an extra pair, or at least a copy of your lens prescription.

You can put yourself and your family on the road to vacation fun and safety by following these sensible tips.

Time To Count Blessings

Following was written by Allene Arthur in the "Desert Sun" newspaper of Palm Springs, CA:

BE THANKFUL THAT. . .

There are those who prepare themselves to do what we couldn't or wouldn't do. . . fight forest fires, perform heart bypasses, rescue mountain climbers, perfect vaccine, apprehend criminals.

Our laws guarantee education for our youth. Our laws guarantee retirement income for our elders.

We have pushbuttons for immediate lights, warm ovens, cool air, fresh coffee, music, cold root beer, the evening news.

We know how to prevent polio, measles, smallpox, diphtheria.

We also know how to prevent sunburn, hangovers, cigarette cough and overdrawn bank accounts.

It still costs less than a quarter to mail a letter, buy a newspaper, make a phone call, chew some gum, dry your clothes, or eat an apple.

Some things are free. Looking into clear, starry heavens is free; so is the fragrance of a fruit tree in bloom, the first caress of spring sunshine, the music of "I love you."

BE THANKFUL IF. . .

You saved your nostalgic photos, records and letters.

Your haircuts turned out to be exactly what you had in mind.

You have the courage to apologize.

You weren't nominated for treasurer.

You are equipped with gifts no one can buy. . . an ear for melody, a sense of direction, a natural empathy with others, a pleasing speaking voice, honor, a sense of humor.

One of both of your parents are living, so you still have the opportunity to do for them a fraction of what they once did for you.

Your teenagers eschew angel dust, bombing the Standard Oil building, and ripping off grandmothers.

The spots came out at the cleaners.

On April 15, the IRS owes you, instead of you them.

You see well, hear well, walk well. . . or any two out of three.

BE THANKFUL WHEN. . .

You're getting along with your spouse, relatives, children, in-laws, neighbors and co-workers all at once.

The dog is finally housebroken.

It's twilight, your work is finished for the day, and you're driving past early-twinkling lights toward a gathering of good friends.

Your child says "please" and "thank you" without prompting.

They open a new checkstand at the supermarket just as you approach with your heaped basket.

Your soul expands with understanding as the worship service begins.

The baby sleeps through the night.

The effort is made toward a sincere compliment — whether you are the donor or the recipient.

The biopsy is negative.

You have an uninterrupted hour alone with the brand-new issue of your favorite magazine.

Your bathroom scale tells you it was worth it all.

One more person begins to understand he needn't be afraid of contemptuous or suspicious of another human because his face, accent, color or church differs from his own.

BE THANKFUL FOR. . .

Pleasures we can depend on — a full moon, the surf's rythm, the taste of strawberries, holding hands.

A land free from war.

Blow driers, adding machines, scotch tape, ski lifts, Band Aids, Ballpoints, automatic garage openers, bug spray.

The feel of the warm, round softness of a baby's head cradled between your shoulder and cheek.

The released ecstacy when pain ceases.

Cole Porter's lyrics, Neil Simon's comedy, Duke Ellington's compositions, Shakespeare's genuis, Pavariotti's tenor, Woody Allen's anything.

The oblivion of sleep, which gives each morning a fresh new beginning.

Telephones, cables, radio, television, satellites, and all forms of communication which bring doctors, nations, love, safety and information closer and sooner.

Permanent press.

That teacher who inspired you, or gave you something which stayed with you forever.

Garbage disposals.

The chance of birth which placed you here. . . instead of among the majority of the earth's population which is illiterate, diseased and hungry.

Ships that float and planes that fly, so that we in the fortunate minority may share.

The mistakes you made which taught you.

Warm blankets and clean sheets, the Twenty-third Psalm, a kitten playing.

Hope, which can never completely be extinguished.

Plain-Talk

Regulations have now been set in motion to require legal language to be simplified and therefore more clearly understood by a greater number of people. It may be argued that complicated wording is necessary to cover specifics of legal situation, but we would agree that a good deal of simplification could be done without creating any problems.

An exaggeration in the use of unnecessary terminology is the following study from the Clark County Press of Nielsville, WI. Popular sayings are cloaked in obtuse terminology, such as: "Girls should never kiss and tell" is phrased, "Female homosapiens must deter from interlocution post osculation." See how many of the following you can decipher. If you get more than 80 per cent right, you qualify to work for the U.S. government:

(1) As with the sire, so it is with the scion.

(2) A beheld vessel never exceeds 100 degrees Celsius.

(3) Prodigality is produced by precipitancy.

(4) It is not proper for mendicants to be indicative of preference.

(5) Pulchritude does not penetrate below the dermal plane.

(6) Period of preeminence is passed through by each and every canine.

(7) It is fruitless to become lachrymose because of scattered lacteal fluid.

(8) Articles which coruscate are not fashioned from aureate material, at least not necessarily.

(9) Your immature galliformes must not be calculated prior to their being produced.

(10) Lithodial fragments ought not to be hurled by tenants of vitreous material.

(11) A feathered creature clasped in the manual members is the equivalent, value-wise, of a brace in the growth.

(12) Cleve gramineous matter for fodder during the period when the orb of the day is refulgent.

(13) It is fondness for notes of exchange that constitutes the tuberous structure of all satanically inspired principles.

(14) A perissodactyl ungulate mammal may may be addressed toward aqueous fluid but it cannot be compelled to quaff.

(15) A detached fragment of the terrestial lithosphere, whether of ingneous, sedimentary or metamorphic origin and whether acquiring its approximation of sphericity through hydraulic action of other attrition, when continuously maintained in motion by reason of the instrumentality of gravitional forces constantly acting to lower its center of gravity thus resulting in a rotational movement around its temporary axis and with its velocity accelerated by an increase in the angle of declivity is, because of abrasive action produced by the incessant but irregular contact between its periphery and the continguous terrain, effectively prevented from accumulating on its external surface, any appreciable modicum of cryptogamous vegetation normally propagated in umbrageous situations under optimum conditions of undeviating atmospheric humidity, solar radiation, quiescence, and comparative sequestration from erosive agencies.

The answers are:

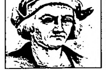
(1) Like father, like son.
(2) A watched pot never boils.
(3) When it rains, it pours.
(4) Beggars can't be choosers.
(5) Beauty is only skin deep.
(6) Every dog has his day.
(7) Don't cry over spilled milk.
(8) All that glitters is not gold.
(9) Don't count your chickens before they hatch.
(10) People in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.
(11) A bird in the hand is better than two in the brush.
(12) Make hay while the sun shines.
(13) The love of money is the root of all evil.
(14) You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink.
(15) A rolling stone gathers no moss.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A young man about town received the following card from one of his girlfriends at Christmas: "I hope you are not still angry with me. I want to explain that I was really joking when I told you that I didn't mean what I said about reconsidering my decision not to change my mind. Please believe I really mean this."

THEN and NOW!

No one really knows exactly when people first began to appreciate that product from the cacao bean known as chocolate.



Christopher Columbus

THEN: Historians have found that the Maya Indians of Central America and the Aztecs of Mexico were cultivating cacao beans before Columbus discovered America. The Aztecs used the beans as money and also ground them to make a rich beverage.

Cortes took some cacao beans back to Spain in 1528 and by 1606 they had been introduced in Italy. From then on it was only a matter of time before chocolate became popular in Europe and found its way back to America.

NOW: Chocolate is popular in most of the world today. More and more Americans are discovering the joys of gourmet chocolates. In this category, the number one seller is Godiva, the master chocolatier, which makes chocolates from recipes perfected in Brussels, Belgium more than a century ago. Godiva chocolates, sculptured in special, unique molds filled with gourmet confections and high-quality fruits and nuts are available in fine department and specialty shops throughout the United States. Chocolate lovers can also receive a free catalogue of chocolate delights by writing to Godiva Chocolatier, 3802 22nd St., Long Island City, New York 11101.

4-H Offers

The Minnesota Extension Service identifies five "life skills" that are important to the development of young people. They are learning to learn, relating to change using knowledge, developing social responsibility and developing self.

4-H is a unique youth program. It is an informal learn by doing educational program. It is a blend of boys and girls, parents and volunteers, working, learning and growing together. 4-H uses real life goals. The focus is on human enteraction with an overall goal of acquiring "life skills" to help in recognizing and responding to significant events in life.

4-H projects help 4-Hers develop these five life skills, as they learn important practical, everyday skills. These skills are learned and developed through hands on experiences, sewing a dress, making a foot stool, mounting insects, training on animal and etc.

4-H projects are experiences that help 4-Hers learn to make decisions and how to organize their time. The member must decide which projects to take each year and how much time to dedicate toward each project. Throughout the year many decisions must be made while carrying out the project. This decision making process lets the members assume responsibility for their own actions and gives them personal satisfaction of reaching their goals. If you or someone you know could benefit from involvement in a 4-H program, please contact Alice Colby, Marshall County 4-H agent, courthouse in Warren, telephone no. 745-5232.

PORK AND RICE HERALD YEAR OF THE PIG

The Chinese New Year Festival on February 13 will mark The Year of the Pig.

What better way to herald the occasion than by serving a dish of economical yet delicious Pork Chops Cantonese with fluffy, hot rice? Pork and rice are among the better market buys and both combine beautifully with the flavors of this sweet-sour sauce.

Pork chops, pineapple chunks and carrot slices nestle in a savory sauce on a bed of hot rice.

PORK CHOPS CANTONESE

4 to 6	pork chops (about 1-1/2 pounds)
	Salt and ground black pepper
1/4	cup vegetable oil
1	cup chopped onions
1	can (20 ounces) pineapple chunks (drain; reserve syrup)
1/4	cup dry sherry
1	tablespoon cornstarch
1/2	teaspoon ground ginger
3	tablespoons soy sauce
1	cup sliced celery
1	cup thinly sliced carrots
2 to 3	cups hot cooked rice

Season pork chops with salt and pepper. Heat oil in large skillet. Add chops and brown on each side. Remove all but 2 teaspoons fat. Add onions and saute lightly. Stir in pineapple syrup and water to make 1-1/4 cups. Add sherry. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until chops are tender. Blend cornstarch, ginger, and soy sauce. Stir into meat mixture. Cook about 1 minute or until slightly thickened. Add celery, carrots, and pineapple chunks. Cover and cook until vegetables are tender crisp, about 10 minutes. Serve with beds of fluffy rice. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

SNO-FEST CANDIDATES at Lincoln high school have been chosen by each of the classes to compete for the title King and Queen of the festivities being held this week. Coronation ceremonies will be conducted at an assembly in the auditorium at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Winners will be chosen on the basis of points accumulated by their classes in five competitive events. From left to right, in ascending order are: freshman candidates Darrel Miller and Patty Kinsman, sophomores Kurt Philipp and Kari Jorde, juniors and Ryan Bakke and Julie Amundgaard, and seniors Steve Olson and Stephanie LeMoine.

School Staff Workshop On Handicapped

Thief River Falls public schools staff will participate in a general session on dealing with handicapped students on Thursday, then teaching and counseling staff will be involved with parent-teacher conferences on Friday, elementary conferences and secondary curriculum development and budget reduction sessions on Monday.

As a result of the in-service sessions and conferences for parents, there will be no regular classes on Thursday and Friday of this week nor on Monday of the next week, according to Supt. Robert Block.

General session Thursday dealing with handicapped students will begin at 9 a.m. and is intended for both certified and classified staff. The program has been arranged by the Northwest Minnesota Educational Cooperative Service unit (ECSU) with funding through the Minnesota department of education.

"What Are These Students Doing in My Classroom, Our School Building, On My Bus?" is the topic of the general session to be conducted by Marge Goldberg, president of the parent advocacy coalition for educational rights (PACER).

At 10:30 a.m. classified staff will meet with Pat Wangsness, RN from Thief River Falls and Rodney Kjersten, RN from Roseau, to deal with "Handling Emergencies".

Certified staff will meet at the same time with Polly Edmunds; LeAnne Nelson and Sally Cunningham on "Explaining Handicaps to Other Children", and Jan McClellan of Fergus Falls and Phil LeBeau of the state department of education on "Teaching Students through Their Individual Learning Styles".

USS Company Predicts Dramatic 1983 Growth

DOUG DEHNERT left employment with Arctic Enterprises a few months before that company ran into its major financial difficulties and eventually closed. He put his electronics skills to work in starting his own business and expects his home-grown United Satellite Systems company to gross approximately $6 to $7 million this year. A 4,000 square feet addition to one of the company's buildings this summer will provide office and shipping space and testing area.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Dramatic growth during 1983 is forecast for United Satellite Systems (USS) of Thief River Falls by its founder, Doug Dehnert. He expects the company formed from little more than an idea and effort four years ago to average gross sales of $500,000 or more a month during the coming year.

United Satellite Systems produces and markets satellite receiving stations, constructing the receiving antenna dishes and some of the electronics components locally and contracting for other parts of the package. Much of the electronics work is built to United Satellite's specifications by Maspro company in Japan.

Getting its start in a rented farm equipment storage building on a farm southwest of St. Hilaire, the company moved to an 80x140 steel building built for grain storage by John Nelson on the northwest edge of Thief River Falls about two years ago. A second story was built in the building for office, testing and shipping area.

Last year an adjacent 60x140 steel building was acquired and a connecting link constructed with the additional space being used primarily for warehouse storage. This summer a 4,000 square foot addition is being planned for the west end of the 80x140 building, primarily for office and shipping area.

Dehnert said the business was somewhat seasonal during the first four years of the company's existence, but expansion into the south and west and increasing manufacture for overseas export has spread the demand load. The market is wider and there is increasing awareness of home satellite television, Dehnert said.

In addition, prices have been drastically reduced as technology has advanced in the field. "We're still the Cadillac of the industry," Dehnert noted. "There's an awful lot of junk out there, and there are a lot of companies who made cheap home systems and are no longer in business. We have not expanded as fast as we might have because we wanted to be sure of our products and have them thoroughly field tested. There have been some bugs to work out, but nothing serious. Our early units were good units at $10,000. Now we sell a better system for $4,995."

Dehnert said that the private low price systems are intensely competitive but that the cut-rate systems have disadvantages. "Those companies have had to back off in quality and service to cut costs," Dehnert noted. "Our philosophy is to build the same quality into our home systems that we build into our commercial systems.

In 1983, United Satellite Systems expects to have its business about equally divided between home systems and commercial systems in the United States. About 20 per cent of the total volume will be built for export outside the United States and Canada. More than half of the commercial units will be built on contract.

Lincoln HS Has Sno-Fest Events Set This Week

Sno-Fest activities at Lincoln high school will reach a climax Wednesday, January 19, with the coronation of the Sno-Fest King and Queen during a 2 p.m. assembly in the Lincoln auditorium.

Various costume events have also been scheduled for the week-long festival, which started Thursday with "Hat and Weird Shoe Day." City Council Meets Tuesday On Assessment

Mayor Bob Carlson has called a special meeting of the Thief River Falls city council at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, January 18, to consider the special assessment levied against Burlington Northern Railroad for improvements made to Brooks Avenue between Third and Sixth Streets.

Burlington has protested the $51,855.50 assessment is too high, which means that if council settles for a lower assessment, the taxpayers will have to pay the cost of legal fees, and still may have to pick up a portion of the assessment if the court determines that the railroad's property did not increase in value by the amount of the assessment.

Three Cooking Classes Offered At Northland

Northland community college is offering three separate cooking workshops taught by Glenna Hanson, home economist and formerly a 12 county nutrition education and training coordinator.

If you spend too much time in the kitchen, "meals in minutes" will show you quick and easy ways to get meals done. Held at Lincoln high school home ec. room on Wednesday, February 23, from 7-10 p.m., the class cost is $3 plus materials.

Project 120 is a week-long program at the Minnesota state capitol that gives high school juniors and seniors the opportunity to learn more about state government and the state political process.

LHS Students Participate In Project 120

Susan Block, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Block, Thief River Falls, and Kirsten Pollick, daughter of Alyce Pollick, St. Hilaire, have been accepted to attend Project 120, a week-long program at the Minnesota state capitol that gives high school juniors and seniors the opportunity to learn about state government and the political process.

During the program week, 24 students from around the state meet with Minnesota's constitutional officers, government staff, lobbyists and media people, watch the House, Senate and supreme court in session, visit a state department and talk individually with their district's senator and representative.

The goal of Project 120 is to provide the student with a better understanding of the basic structure of state government and how the political process works. A forum for the exchange of ideas with decision-makers and peers from around the state, the Project 120 program provides the knowledge of how students can become involved with the system and be effective and an overview of politics and government in Minnesota which allows the student to make a decision on his or her role in the political process.

Education On Alcohol Can Cut Accidents

In its recent announcement that traffic fatalities in Minnesota have declined nearly 30 per cent since 1981, the Minnesota department of public safety indicated that it was uncertain of the reasons for the drop. The Minnesota State automobile association (AAA) attributes the reduction in part to more widespread educational efforts to increase public awareness of traffic safety responsibilities.

The association says that better education of young drivers, publicity accompanying new traffic safety laws, and its own education programs are helping to improve accident statistics.

However, AAA points out that, although traffic death rates as a whole are decreasing, alcohol is still a factor in over half of all fatal crashes. A change in public attitudes about drinking and driving is necessary before alcohol-related traffic deaths begin to decrease.

Research has shown that the earlier alcohol and traffic safety education begins, the more effective it is likely to be in combating drunken driving later in life. Based on those findings, alcohol education materials have been developed for junior and senior high schools. A new elementary school program is now being introduced which is directed at influencing children's attitudes about alcohol. The program is based on the premise that safety concepts taught in children's formative years will carry over to adolescent and adult life.

Titled "Starting Early," the program will be introduced to elementary teachers through eight one-day workshops around the state, February 3 through March 16. Session for this area will be March 8 at the Detroit Lakes AVTI.

The purpose of "Starting Early" is to help youngsters learn more about alcohol's effects on their minds and bodies, and the consequences of its misuse. The elementary program emphasizes prevention through education, and is a vital step toward further reducing the number of deaths and injuries on our highways.

For more information regarding fees and registration for the workshops, contact Barbara Mittelstadt, Traffic Safety Coordinator, Minnesota AAA, Burnsville, MN 55337, 612-890-2500.

MBA Program Helps To Solve Bank Robberies

Minnesota Bankers association (MBA) robbery reward program is making a significant contribution to catching and indicting bank robbers, reported Wayne Berthiaume, MBA administrative vice president, at the year end meeting of the association's security committee.

Berthiaume quoted FBI statistics showing that of 62 bank robberies occurring in Minnesota in 1982, 39 are solved (63 per cent), and over one third of those solved cases (16) involved informants who received a reward from the MBA. An FBI representative said the robbery solution rate will be higher yet as 1982 robberies are solved later this year.

Of the 62 robberies, 55 occurred in the Twin Cities area and seven out-state. That figure is down significantly from 1981 when 76 bank robberies were committed statewide. FBI says in several cases, tips from informants seeking reward money were the key elements in finding and indicting the bank robbers.

Robbery reward program pays informants up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of any person suspected of or attempting to commit a robbery, burglary, larceny, or extortion of a Minnesota commercial bank. Since the program's inception in 1979, the MBA has paid out 47 rewards on 43 bank robberies.

"That's a small price to pay to discourage people from committing bank robberies," said Berthiaume. "We want people to know that committing a bank robbery is an extremely unattractive risk."

Minnesota bankers association is the professional trade association representing nearly 760 Minnesota full service banks.

Reierson And Others Buying Flint Agency

Change in ownership of Harold E. Flint and Associates advertising agency, Fargo, ND, involves acquisition of majority stock from Harold E. Flint by three employees, including Roger Reierson, formerly of Thief River Falls.

The buyers are Philip E. Stangl, president and general manager; Reierson, vice president, account management; and Donovan K. Kolness, vice president, creative and production. All three are members of the new board of directors and will comprise the executive committee. Flint will continue as chairman of the board and a director.

Reierson, an account supervisor, has been with the agency since 1976. A native of Thief River Falls, he is a 1969 graduate of Lincoln high school and Bemidji state university in 1974 with a BS degree in management and marketing. Prior to joining the Flint agency he was employed at Quillin & Associates in Thief River Falls.

The company name will be retained. With 17 employees, it serves a wide range of local, regional, national and international accounts in consumer, industrial and agricultural markets. It is the largest full service agency between the Twin Cities and Seattle, providing communication programs involving advertising, sales promotion, media planning, public relations and market development strategies.

USS Company Expects Major Growth In '83

system," Dehnert explains. "It is extremely simple for the owner to use and the features we offer surpass competition. For instance, we offer a full function remote control with the receiver which allows the television set to be controlled from any room in the house by using the electrical wiring."

What does the satellite receiver do? According to promotional material prepared by USS, the features designed into the system "include 'Soft-Touch' push button quartz synthesized tuning for instant transponder/channel selecting with LED readout. Once the button is touched, the receiver locks onto the frequency and requires no further tuning.

"The illuminated field strength meter enables the installer to peak the antenna and serves as an accurate reference point for the user to gauge optimum performance. Automatic polarity switching is accomplished instantly by the mere push of a button. The SR-1 receives 24 distinct transponder/channels with broadcast quality pictures made possible by its low threshold design and a separate polarity reversing switch has been incorporated in this amazing receiver to receive Westar IV and V without problems."

What all of that means is that installation of the system permits the owner to receive television signals direct from satellites, thereby having a wide selection of programming with extremely high quality reception almost anywhere in the world.

Acceptance of the United Satellite Systems units is evidenced by the sale of 20 sites to India for use in televising the Asian Games — athletic contests similar to the Olympics. The units are earth stations similar to the 16-foot dish manufactured locally for commercial use. Sales have also been made in Holland, France and Mexico with shipment to other countries expected.

Because freight has been a major cost factor in transporting the fiberglass antenna dishes, USS has designed a segmented antenna which is assembled from 16 sections. With this type of antenna, number of 12-foot units which can be carried on a 40-foot semi-trailer is increased from 10 to 55.

With 18 full-time employees at the present time, the company expects to grow to 24 employees when fiberglass operations are in full swing.

Much of the company's growth in the future will be in sales of components constructed to interface with other systems. United Satellite Systems is now one of only six companies in the world to manufacture a low noise amplifier, Dehnert said.

At some point in the future, it will become feasible to move the electronics production and assembly to the United States, but perhaps not to Minnesota. Like other businessmen here, Denhert is aware that the state tax system, workmen's compensation program and insurance costs in Minnesota are not favorable to business.

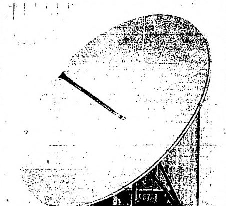
With the expansion of the company, Dehnert plans to bring middle management people into the business very soon to take over some of the marketing, manufacturing and other supervisory duties. He plans to use more of his time in keeping abreast of the rapid changes in technology and in adapting those changes to the business. Additional growth potential will be realized through diversification within the field, Dehnert said, and he has ideas for related operations with multi-million dollar annual sales.

He pointed out the acceptance of home computers in the last year or two and speculated that within the decade there will be local keyboard access to such items as mail order catalogs and eventually direct ordering through the computer. The next step will be an all-electronic transaction with the item selected, order placed and payment made through home terminal operation.

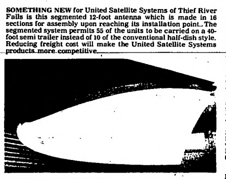
"We have had the opportunity to grow more rapidly than we have," Dehnert said. "With the experience we have acquired we foresee 1983 as a dramatic growth year for the company and continued growth into the future."

FIBERGLASS OPERATIONS of United Satellite Systems are conducted in this area of the 80x140 foot building which was originally built for grain storage on the northwest edge of Thief River Falls. Office and testing area has been built on a second level in the building but plans are to add an office and shipping area to the front of the building this summer. Operations have expanded to include an adjoining 60x140 building which is presently used primarily for warehouse space. The company manufactures and distributes satellite receiving systems throughout the United States, Canada and a number of foreign countries.

FINE TUNING of satellite receiver equipment is conducted in the shop and shipping area of United Satellite Systems of Thief River Falls. While the units are manufactured to exacting specifications for USS in Japan, they are checked out in the local shop before being placed with the installations around the nation and the world to assure best possible reception.



SOMETHING NEW for United Satellite Systems of Thief River Falls is this segmented 12-foot antenna which is made in 16 sections for assembly upon reaching its installation point. The segmented system permits 55 of the units to be carried on a 40-foot semi trailer instead of 10 of the conventional half-dish style. Reducing freight cost will make the United Satellite Systems products more competitive.



GEOMETRIC DESIGN of this one-third segment of a 16-foot antenna dish almost looks line a piece of modern sculpture in the warehouse of United Satellite Systems in Thief River Falls. The fiberglass form will be joined with two others exactly the same to form a commercial earth station receiver at some point in the U.S. or some foreign country. Commercial use is expected to provide 50 per cent of the company's anticipated dramatic 1983 growth.

Capacity Crowd At Chamber's Annual Meet

Gustafson and President Bob Epema.

Much of the remainder of the program was spent in recognition of the efforts which went into preparations for the event. Armory was transformed with decorations with a winter theme, as Christmas trees and snowmen furnished by the AVTI decorated the walls. Table decorations consisted of little wooden snowmen made by the occupational development center.

Following remarks by Sandstrom, Duckworth reviewed the highlights of the year, recognizing each of his committee chairmen as he praised their efforts. Committee chairmen recognized included Sue Fredeen, convention and tourism; Gaylen Hill, retail business association; John Seaverson, education; Mike Kvarnlov and Larry Lee, membership; Roger Tunberg, Ambassadors; Chris Twomey, legislative and transportation; Rich Jorde, agribusiness; and Terry Gere, Jobs Inc.

Duckworth also recognized his board of directors for the year, honoring Roger Shaffer, Ron Martin, Jerry Sandstrom, Bill Hogan, Bob Ekeren, Jess McCabe, Joe Ose, Dr. Ernesto Padilla, Roger Reuter, John Tofte, Wally Walseth, Mike Woods, Robert Block, Don Grabanski, James Womack, Russ Christianson and Stan Upham. Retiring board members Bob Ekeren, Russ Christianson and Wally Walseth were presented with plaques.

Duckworth also recognized what he called "some special people who have since retired from business, who have spent a great deal of their life in supporting the community and the chamber of commerce." Lifetime memberships in the chamber of commerce were presented to Don and Sylvia Olson, Charlie Ness and Jarvis Prichard. Since Prichard was out of town on business, his wife accepted the award in his behalf.

Special award was presented to Dr. Rich Heinrichs, in recognition of his efforts on behalf of the community in helping to recruit other physicians to bring their practices to the community. Duckworth noted that Heinrichs had been directly involved in recruiting six practicing physicians for the community.

After thanking the group for the privelege of serving as president for the past year, Duckworth called incoming president Stan Upham to the podium. Noting that Upham would need a lot of assistance in the coming year, he called on Miss Thief River Falls Stacey Sandberg, to boost his morale, which she did with a kiss. Before turning over the gavel, Duckworth noted that as he had been presented with a "special assistant" in the form of a large doll, when he took office, Upham would also need someone to talk to when no one else would listen. He then presented him with a manufactured bird, which combined features of a turkey and a duck, noting that it had a number of purpose traits useful to a chamber president.

Upham gave a brief speech, introducing his officers, directors, staff, and committee heads for the coming year. Officers include Roger Tunberg, first vice president; Ron Martin, second vice president; Roger Shaffer, treasurer; Jerry Sandstrom, executive vice president; and Bill Duckworth, past president.

Committee Chairmen include Tom Puppe, agribusiness; Jo Ann White, Ambassadors; Sue Fredeen, convention and tourism; Arlene Forsberg, education; Terry Gere, Jobs Inc.; Chris Twomey and Larry Belmont, legislative and transportation; Russ Christianson, membership; Bob Whitfield, retail business association; and Clarice Collins, All America City committee.

Meeting was adjourned to dancing to the music of Dick King and the Classic Swing Band, from Grand Forks.

Slow Down and Live

NEVER CHANGE A LIGHT BULB AGAIN!
The Bulb Saver is a solid-state micro chip diode. It converts AC current to DC current and extends the life of a bulb filament up to 100 times.
For example, a regular bulb rated for 750 hours would last for about thirty-two days if burned continuously. But with the Bulb Saver, that same bulb's life would be extended to 75,000 hours or eight years. Less often used bulbs could last a lifetime.
This amazing development works with regular incandescent light bulbs (not 3-way type).
The results are amazing. Bulbs burn cooler and give a softer, less glaring light. You save up to 30% on electricity, not to mention the savings on light bulbs. Just place the Bulb Saver on the bottom of a bulb and screw into the socket. The Bulb Saver has no moving parts so there is nothing to wear out. All materials meet or exceed U.L. standards and each Bulb Saver carries an eight year warranty.
The Bulb Saver comes in packages of seven for $21.00 plus sales tax and shipping & handling. Order the Bulb Saver today. Call 218-449-3093 or send $22.26, tax incl., plus $4.00 for shipping and handling to:

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States in August 1983, attend the local high school, and return to their home country in late June 1984. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance.

AISE is also seeking American high school students age 15 through 17, who would like to spend a high school year in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Germany, Spain or France, or participate in a five-week host family stay in Sweden, Norway, Finland, Spain or Columbia.

Host families with small children are welcome to participate in this program. Host families may deduct $50 per month for income tax purposes.

Families interested in this program should contact the person named above immediately. Letters should contain the prosective host family's telephone number.

Tax Assistance Cut By State Revenue Dept.

Minnesota department of revenue will no longer be able to offer in-person taxpayer assistance in any of its offices because of statewide budget cutbacks necessary to cope with the state's fiscal problems, according to State Revenue Commissioner Arthur Roemer.

Telephone taxpayer assistance will still be available, and in-person service will be available to senior citizens, handicapped, and low-income people through statewide volunteers in taxpayer assistance programs (TCE-VITA).

Roemer stressed that individuals should first consult their income tax instruction booklet for answers to particular questions they may have before calling the department. He said that if people still have questions, they may call toll free 1-800-652-9094, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. In addition, answers to frequently-asked questions will be available beginning January 17 on a 24-hour basis, through a series of recorded messages by dialing 297-3730.

Roemer indicated there will be more callers than ever before using these numbers, so people should be patient and if possible use the tape recorded message system on 297-3730 in the evening after normal duty hours.

He stated that senior citizens, handicapped and low-income people can find out the location of their nearest VITA volunteer to help them with their tax return by calling toll free 1-800-652-9094. There will be 82 sites in the metropolitan area and 98 sites outside the metropolitan area which will be staffed by a total of 600 volunteers. These sites will open after February 1.

Roemer also noted that deaf, hearing impaired, or speech impaired taxpayers who have the use of a telephone-teletypewriter may call (612) 297-2196, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for special assistance.

He said taxpayers who need additional forms could obtain them at most banks and post offices throughout the state. This year, the department has a simplified short form for single taxpayers, as well as seven specialized instruction bulletins that are also available at most banks and post offices. Roemer stated that people who cannot find the forms they need may call the department's 24-hour forms ordering numbers, and the necessary forms will be sent to them by mail within two weeks. People needing forms should call 1-800-652-9041. Taxpayers should consult their individual income tax instruction booklet for the kinds of forms available.

Chester Yon New Potentate Of Kem Temple

Chester A. Yon of Roseau was elected the 71st Illustrious Potentate of Kem Temple of the Shrine in North America at the annual meeting held at the Masonic Temple in Grand Forks, ND, Thursday. He succeeds Walter I. Swingen of Grand Forks.

As Kem's highest official, he will direct the activities of Kem's approximately 2,000 members in North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

A graduate of the University of North Dakota school of law, Yon has practiced law in Roseau since 1961. His Masonic memberships include Roseau Lodge No. 268 A.F. & A.M., Scottish Rite of Grand Forks, Royal Arch Masons Northern Chapter No. 82 and Constantine Commandery No. 20. He is past master of Roseau Lodge No. 268.

Potentate Yon is an avid car collector and pilot, frequently flying his Beech Baron on many business and Shrine trips. He was born in Strandquist and grew up at Bathgate, ND. He is married to the former Joanne Miller of Cavalier, ND and they have three children, Pamela, Penny Yon-Nemgar and William.

Installation of all Kem Temple officers followed the election with William G. Micklin, Past Potentate, Grand Forks, as installing officer and Dr. Edward H. Hamlet, Past Potentate, Grand Forks, as Marshal.

Among those appointed ambassadors were Paul F. Knochenmus of Roseau and Irvin J. Wilson of Thief River Falls. Among those elected representatives to the Imperial council was Carl E. Lee of Thief River Falls. Charles Ness of Thief River Falls was named to the membership committee.

Over 9 Million Men Registered With Service

Registration of 18-year-old men with selective service continues to increase. As of December 19, approximately 9.2 million men have registered for an overall compliance rate of 94 per cent.

Since registration began in July of 1980, men born in 1960 and later years have been required to register. Compliance by year of birth is: 1960 — 96 per cent; 1961 — 99 per cent; 1962 — 95 per cent; 1963 — 95 per cent.

To date, men born in 1964 have an "on-time" registration rate of 85 per cent — a high rate when you consider that, historically, men tend to procrastinate in registering. For example: in 1973 and 1974, the last years when men were registering without a draft, "on-time" registrations ranged from 70 to 80 per cent; within a year, that rate climbed to 90 to 93 per cent. Same pattern seems to be holding in the present registration program.

More men are registering as a result of recent initiatives. Selective service has sent out over 600,000 letters to men who have not registered — the agency is now able to identify these men as a result of cross-referencing their computer files with those of social security and state drivers' license lists. Also, selective service is using transit cards on subways and buses, billboards, posters in high schools and recreation centers, and public service announcements to get the message across to young men that they must register.

Additionally, recently enacted legislation will require men to present proof of registration in order to receive federal student aid and-or qualify for benefits under the 1983 job training partnership act.

Registration is a simple process. Within 30 days of his eighteenth birthday, a man must go to the post office and fill out a form which asks only for his name, address, telephone number, social security number and date of birth. Registration does not, in any way, prejudice a man's right to claim exemption from military service should an emergency require Congress to order selective service to classify and draft people.

FmHA Director Pledges Help For Farmers

An all-out effort will be made by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in Minnesota to keep farmers on the farm and in the fields for the 1983 crop year, according to Russ Bjorhus, State director. This is in compliance with Secretary of Agriculture John Block's "grassroots initiative" to help farmers stay in business during this temporary slump in farm prices.

Block has asked FmHA county supervisors to meet personally with local bankers and other lending officials to discuss credit needs of farmers. Bjorhus met with the independent bankers association in Minneapolis to discuss solutions to the farm situation, and on November 16, he and his farm program staff met with Federal Land Bank and Production Credit Association personnel in St. Paul. Bjorhus said that this effort will assure farmers that their loan requests will be considered, even though they have not been able to repay their loans because of circumstances beyond their control.

Criteria FmHA will generally follow in handling delinquent loans, Bjorhus added, will be to question whether the borrower acted in good faith, made an honest effort to repay, practiced good management and properly maintained property used to secure loans. Borrowers meeting these requirements will, in most cases, be continued even though they have been delinquent one or more years.

"Every loan application will be considered on its individual merits and the agency will use every means available to stay with present borrowers," Bjorhus said.

Program Finds Jobs For 118 Young People

Last year the Minnesota private industry council, Inc. sponsored a "different" summer youth training program in this area — a program which reimbursed businesses for hiring and training young workers.

Unlike many summer employment programs which place youth in government-sponsored jobs in nonprofit agencies, the private industry council placed youth in businesses and paid the business operators for part of the costs for training young workers on the job.

As a result, 118 young people ages 14 through 21 were hired last summer by businesses in northwestern, central and southern Minnesota.

In developing the program, the council in particular provided job opportunities to handicapped youth. Council also sought private sector job opportunities for young people to help ease their transition from school to full-time jobs.

Young people worked at poultry farms, service stations, grocery stores, cafes and recreation areas.

Needlework To Be Featured At Winter Shows

Needlework will again be a special feature at the women's seminar at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston, Wednesday, February 23. This noncompetitive exhibit will include needlework from the talents of people from all of northwest Minnesota.

Rules are basically the same as last year. Any kind of needlework made with a needle with an eye, crocheted or tatted will be welcomed. It should be complete, ready to use, labeled with name and address and identified as from a kit, adapted from a kit or original.

Articles should be entered at the armory from 5 to 7 on Tuesday, February 22, or brought to the extension office prior to Friday, February 18 and Deb Matero, county extension agent, will get them to Crookston. Articles can be taken after the Wednesday program.

Mn. Heart Fund Sets 1983 Goal Of $2,679,000

"While our 1983 campaign goal of $2,679,000 is ambitious, I feel it is realistic if we are to carry on the goals of the Minnesota affiliate," said Dave Torgerson, 1983 chairman for the American Heart Association, Minnesota affiliate.

Mission of the American Heart Association, is to reduce premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel disease. Efforts to reduce America's number one killer are carried out through research, community service programs and professional and public education.

Goal represents a 13 per cent increase over the 1982 goal of $2,361,000.

During the 1982 campaign, the Minnesota affiliate received its first national fund raising achievement award. "1982 Achievement Award" recognizes an affiliate for achieving the highest campaign increase during an annual State Heart Fund campaign within a group of affiliates of comparable size. Total funds raised during the 1982 campaign were $2,569,360.

"This is a time when federal and state government are doing less in public health field funding," Torgerson said, "but Minnesotans always seem to rise to the occasion when it is necessary to get the job done." More than 60,000 Minnesotans will contribute to the year-round effort of the Heart Fund campaign which is highlighted in February, Heart Month, with its door-to-door residential campaign.

Although efforts by the American Heart Association have resulted in a 20 per cent decline in the heart disease death rate over the last 10 years, heart disease still claimed the lives of 1,012,150 Americans, including nearly 17,000 Minnesotans last year.

State Turkey Growers Will Boost Flocks

Minnesota growers intend to raise 26.2 million turkeys in 1983, up one per cent from the previous year. If these intentions are realized, heavy turkeys raised will total 22 million, up one per cent and light breeds at 4.2 million will be down two per cent. Minnesota will rank as the second leading state in production with North Carolina first at 28.9 million turkeys intended to be raised in 1983.

During 1982, growers in Minnesota raised 26 million turkeys, up one per cent from 1981. Heavy breed turkeys accounted for 21.7 million, up nine per cent, while light breeds dropped 25 per cent to 4.3 million birds. Minnesota ranked second behind North Carolina's production of 27 million turkeys.

On Dec. 1, 1982, Minnesota turkey growers had 523,000 breeder hens on hand, down eight per cent from the previous year. Heavy breed hens totaled 446,000, down six per cent, while light breed hens decreased 15 per cent to 77,000 birds.

The average value of Minnesota breeder hens on Dec. 1, 1982 was estimated at $15.70, down $2.10 from the previous year. Minnesota's total breeder hen flock was valued at $8.2 million compared with $10.1 million in 1981, down 19 per cent.

Arson Program Pays Off For Insurance Co.

Thanksgiving day fire in Minneapolis shows the battle against arson isn't over yet, according to a major insurance company.

The Minneapolis fire, apparently the largest office building fire in U.S. history, was believed to have been set by two youths, law enforcement officers said. The blaze, which ravaged a square block of downtown Minneapolis, extensively damaged the historic Northwestern National bank building insured by the company.

The exact fire loss hasn't been determined, but various public officials estimated the bank's total loss to be between $55 and $75 million. After reinsurance, the company expects its net pretax loss to approximate $5 million.

But the firm's claim officers say they are turning the corner on arson and fraud despite that fire loss — the most costly in the company's and Minnesota's history.

A vice president for claims pointed out that the company's comprehensive arson awareness and fraud prevention efforts paid off during 1982 by saving a documented total of $5.1 million.

"More importantly, the growing realization that the real victims of arson and fraud are not the insurance companies but the policyholders themselves is helping us to overcome public apathy and enlist significant support for our efforts to combat these crimes," he said.

Part of those efforts center on the work of four special investigative units (SIUs). The SIUs were so successful during 1982, producing more than $1.6 million in direct savings to the company, that the firm plans to add four to six more units in 1983.

Calves Require Extra Care In Winter Months

As cold winter winds return to Minnesota, many farmers have not recovered from economic losses of last year's unusually cold and long winter. "Many dairy calves died of starvation" reported George Ruth, D.V.M. University of Minnesota's college of veterinary medicine, and spokesman for the Minnesota veterinary medical association. He added that malnutrition induces reduced resistance to infections.

Several factors seem to affect the number of starved calves;

(A) Many owners have moved calves to outdoor hutches in an attempt to control respiratory and intestinal disease. This is a great idea if the hutches are properly placed and the calves kept dry, well-bedded, and well-fed; because, in addition to the requirements for maintenance and growth, the calf must now keep itself warm. This process requires much more ingested energy in January or February than during July or August.

(B) Many owners are concerned that overloading the stomach and intestine with a large volume of milk or milk replacer will cause digestive problems in calves, so they provide somewhat smaller amounts. This can lead to dehydration, as well as starvation, and dehydration is a real potential problem in very cold weather.

(C) All producers are trying to reduce production costs, and milk replacers are a fine place to differentiate between cost and worth. Use a high quality milk replacer.

Nutritional requirements for very young calves raised in cold-environments are not well-known, but last winter several producers avoided the problem of starvation by giving their calves three normal feedings daily when very cold conditions were expected. In effect the producers gave approximately 50 per cent more nutrients and liquid just before and during those critical cold periods and avoided the potential problem of overloading the gastrointestinal tract.

Elder Artists Show Planned In St. Anthony

North Suburban Center for the Arts (USCA) St. Anthony, has announced plans to hold a juried fine arts exhibit and competition for artists 65 and older.

"Minnesota Elder Artists Show of 1983," sponsored by Medtronic Foundation, will be held next spring at Apache Plaza. In presenting a major exhibit exclusively by senior artists, NSCA and Medtronic Foundation hope to focus attention on the continuing creativity of artists in later life, and to affirm that artistic achievement has no upper age limit.

All Minnesota artists of eligible age may enter. Works accepted by the show's jurors will be exhibited at Apache Plaza throughout the month of June, with the exception of the top 10 award winners, which will be moved to Northwestern Bank, downtown St. Paul, for a special showing during the last two weeks of the month. Cash awards will be given to the top 10 artists and ribbons will go to all participants.

Entrants may submit up to two framed original works which they have completed since May 1981. Categories for entries include paintings in oil, acrylic or water-color and hand-pulled prints. Deadline for requesting entry forms is May 10. NSCA will publicize the event statewide with the cooperation of various senior citizen and arts organizations. Interested artists should call the NSCA office 612-781-7381 as soon as possible for entry forms and registration information.

Property Tax Refunds Subject Of Law Change

Minnesota renters, senior citizen homeowners and disabled homeowners won't be able to use the amount of their property tax refund as a credit when they fill out their 1982 state income tax returns, Minnesota department of revenue reported recently.

Up to now, renters, senior citizen homeowners and disabled homeowners have had the choice of having the department of revenue mail them a separate check for the amount of their property tax refund, or of listing the amount of their property tax refund as a credit on their state income tax return.

As a result of a new state law which takes effect for 1982 property tax refund returns filed in 1983, renters, senior citizen homeowners and disabled homeowners can no longer use the property tax refund as a credit on the state income tax return.

Now all renters and homeowners will receive a separate check for the amount of the property tax refund only.

Department advises taxpayers to be sure not to attach their property tax refund return to their state income tax return. Instead, they should mail the property tax refund return separately in the envelope with the gold-colored print which is attached to the inside of the property tax refund instruction booklet.

New law also moves back the dates for mailing property tax refund checks to renters, senior citizen homeowners and disabled homeowners. Instead of receiving refund checks 60 days after mailing their return, renters will have to wait until August 15 at the earliest, and senior citizen homeowners and disabled homeowners will not receive their refund checks until the first two weeks of October.

October mailing date will require a change in financial planning for those homeowners who are accustomed to filing their property tax early in the year in order to get their refund in time to help pay the first half of their property tax bill — due May 31.

Under the new mailing schedule, they will still get the same amount of property tax refund, but their checks won't arrive in the mail until the first two weeks of October, just before the second half of their property tax bill is due.

An Area Of Agreement

"Fuel alcohol is here to stay. It's good for Minnesota and Governor Perpich is on the right track in his approach in encouraging the use of Minnesota produced fuel products."

Where does the governor rate such an agreeable measure of support? From Rep. Davd Fjoslien of Brandon, an Independent-Republican legislator with 10 years in office and a member of the environment and natural resources committee.

Fjoslien claims that in the long run it will cost the state far more not to use alsohol blend fuel. Gov. Perpich ordered state vehicles to use gasohol and state energy officials claimed the use would cost the state $480,000.

While the Minnesota energy agency has been opposed to the use of alcohol fuels, Fjoslien claims, energy agencies in surrounding states have advocated their use. The legislator charges that the energy department ". . . should get its head out of the sand and wake up to reality in regard to alcohol fuels."

An energy agency employee had remarked that all the fuel filters in vehicles would have to be changed because of gasohol use. Fjoslien called the statement untrue. "Some vehicles may need a fuel filter change, but this is a minor, inexpensive change and the vehicle will run better and have greater mileage and less pollution," Rep. Fjoslien said. "In the long run the use of a fuel alcohol blend will save money because of better mileage per gallon and fewer repair costs."

Tests of over two million miles in Nebraska support his belief, Fjoslien contends.

Whether Perpich and Fjoslien are right or wrong, it is interesting to note that the inception of the governor's term finds him meeting with some support from a member of the opposition party. We hope it is an indication of legislative willingness to find areas of agreement which transcend party ties. With huge problems facing the state and monumental decisions to be made, there will be no time nor room for partisan bickering this session. A united effort to find the best solutions is imperative.

Agree Or Disagree?

We're a firm believer in the benefits of returning the legal drinking age to 21 in Minnesota and we think it would be a good idea to have that age established as the minimum across the nation. Such uniformity would negate the traffic back and forth from states with different minimum legal drinking ages.

A recent article in "USA Today" was critical of the effort to place the minimum drinking age at 21. We disagree with some of the points attempted to be made in that article — in fact, we disagree with most of them. We would be interested in local public reaction and encourage letters to the editor either support or refute the contentions in the article. Here is what "USA Today" had to say:

There are 12,878,000 Americans aged 18 to 20. They vote, defend their country, even hold public office. They buy cars and homes, get married and have children. They are an important part of America's culture and its economy. And because some of them drink alcohol and drive, two top Reagan administration officials would treat the whole age group as second-class citizens.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker want all states to set 21 as the national minimum drinking age, with the hope that it will cut down on alcohol-related traffic accidents. This would mean that persons under 21 would not be permitted to drink alcoholic beverages, regardless of their personal driving records and the fact that they might well treat alcohol responsibly. Or whether they drive at all.

Statistics show that when the drinking age is raised, the number of alcohol-related traffic accidents drops. But raising the age from 18 or 19 in no way solves the drinking problem among teen-agers, and it does not stop drunken driving.

Approximately 3 million young people between 14 and 17 have alcohol problems. Most youngsters can qualify for a driver's license at 16, so raising the drinking age to 21 would not get these drinking teens off the roads.

About one in every four students in grades 10 through 12 drinks at least once a week, many of them heavily. Since most of these teens are already under the permissible drinking age, raising that age to 21 wouldn't automatically dry up their sources of booze.

About 26,000 people are killed each year in alcohol-related traffic accidents, 10,000 of them young persons. But the 20-24 age group involves the highest number of auto deaths, which means that if officials really want to save lives they are setting the minimum age too low.

Why stop at 21? Why not set the minimum age at 22, 26, 43 or 83, the age levels at which the other 16,000 alcohol-related deaths occur? Because that's prohibition — and that didn't work either.

The 24 states that have raised their minimum drinking age to 21 haven't solved their alcohol problems among teenagers. What's needed is more aggressive educational programs among teens about alcohol abuse, and strict enforcement of the drunken driving laws already on the books.

What isn't needed is further inconsistency in the rights and responsibilities that we grant to our young adults. We would permit them to hold office, but not to drink; to own property, raise families, and die on the battlefield, but not to drink. Because comparatively few can't treat their rights responsibly, we would deny the privilege to all of them. And that just isn't the way that America is supposed to work.

Now, after reading that, do you agree or disagree?

Attitudes Vary

An item in a Hennepin county paper brings to mind the differences in attitudes which often seem to prevail from urban to rural areas. Whether it's the influence of dense (as opposed to sparse, not intelligent) population or the exposure to greater partisan political activity or some other combination of circumstances, it seems the folks down there in the urban areas just have a harder time getting along with one another.

If our county boards of commissioners up in this neck of the woods have a general weakness, it is in the reluctance to act without a full board in attendance or to take an action with less than unanimous vote. For some reason or another, dissent is seen as a sign of weakness or there is comfort in all going down with the ship together.

Such is not the case in Hennepin county, according to managing editor Bob Bork's column in the North Hennepin Post. If the wheels of action sometimes grind slowly up here on the route to 100 per cent consensus, perhaps we should consider ourselves fortunate. Bork wirtes about the Heppepin situation as follows:

I'm surprised more people don't complain about the constant battling that takes place almost weekly with the Hennepin County Board of Commissioners, in their row of plush suites on the top floor of the Government Center in downtown Minneapolis.

A county of almost one million people, which represents one-fourth of the entire state's population, governed by seven county commissioners who seemingly are always at each other's throats.

That in itself is bad enough, but consider that many of the actions border on juvenile behavior, a good old-fashioned grudge match if we ever saw one.

Look no further than last week's committee appointments. These seven board members have formed a four vs. three situation. Those in the majority grabbed off all the top spots. No consideration given to the "other side" as to whether one of them might handle the job better.

This is heavy politics at its very worst, and residents of Hennepin County are the victims, whether they realize it or not. County commissioners are supposed to be nonpartisan. Can there be anyone who believes that? And, even the political party ties aren't foolproof. You have people from one party jumping to the other side to further their own cause.

And how do the commissioners respond to criticism such as this? They say yes, there is a lot of fighting, but they still conduct county business on a very professional level despite the clawing the snarling. Perhaps, but those committee appointments make some wonder if the right people are heading the right groups.

Unfortunately, this thing gets worse before it improves. The three commissioners in the minority can't wait to get back at the majority. The cycle, repeated over and over again.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The lady of the house had been away on a visit for a few days and her husband was discussing the absence with a friend. "The whole house seems so empty," he said. "Except the sink — that's full of dishes."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am writing in response to the article in your paper on "Men Charge Courts Unfair to Men in Divorce Cases" I commend you for printing an article of much value and, in my opinion, long over-due. I hope this opens the eyes of many as to what is going on. I just hope that the men's group is successful in all their efforts.

I do believe that the property and children should be split 50-50 but I have seen first hand that the ex-wives are running this show in Northern Minnesota. It disgusts me the way the women are using their children to benefit only their pocketbooks. If that isn't a form of child abuse, I don't know what is. It amazes me as to the power these women possess. I'm sick and tired of divorce and the way it totally turns a family upside down.

As Myles Koop said in the article, "Nobody wins in a divorce case" but why does it have to end all in the favor of some women while other women get nothing? There doesn't seem to be a middle of the road situation. Either the ex-wife gets all or nothing and in Northern Minnesota it seems to be in favor of all.

I am glad Myles was able to tell his story — in far too many cases only the ex-wives' side is heard among the coffee klatchers of the area. I do believe it takes two to make a divorce and the reasons behind it aren't only the fault of one, but far too many times the man is made out to be the bad guy.

The ex-wives usually complain that they don't have any money — little does anyone know that these so called "ladies" have drained the man of everything he ever had. The ex-wife is sitting good while the man has nothing left. Now you tell me, does that seem fair or equal? What right do these women have to take everything that these men have worked for?

I have seen first hand everything going the wife's way from the furniture and appliances to a car and monthly support payments, not to mention a big chunk of land and who knows what all else — besides the times the kids are directed to "get dad to buy it" every time he gets them for a visit. The dad feels obligated to buy things to make up for the time he doesn't get to see them. Don't tell me that the ex-wife doesn't play on that! These children are the product of both parents, and after contributing like that, tell me why she gets them 95 per cent of the time!

To The Editor:

I read your article in the January 10 issue of the Thief River Falls Times titled, "56 Attended Meeting On Men's Rights in Divorce." The statement was made, "The Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance for Battered Women in Thief River Falls also came in for criticism. Opinion was expressed that the shelter did not have qualified counselors and was more interested in helping women get property settlements, child support and welfare than in saving marriages."

I lived in an abusive situation for 29 years. I had been told and believed that even if you were separated that as long as your husband could support you, you couldn't get on welfare. Ever since I was 13, when my mother died, I have been responsible for raising children: first my younger sisters and brothers and then my own children. I had no means of support of my own so I felt that I was trapped.

Then one night, in a drunken stupor my husband kicked me out of the house. This night was the point of no return for my youngest child and myself. I was very thankful that our five older children were grownup and on their own.

When I stayed at the shelter, I was told of all my options and rights. I really didn't want my marriage dissolved but until then I didn't know of my other options. What I really wanted was help. The advocate suggested a marriage counselor. She told me that without any help I'd walk into the same situation that I left.

The members of Al Anon agreed with our needing a marriage counselor but since my husband is an alcoholic, it was very important that he take the responsibility for his own actions. What they said made a lot of sense. So far, everything I had tried to help preserve our marriage went down the drain. I decided to wait it out.

Since I had no income, my advocate helped me get on welfare and find an apartment. There was a waiting period before I could get legal aid. I had planned on getting a legal separation.

My husband kept insisting that we didn't need a marriage counselor. He'd just quit drinking and everything would be all right. If I really wanted a marriage counselor, I could contact one myself.

When he wouldn't change his attitude, I could see no future for us, so when the time came, I decided to file for a divorce anyway. As soon as my husband found out about my change in plans he contacted a marriage counselor.

That was two and one-half years ago. We are now back together and have a good marriage. I have the shelter and Al Anon to thank for it.

What most people don't understand about the shelter is that they are not allowed to tell a woman what to do. The woman is told of all her options. She has to decide what course she's going to take. Once she does, they support her decision.

I'm sure that our marriage isn't the only one helped through their efforts. If a marriage has gone to the point of no return, it's not the shelter's fault; it's what went on at home.

Contrary to much public opinion, women do have the ability and the right to make their own decisions.

To The Editor:

In response to the letter to the editor in the Thief River Falls Times, January 10 issue, from the concerned businessmen of Plummer, I want to provide some clarification regarding some of the statements made.

The task force that I have appointed is the first attempt by a legislator in Minnesota to do this type of communicating with his constituents that I am aware of. The intent and purpose is to provide an opportunity for the constituents at all levels to provide input for the legislative process through these members.

The correct number of representatives on business on the task force now is seven, and they are Bob Ekeren, Chris Twomey, Bob Miller, Leonard Olson, Oliver LaBine, Earl Anderson and Don Hesse. The reason that the names of some of these businessmen were not included was due to the fact that they had not indicated to me at the time of the news release whether or not they were willing to participate. They are Chris Twomey, Bob Ekeren and Bob Miller. The Christmas rush and vacations were a part of the delay in returning their reply. I have since asked Don Hesse to participate in the task force and he has accepted. I have been in business myself for several years and know the concerns and problems that business people are faced with. I will do my best to represent your interests.

It is my duty as a representative to represent all the people in the district and that is what I intend to do. This task force is not the only way to communicate with me. I welcome anyone's concern whether it be by telephone, letter or in person. My office address is State Office Building, Room 263, St. Paul, Mn. 55155. My office telephone number is 612-296-9918 and I can be reached through that number during the week. Please feel free to call me, write, or stop in at my office anytime you may be in St. Paul. The door is always open and you are always welcome.

Sincerely,
-s- Wallace Sparby
State Representative

State Fair To Get Mpls. Bank Weatherball

Minnesota state fairgrounds has been selected as the site for permanent display of the 12-story high Northwestern national bank weatherball sign which that has provided instant weather information and been a landmark to Twin Citians for more than three decades.

The weatherball, which was introduced in 1949 and became the corporate symbol of the bank, today is recognized as one of the most familiar corporate symbols in the Upper Midwest. Situated on top of the bank's 19-story building in downtown Minneapolis, the illuminated globe is visible at distances up to 15 miles. The 10-foot globe flashes weather forecasts for the following day according to a three-color code.

Mike Heffron, secretary and general manager of the Minnesota state fair, said "We're very proud that the fairgrounds have been chosen as the new home of the weatherball. The state fair's 124-year tradition of providing a family showcase of entertainment, agriculture, industry, education and Minnesota heritage makes the fairgrounds a particularly appropriate site for one of the state's most well-known landmarks."

"Although the weatherball will not be ready for this year's fair because a special display area is to be built for it, we hope to have it up for the 1984 fair, Heffron said. The exact location of the display is still to be determined," he added.

Disassembly of the weatherball structure will get under way this month.

Skippers Defeat Nordics In Girls Showdown 46-36

North Border Conference showdown between unbeaten rivals Middle River and Marshall County Central went to the host Skippers Thursday 46-36 in a match-up of 7-0 girls high school basketball teams.

A rebound basket at the buzzer ending the first half by Kari Skoglund provided Middle River with a 19-16 edge at intermission and the Skippers took control in the third quarter when the cold-shooting Nordics fell behind 34-22.

"We shot really terrible in the third quarter," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, looking at the charts that showed the Nordics just 3-for-13 during that eight-minute, game-deciding stretch. "We had good shots, but they just wouldn't drop."

Middle River coach Tom Neibauer said Skoglund's half-ending basket "really helped." That 12-point third quarter lead climbed to a 17-point spread just past the midway mark of the fourth quarter. "We had a good third quarter, and we played well the first part of the fourth quarter," he noted.

Paula Rantanen, Diane Black and Skoglund were the Middle River pacesetters. Rantanen finished with 15 points and 9 rebounds; Black had 11 points and 10 rebounds; and Skoglund wound up with 9 points and 9 rebounds. "We did a good job on the boards, that was the key," pointed out Neibauer.

Sue Olson and Debbie Peterson had 12 points apiece for the Nordics.

"We got down in the third quarter and just could not get back in it," acknowledged Mjelde. "They're a good ball club, the best team we've faced this year. We could have played better, though. We learned some things. We'll change a few things and we'll be ready for them next time (a Feb. 17 rematch in Newfolden)."

Middle River finished with a 37 per cent shooting night from the field (19-for-51) while shooting 53 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-15). Marshall County Central shot 33 per cent from the field (17-for-52) and only 29 per cent at the line (2-for-7).

Neibauer, too, indicated the Skippers didn't play particularly well, but quickly added, "We'll take it. We're happy with the win."

Northmen Take Hockey Series From Norsemen

Northland community college hockey team ended a five-game homestand with a 6-3, 10-9 weekend sweep over Mesabi, giving the Northmen four wins during that week-long stretch in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

A week earlier the Northmen swept Hibbing 9-5, 6-4 and Wednesday they dropped a 7-6 overtime decision to the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC). Northland, now 5-2 in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC), will get another shot at the rival Trojans Wednesday in Crookston before heading to Hibbing for a Friday-Saturday series.

After taking Mesabi twice, first-year Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr., noted, "Friday night's game started out ragged. Mesabi was skating out of position, and it's easy to get caught up in it. Both sides started playing the same style of hockey. But we started playing good position hockey and we ended up having a fairly good showing."

Northland had a 7-2 lead Saturday before letting Mesabi off the hook and needing overtime to pull out a 10-9 victory.

"Anytime you get a five-goal lead and almost lose it in overtime you obviously have a letdown," acknowledged Dorn. "We went into a shell. But we came back and won it, and four points is four points."

Mesabi fell to 2-7 with the losses and veteran coach Pat Finnegan admitted, "We're struggling." Frustrated with the efforts by some of the Norsemen, Finnegan benched three regulars after falling behind Saturday.

"Some of our kids have much more ability than what they show," he said. "It's terrible. It makes you sick to see kids with that much talent and not use it. They're public skating out there, not playing hockey. I put three kids with less ability out there, but at least they hustle, work hard for us."

"I thought we played much better today (Saturday). Last night we played well in some sports, but not so well at other times," added Finnegan.

Northland 6 Mesabi 3

Tony Loeffler scored twice while Tom Raymond, Jeff Toussaint, Vic Evavold and Todd Graalum scored single goals in Northland's 6-3 Friday night win over Mesabi.

The Northmen, after giving up a quick goal, took a 4-2 first period lead. They led 4-3 after two and salted it away with a pair of goals late in the third period.

Freshman goalie Bill Bye kicked out 54 shots for the Northmen, who were out-shot 57-53 for the game.

Northland 10 Mesabi 9

It was a Saturday afternoon shoot-out when Northland nearly blew a 7-2 lead before winning 10-9 in overtime.

Northland looked like it snapped an 8-8 tie on a power play goal by Todd Gregoire at 15:11 of the third period, with the East Grand Forks sophomore keeping a straightaway shot from the blueline on the ice. But Mesabi protested the goal and won when Gregoire's stick was ruled to have too much curve.

Mesabi then went ahead 9-8 at the 16-minute mark as Paul Harrington lifted a point-blank rebound over prone Northland goaltender Greg Harder during a 4-on-4 situation.

Northland, though, tied it 9-9 just 73 seconds later as Ladd Bjugson put a close-in backhand over Mesabi goalie John Ewens, who went down to block a shot from the point that never reached the net.

At 3:50 of the 10-minute sudden-death overtime Bjugson scored his fourth goal of the game, and the third straight goal for the Northmen as he took a feed in the slot from Tom Ose, put it low and watched the puck, not shot particularly hard, slip through the goalie's pads.

Ose scored and Vic Evavold scored twice for the Northmen. Single goals came from Todd Bergland and Tony Loeffler. Earl Fitzgerald scored four times for Mesabi.

Harder, despite giving up nine goals, played well in a surprise start, kicking out 35 saves, many of them tough stops as the Northland defense often left him to fend for himself.

Northmen Take Weekend Pair

By winning 95-81 at Rainy River Friday night and 87-83 at Hibbing Saturday afternoon, the Northland community college basketball team returned home with its first back-to-back weekend road sweep of Northeast Division teams since the 1974-75 season, reported coach Chet Engelman of the Northmen.

It was the start of the 1982-83 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) schedule for the Northmen, 9-1 overall. They'll face two more Northeast Division teams this weekend, but in Thief River Falls this time as Vermillion arrives for an 8 p.m. game Friday and Mesabi will be here for a 2 p.m. game Saturday.

"I was very, very happy with the kids," said Engelman after the two wins. "Our captains (Matt Fontes, Scott McKeever, Duncan Gregory) played well again, and we got good play out of Steve Halloway, Shorty Johnson and Kevin Sanders."

Fontes finished with weekend series with 61 points, with McKeever scoring 45 and Gregory handing out 20 assists.

Northland 95 Rainy River 81

Northland used on offensive burst late in the first half to establish control and went on to beat Rainy River 95-81 Friday night at International Falls.

Ahead 25-23 with 7:22 left in the first half, the Northmen scored 18 of the next 20 points to take command 43-25. It was 47-34 at halftime.

Matt Fontes scored 27 points, with Scott McKeever getting 25 and Kyle Ramsey 20 in a productive three-pronged attack. Don Juntanen of Rainy River matched Fontes with 27 points.

Northland enjoyed a 59 per cent shooting night from the field (40-for-68) and shot 56 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-27). Rainy River shot 48 per cent from the field (37-for-77) and 50 per cent at the line (7-for-14). The Northmen held a 43-39 rebound edge, with Rainy River topping the turnover charts 26-24.

Northland 87 Hibbing 83

A record shooting performance carried Northland past a strong Hibbing squad Saturday afternoon 87-83.

Northland set a new school conference record with a 66.7 shooting percentage from the field (32-for-48) and came close to setting a new mark in the free throw percentage department, too, with an 88.5 per cent figure (23-for-26).

"If we wouldn't have made the free throws we would have been in trouble," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman.

The Northmen were 16-for-17 at the free throw line in the first half, including a 9-for-9 effort by Scott McKeever.

Hibbing led 42-40 before Northland rattled off the final eight points of the half to take a 48-42 lead when Steve Halloway hit one at the buzzer.

Northland had an 82-74 lead on a three-point play by Matt Fontes with 4:08 remaining in the game, but then surrendered seven straight points as the lead shrank to 82-81 with 1:30 left.

McKeever hit the second shot on a two-shot foul situation for an 85-83 edge with 36 seconds left. Hibbing held the ball and called a time-out to set up a final shot, but wound up throwing the ball away with five seconds to go. Fontes drew a quick foul and he sank both free throws at the end to hike the margin to 87-83.

Fontes finished with 34 points and McKeever had 20 while Shorty Johnson added 13 and Halloway 10. Kevin Knoop led a group of deadly Hibbing outside shooters with 16 points.

Hibbing also shot well, going 52.8 per cent from the field (38-for-72) and 63.6 per cent from the free throw line (7-for-11). Northland out-rebounded Hibbing 29-26 and also topped the turnover figures 17-12.

LHS Freshmen Lose By 54-34 To Crookston

Crookston, ahead just 32-29 at the end of the third quarter, blitzed Thief River Falls 22-5 in the final period Friday to win a freshman high school basketball game played here 54-34.

Thief River Falls, winless in six starts, trailed 15-7 at the end of the first quarter and slipped behind 26-15 at halftime before coming back in the third quarter.

Jeff Anderson had 12 points for the losers while Grant Ovsak had 20 for the winners.

Thief River Falls freshmen visit East Grand Forks Tuesday and drive to Grafton Thursday for 4 p.m. games.

SPOTTING AN opening, Thief River Falls guard Steve Kruta drove toward the basket against Crookston during the first half of Friday's high school basketball game. Steve Berg of the Pirates was guarding Kruta on the play, with Jeff Hamerlinck of the Prowlers looking on. The Pirates won it 57-47.

Crookston Girls Top TRF 55-35 Thursday

Crookston shot an eye-opening 62 per cent from the field Thursday in beating Thief River Falls 55-35 in a girls high school basketball game played at Crookston.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Prowlers, who dropped to 2-6 for the year.

"It wasn't a case of us playing bad," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We played well. I thought we played a fine ball game, but they just burned the nets. They just didn't miss. I've never had that happen to me."

Crookston, having established itself as the top contender in North Half Region 8AA play this winter with a recent 41-35 win over preseason favorite Moorhead, led at the quarter stops 14-6, 27-10 and 43-29.

"They're the best passing team I've seen this year," pointed out Schafer. "They worked the ball around and got some good shots in the middle."

But Crookston's shooting percentage wasn't fattened by all close-in shots, he noted. The Pirates were 9-for-13 from the outside.

Dawn Senske scored 18 points for the winners and Ember Rogalla had 12. Michelle Olson led the Prowlers with 16 points, while Lynne Culkins contributed 10.

Crookston was 26-for-42 from the field (62 per cent) and 3-for-8 at the free throw line. Thief River Falls was 16-for-50 from the field (32 per cent) and 3-for-10 at the line. The Prowlers had a 26-21 rebound edge and the Pirates topped the turnover charts 16-15.

Thief River Falls, winless since back-to-back victories over Tri-County and Roseau in mid-December, will host East Grand Forks Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

It was a clean sweep for Crookston, with the hosts winning the junior varsity game 44-21 and taking the freshman contest 35-23.

Penalties Control Play

There were 14 penalties whistled during Wednesday's Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey game here between rivals Northland community college and the University of Minnesota-Crookston. And even though the Trojans were called for seven of them — including a game disqualification for butt-ending that gave Northland a five-minute power play late in a tie hockey game, UMC coach Jim Clauson wasn't at all unhappy with the officiating by Curt Howe and Buzz Marvin of Thief River Falls. In fact, he was quite satisfied with the game they called.

"I go along with the calls," said Clauson in the sports arena lockerroom afterwards. "I like to see a tight game called. It helps the coach to control the teams. It's hard to tell them not to do things if they can go out on the ice and get away with it. If they get called for it, maybe eventually it will sink in."

Even though there were plenty of penalties, there wasn't any of the rough stuff that used to be commonplace in Northland-Crookston games. They went at each other hard, but there wasn't a single roughing call. Both sides played under control.

It wasn't a classic hockey game, but it was the beginning of an intense four-game Wednesday night series that should get better and better.

Stars Praise Broten's Play

Minnesota North Stars, pushing Neal Broten for the 1983 NHL All-Star game, was again complimentary of the former Section 8 star in a news release last week that read in part:

"Best hockey player ever born in the United States of America? Who else but center Neal Broten of the Minnesota North Stars?

The young man from Roseau, Minn., in the far northwest corner of the state, made a powerful claim to that title last season and has reinforced the opinion with a splendid showing this year."

In comparing him to Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky, considered by many as the best hockey player in the world, the North Stars' newsletter says, "While Gretzky's fame has spread to all parts of the globe, Broten is not well known outside of the borders of his state. But consider what the 23-year-old center has accomplished in the National Hockey League.

He finished last season with 38 goals, 60 assists and 98 points. Each total was a record for NHL players born in the United States. This year he had 20 goals and 28 assists for 48 points in his first 41 games despite the worst slump of his life early in the season — a stretch that saw him score two points in 13 games.

His performance since that slump has been more characteristic: 39 points in 23 games and at least one point in 20 of 23 games. He leads the North Stars in the plus-minus figures with a plus-14. He has the most accurate shot on the team with a 21.1 per cent shooting mark.

Other Americans in the NHL? No one is close to Broten in the scoring race. Reed Larson of Detroit is second with 39 points.

Broten joined the North Stars late in the 1980-81 season already laden with honors. He had been named collegiate player of the year that season while performing for the University of Minnesota. He was a member of the 1980 United States Gold medal-winning Olympic team. He played on an NCAA championship team at Minnesota.

He has not yet played in an NHL All-Star game, but that omission may soon be remedied."

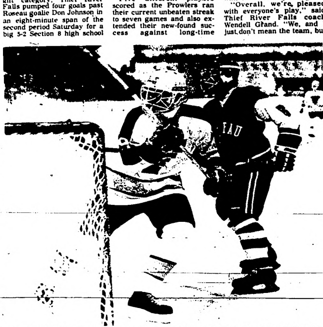
Second Period Outburst Lifts Prowlers Past Rival Rams 5-2

Starting with a pair of goals that probably belong in the gift category, Thief River Falls pumped four goals past Roseau goalie Don Johnson in an eight-minute span of the second period Saturday for a big 5-2 Section 8 high school hockey win before a large sports arena crowd.



FOLLOWING THE PATH of the puck, Thief River Falls forward Rick Spong skated through the goal crease past Roseau defenseman Russel Palm in the second period of Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game in the sports arena. Spong scored the game's first goal and the Prowlers went on to beat the rival Rams 5-2.

Five different players scored as the Prowlers ran their current unbeaten streak to seven games and also extended their new-found success against long-time nemesis Roseau to four games without a loss, including two wins and a tie a year ago.

"Overall, we're pleased with everyone's play," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We, and I just don't mean the team, but the entire city of Theif River Falls, enjoy playing Roseau; the crowd is indicative of that. The kids know that they perform better against Roseau, too. They play up to their potential whenever we play them."

In a dramatic turn of events, Thief River Falls, after getting burned by giving up a shorthanded goal that provided Roseau with a 2-1 edge, the Prowlers suddenly found themselves ahead 3-2 on goals spaced just 52 seconds apart that should have been saves for Johnson, a junior in his first year as a varsity starter.

Defenseman Dave Geatz tied it at 6:22 on a 120-footer from center ice. He was simply putting the puck into the offensive zone when his hard shot on net took a couple of bounces and eluded Johnson.

Less than a minute later Tom Kenville put Thief River Falls ahead when he scored from a sharp angle to the right of the Roseau net. He slapped the puck between Johnson's leg and the goal post, hitting the netminder's pads, and having the puck trickle across the goal line at 7:14.

"Obviously we got a bit of a bonus on Jimmy Geatz' goal," pointed out Grand. "I think that was a real factor in the game. I thought we played well after that. We were fortunate to get that one, and Tommy's, too. You can't give up too many shorthanded goals against Roseau and still win many hockey games. Ordinarily that would be devastating."

Thief River Falls continued the assault as the second period started to wind down. Tim Bottem picked up a loose puck that had hit a Roseau skater in the back near the face-off circle to the right of Johnson, came in alone and scored on a hard shot from about 15-feet at 12:22 as the score jumped to 4-2. Tim Bergland then put in a rebound during the final minute for a 5-2 spread and the partisian Thief River Falls crowd erupted.

Roseau coach Gary Hokanson, although naturally disappointed with the loss, wasn't at all unhappy with his team's play. "I thought we played an excellent hockey game," he said. "They got a couple of cheap ones and there were a couple of opportunities we missed. That was the story of the game."

"We're young, we're going to make mistakes," added Hokanson, who skated just three seniors, "but there's no doubt we could have won the hockey game. It says 5-2 on the score sheet, but in my heart I know it was a lot closer than that."

Thief River Falls opened the scoring at 4:07 of the first period as Rick Spong drifted backwards through the slot area in front of the Roseau net and tapped a bouncing puck by Johnson.

Roseau tied it at 12:42 when Paul Broten put a rebound past Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin, who made two fine saves on the play, but had nobody there to clear the puck.

The Prowlers coughed up the puck in their own end on the power play in the second period and Larry Goos capitalized on the opportunity to give Roseau a short-lived lead at 3:25.

Thief River Falls, 6-3-1 with six wins and a tie in the last seven starts, will be in Warroad Tuesday.

HIS WORDS fell on deaf ears Wednesday when University of Minnesota-Crookston defenseman Rich Schmitz argued a slashing penalty called on him by referee Curt Howe late in the third period of a 6-6 hockey game with Northland community college in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Schmitz picked up his needless penalty — taking a swipe at Northland's Tom Ose after the whistle had sounded — with just 1:45 left in regulation time. The Trojans were able to kill off the penalty, though, and won it 7-6 in overtime.

Plummer Basketball . . .

Cards Nearly Snap Streak

Plummer is still losing basketball games. But not by much. The Cardinals, who have lost 46 straight games over the last 2½ seasons, went into overtime Saturday before losing a heart-breaking 58-56 decision at Mentor.

Friday night Plummer cut a 30-point first half deficit down to six in the fourth quarter before falling at Goodridge 71-63.

Winless in eight starts this winter, Plummer has won just one game over the last 3½ years.

But the weekend performances brought a ray of sunshine into the sagging Plummer program. "We're coming along," pointed out second-year head coach Jim Baron. "The kids really don't talk about the losing streak that much. I'm sure it's in the back of their minds, but they don't play like losers. They play like they're winners, and these last two games prove it. These kids are winners. I'm proud of them."

A starting line-up that features just one senior, one junior and three sophomores can only get better, pointed out Baron. "We're starting to jell. We'll keep working at it."

Goodridge 71
Plummer 63

Goodridge jumped out to a 28-4 first quarter lead and had a big 38-8 spread midway into the second quarter Friday and was headed for an apparently easy home court win over Plummer. But the Cardinals staged a furious second half rally that nearly pulled off a miraculous comeback before the Huskies escaped with a 71-63 Polar Conference win.

"I was really proud of the guys," praised Plummer coach Jim Baron. "I've never seen a team come back like they did. It was fantastic. We put ourselves in a hole, but we came back. They played just fantastic, every one of them. I've never seen a guttier performance by a high school team."

Ahead 44-20 at halftime, Goodridge, with its starting five intact, went the first four minutes of the second half without a point as Plummer rallied within 50-41. The margin shrank to 60-54 with five minutes left in the game, but the Cardinals' gallant comeback couldn't get it any closer.

"It was like two different games," explained Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We got the big lead early and tried to coast too much. We just didn't execute." But he, too, applauded the Plummer effort. "They never quit, give them credit."

A new wrinkle in the Goodridge starting line-up paid immediate dividends in the first quarter by scoring 28 points without a single turnover. Ross Parnow scored 15 points in the first eight minutes to get things going for the Huskies. Scott Groven wound up as the leading Goodridge scorer with 18. Tim Gagner of Plummer took game-high scoring honors with 21.

Nelson praised the play of Tim Bakken, Tony Wiseth and Groven, who held things together down the stretch, while Baron cited the formances of Gene Fisher, Warren Tvedt, Duane Franklund and Gagner in the comeback effort.

Goodridge shot 44 per cent from the field (27-for-61) while Plummer shot 39 per cent (22-for-56). There was 51 free throws shot during the foul-plagued game, with Goodridge shooting 42 per cent at the line (13-for-31) and Plummer shooting 48 per cent (19-for-40). Goodridge had a 33-24 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 27-23.

The Huskies, 5-4, will be at Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Mentor 58
Plummer 56

It was a repeat performance for Plummer Saturday against Mentor as the Cardinals were slow out of the blocks but rallied, only to lose again, this time 58-56 in overtime.

Mentor led 16-3 at the end of the first quarter and had a 38-17 halftime cushion before Plummer erupted for a 46-40 third quarter edge. A pair of Warren Tvedt free throws with eight seconds left in regulation time gave Plummer a 54-54 tie and forced overtime. Steve Tassmore of Mentor won it with two free throws in the final half-minute of overtime — his only points of the night.

"It was crushing for the boys to come so close and still lose," sighed Plummer coach Jim Baron. "The boys worked hard on the press to get us back into it. They deserved to win."

Plummer shot 30 per cent from the field (21-for-68) and 47 per cent at the free throw line (14-for-30). Mentor shot 38 per cent from the field (19-for-50) and 57 per cent at the line (20-for-35).

MCC Rally Falls Short In 48-45 Loss To Kennedy

Marshall County Central, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. high school basketball game, fell short with a late-game rally Friday in a 48-45 home court loss to Kennedy.

With the loss the Nordics, who reached the Region 8A championship game last year, fell to 3-4, same record as Thief River Falls following the Prowlers' 57-47 Friday night loss at home to Crookston.

Tuesday's game will be the first Thief River Falls-Marshall County Central match-up since the opener in the 1970-71 season when the Nordics won by a 63-45 count in the Lincoln gym.

Kennedy led at the quarter stops Friday 15-10, 28-20 and 38-35. The Rockets owned a seven-point lead with one minute remaining before Marshall County Central rallied to within 47-45. With six seconds remaining the Nordics thought they had a final possession opportunity to win it when the Rockets missed the front end of a bonus free throw situation, but the rebound came out long, Kennedy grabbed it and salted the game away with a final free throw in the last second.

"We did a real nice job using the clock and coming back at the end," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland.

But early in the game the Nordics were burned by 6-2 Kennedy sophomore Jeff Johnson, who scored 16 of his 21 points in the first half, including 10 in the first quarter.

"We did a good job on defense in the second half," explained Ueland, "but we didn't board well, and that was the most disappointing factor. Our offense didn't play well in the second quarter; we got a little ragged."

Scott Anderson scored a game-high 23 points for the Nordics, but nobody else hit double figures. Tommy Deere joined Johnson in double figures for the Rockets with 14.

Season-long shooting woes continued to frustrate Marshall County Central, 18-for-57 in this one (32 per cent). Kennedy was 20-for-42 (48 per cent). The Nordics were 9-for-18 at the free throw line where the Rockets were 8-for-17. Kennedy built a 40-27 rebound advantage and also topped the turnover figures 17-12.

Middle River coach Eldon Sparby was upset Friday after watching his Skippers lose a 58-46 North Boarder Conference game to Warroad.

"That was the worst home performance since I started coaching here, considering the talent we have," he said. "We just stood around."

Middle River started in decent fashion, owning a 17-14 first quarter lead, but Warroad went ahead 32-26 at halftime and had a 44-39 lead after three quarters.

The Skippers were still in it, though, until they went 6½ minutes through the last part of the fourth quarter without scoring. In 12 offensive possessions the Skippers failed to generate even a good shot, explained Sparby.

With the loss Middle River fell to 3-4 for the year. The Skippers visit Badger Tuesday.

Kevin Roppe scored a game-high 18 points for Middle River, but no other teammate joined him in double figures. Duane Nelson and Dave Phillipe had 16 apiece for the Warriors and Royal Jaros hit 15.

Middle River shot 40 per cent from the field for the game (21-for-52) and just 33 per cent at the free throw line (4-for-12). Warroad shot 44 per cent from the field (24-for-55) and 50 per cent at the line (10-for-20).

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA-Crookston goalie Jeff Burke had his shaky moments during Wednesday's hockey game against Northland community college in the sports arena, but he held his ground and came up with this second period save on Tom Raymond as defenseman Tom Folske came over to help out on the play. The Trojans beat the Northmen 7-6 in overtime to start the series of four consecutive Wednesday night meetings between the two northwestern Minnesota rivals.

THIEF RIVER FALLS guard John Brandt slipped to the floor, but was able to keep dribbling the ball and avoided a traveling violation during Friday's high school basketball game against Crookston in the Lincoln gym. Jeff Bigger of the Pirates guarded Brandt on the first half play. Brandt finished with 14 points to lead the Prowlers and Bigger had 13 for the Pirates, who won the game 57-47.

Pirates Hit Free Throws To Down Prowlers 57-47

Crookston made 12 of 15 fourth quarter free throws, including a 9-for-10 showing at the line on bonus situations in the final 48 seconds, to come out with a 57-47 high school basketball win over Thief River Falls Friday.

Crookston had a slim 48-47 lead when the Pirates broke it open at the line in the final minute of play. After an undistinguished 7-for-15 effort shooting free throws through the first three quarters, Crookston came through in fine fashion at the end, especially in the final minute when sophomore Will Schnabel was 3-for-4, junior Jeff Bigger 4-for-4 and junior Dave Taus 2-for-2.

While the two coaches both praised their players for their efforts, neither Herb Hasz of Crookston or Tom Hunt of Thief River Falls was about to call it a well-played basketball game.

"It wasn't . . . well, let's just say you wouldn't use your films from this game to teach with," said Hasz in an attempt to describe the often wild, erratic action. "A lot of things went wrong on both sides. But we're really happy with the way we hustled. When we had to hold onto the ball at the end, we did."

"I thought our kids played hard," pointed out Hunt. "In the second half the breaks just didn't fall our way. But we have to start making our own breaks in tight situations if we want to win tight games like that."

After an early Thief River Falls blitz that quickly faded away, it was a nip-and-tuck affair played at a feverish pitch between the long-time athletic rivals. Thief River Falls scored 10 straight points to take a 12-5 lead near the midway mark of the first quarter with an impressive shooting display that saw the Prowlers hit five of their first seven shots, then rebound the two misses and score on them, too.

However, a four-point play enabled Crookston to get right back in it as junior forward Eric Samuelson drove the baseline for a basket, and senior forward Steve Berg drew a foul underneath on the play. That enabled the Pirates to maintain possession and senior forward Jeff Bigger squirted through the middle with 1:07 left to pull the visitors within 12-11.

It stayed close throughout the second quarter, with junior guard John Brandt, who got a starting call in place of flu-stricken Mark Gere, ending a string of seven straight Thief River Falls misses by dribbling against Crookston pressure and putting up a 15-foot jumper with three seconds left that caught nothing but net for a 26-22 edge at intermission for the Prowlers. Thief River Falls had gone nearly five full minutes without a field goal before that basket.

Crookston killed Thief River Falls on the boards in the third quarter in taking a 35-30 lead, scoring three times on offensive rebounds. The Prowlers came back, though, out-scoring the Pirates 8-2 over the final 1:43 to take a 38-37 lead as the quarter ended. Steve Olson got the first basket in that run on an offensive rebound, then Brandt hit three straight shots from the outside, including the go-ahead basket at the buzzer.

There were seven lead changes and a tie in the first seven minutes of the fourth quarter. Crookston finally took the lead for keeps when Taus hit one from the side with 4:17 left, putting the Pirates ahead 46-45.

Bigger put a short jumper in from the side with 1:38 left after the Pirates had eaten up about a minute-and-a-half with a passing game outside the Thief River Falls zone to expand the margin to 48-45.

Gere, who played despite the illness, canned a long jumper to pull Thief River Falls within 48-47 with 1:17 still remaining, but the final nine points were scored by Crookston — at the free throw line.

Taus, who scored mostly from the outside, and Bigger, getting seven of his points at the free throw line, finished with 13 points apiece for the Pirates, whose leading scorer, Jim Reitmeier was held to nine points after running into foul trouble and eventually fouling out just 1:03 into the fourth quarter. Olson and Brandt did a good job for the Prowlers in scoring 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Field goal figures were nearly identical. Thief River Falls was 20-for-58 (34 per cent) while Crookston was 19-for-58 (33 per cent). But while Crookston was 19-for-30 at the free throw line (63 per cent), Thief River Falls was a less busy 7-for-12 (58 per cent). Crookston finished with a 38-30 rebound edge and Thief River Falls topped the turnover figures 22-14.

Hunt said he was disappointed with the Prowlers' defensive play. It didn't come close to matching Thief River Falls' effort in a 44-37 win at Bemidji the last time out. "We've got to take the baseline away and keep people off the boards," he pointed out. "Those things happen when you play as much zone as we did tonight, but I just didn't think we could play man-to-man against their quickness."

Thief River Falls, 3-4, will host Marshall County Central Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Northwomen Gain Split On Weekend

Beaten 62-44 Friday night by Rainy River at International Falls in their first game in a month, members of the Northland community college women's basketball team bounced back Saturday afternoon to win by a 61-54 margin at Hibbing.

With the weekend split the Northwomen stayed at .500 for the year, 4-4. It was their first Northwest Division-counting games of the 1982-83 season. They'll be at home this weekend, hosting Vermilion Friday at 6 p.m. and entertaining Mesabi Saturday at 12 noon.

"I'm sure it was the lay-off," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson after the Friday night loss to Rainy River, a team Northland beat 53-48 earlier this season. The Northwomen were playing for the first time since a Dec. 16 win at Itasca, 63-35.

Rainy River capitalized on Northland's layoff to open up a 31-15 lead at halftime.

Saturday at Hibbing, Northland owned a 27-21 lead at intermission and maintained that spread through the second half.

Tara Nicholson scored 22 points for the winners, with CeCe Hildebrandt getting 12 and Kris Johnson 10.

The Northwomen shot 38 per cent from the field (25-for-68) and 69 per cent at the free throw line (11-for-16). The Cardinals shot 34 per cent from the field (24-for-70) and 50 per cent at the line (6-for-12). Stats were even in the rebound (47-44 Northland) and turnover (38 apiece) departments.

LHS Swimmers Host Fosston On Tuesday

Lincoln high school swimming team will take on rival Fosston Tuesday in a 5 p.m. dual meet at the Franklin middle school pool that will be observed as Parent's Night for the Prowlers and their families.

Thief River Falls will also be at home Saturday when the Prowlers host Fergus Falls and Fosston in a double-dual format starting at 1 p.m. at Franklin.

Fergus Falls defeated Thief River Falls 86-40 last Tuesday in a late-reported dual meet result in the Otters' pool, dropping the Prowlers' dual meet record to 0-5 for the year.

Thief River Falls came up with a lone first place finish at Fergus Falls, with Todd Wing establishing a new Lincoln school record in the diving competition by racking up 239.85 points. Teammate Jeff Rosetta was second with 220 points.

Oscar Garza of the Prowlers was second in the 100-yard breaststroke, but his 1:12.77 was good enough to qualify him for the 1983 Section 4 swimming meet March 5 at Bemidji State University.

Lincoln Hockey JV 3-2 Winner Over Roseau

Dan Imgrund scored twice in a 59-second span late in the third period Saturday to lift Thief River Falls past Roseau 3-2 in junior varsity high school hockey.

Billy Desrocher scored for a 1-0 Thief River Falls first period lead, with Roseau tying it 1-1 in the second period. Imgrund broke the tie at 8:45 of the third period and made it 3-1 at 9:44 before Roseau closed the gap with a final minute goal.

Al Sorum, Lee Genereux and Steve Solheim each worked a period in the nets for the winners, 6-4 for the year.

A FIRST PERIOD power play scoring opportunity for Northland slipped away when freshman wing Tom Raymond couldn't get to the puck in time to beat Crookston goalie Jeff Burke, who was spread across the goal mouth during Wednesday's Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Tom Ose (left) and Ladd Bjugson of the Northmen were also in front of the UMC net, with the Trojans' Rich Schmitz (15) trying to tie up Bjugson on the play. Northland had a 3-0 lead at one point, but wound up losing it 7-6 in overtime.

Trojans Rally, Edge Northmen 7-6 In Overtime Hockey Game

Frustration continues for the Northland community college hockey team in its series against northwestern Minnesota rival University of Minnesota-Crookston. First of the month-long series of Wednesday night meetings between the Northmen and Trojans took place last week in the Thief River Falls sports arena and for the 18th time in the last 22 NCC-UMC match-ups, Crookston was a winner, 7-6 in sudden-death overtime.

Making it even more difficult to swallow for the Northmen was the fact they blew a 3-0 lead at home. In fact, they had the lead on three occasions and couldn't hold on, even with a prolonged five-minute power play in the final stages of the third period that could have broken the game open for the Northmen.

"Sure I'm disappointed," snapped Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. in answer to a post-game question. "I'm disappointed with the fact that we lose a game in which we score six goals and blow the lead three times. We gave it away. We relaxed too many times out there and Crookston just capitalized too quickly before we could recover."

"That was a big win for us," said UMC coach Jim Clauson, drawing a big breath. "We feel very lucky to come out a winner."

It was the Trojans' first game since mid-December, and they showed the effects of the long lay-off, acknowledged Clauson. "We practiced 2½ months for four games. That gets stale after a while," he said. "We didn't look very good, especially in the first period. I'd like to think it was the lay-off. We're fortune to win; we snuck one by."

The two rivals, who came into the game with identical 3-1 records even though Northland was coming off a weekend sweep against Hibbing while UMC was idle, will renew the rivalry this Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Crookston.

A picture-perfect passing play between former Fargo North high school teammates Tom Raymond and Ladd Bjugson gave Northland a 1-0 lead and provided the only excitement in a flat first period.

Things opened up considerably in the second period, with Northland running up a 3-0 lead. Todd Graalum did a nice bit of stickwork to get by a UMC defender at the Trojans' blueline on a solo rush, then quickly let go with a hard, long slap shot that sailed over the shoulder of UMC goalie Jeff Burke at 5:06.

Skating shorthanded, Northland scored when Thief River Falls sophomore Tony Loeffler picked up the puck at center ice for a breakaway at 6:58.

But that lasted just 17 seconds as Dennis LaCoursiere scored on the power play. Then after several near-misses for the Northmen, the lead shrank to 3-2 on a quick rebound shot by Kary Strandell at 13:34 and the lead disappeared altogether at 15:11 when Erick Grafstrom came from behind the net and backhanded the puck by Northland goalie Bill Bye at 15:11.

Bjugson picked up his second goal of the night on a Northland power play at 16:16 of the second period, reaching in behind Burke to slap in a rebound that lay in the goal crease.

Both teams scored freebies to start the third period. It was not a good night for either goalie. Burke misplayed a soft centering pass across the crease at his feet and the puck slipped slowly across the goal line for a Todd Gregoire goal at 1:55, providing a 5-3 Northland lead.

But at 2:58 at the other end, Dan Hoff came from behind the net and bounced one off the back of Bye for a 5-4 game.

"I'm not blaming Billy Bye at all (for the loss)," said Dorn, "but he was lax a couple of times around our net and it cost us. He's a much better goalie than that. Our defensemen had trouble moving people out, too."

Clauson also admitted it wasn't a great display of goaltending. "Jeff gets a little anxious at times. He sometimes forces things," he said.

Putting a lot of pressure on in the Northland end, UMC tied it 5-5 when Rich Schmitz scored on a power play at 8:53.

A five-minute major penalty on LaCoursiere for butt-ending at 9:23 gave Northland a great chance to score one or more power play goals down the stretch, but instead they managed to put just three shots on net that entire time. They did get a power play out of it, but with just two seconds left and there wasn't anything pretty about it, except that it gave Bjugson the hat trick for the night.

Hoff forced overtime, though, when he came in alone and beat Bye low from 20-feet on the right side at 17:08.

Bjugson could have won it when he faced Burke 1-on-1 with just three seconds left, but this time the UMC netminder made the game-saving stop.

An interference penalty on Graalum early in the scheduled 10-minute overtime provided UMC with a power play opportunity and the Trojans made the most of it, scoring at 2:01 when Jeff Strandell came from behind the Northland net to the right of Bye, who had his legs spread apart on the play, and simply slipped the puck through the netminder's pads.

School Board Proceedings

January 17, 1983
Regular Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 564
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
December 13, 1982

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District No. 564 was held at 8:00 p.m. on December 13, 1982 in the Board Room of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Archie Cameron, Myrle Carlson, Hank Hallstrom, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Robert Block, Superintendent.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve the Minutes of the November 22, 1982 Regular Board Meeting. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the Minutes of the November 29, 1982 Special Board Meeting. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve the bills as submitted. Motion carried unanimously.

Discussion was held on the possibility of needing to borrow money in May of 1983 if it appears we will have a cash flow problem at that time. No action was taken.

Following discussion, a motion was made by M. Carlson and seconded by A. Cameron to employ the Moser, Christianson, Axtell, and Company accounting firm for a second year to perform the 1982-83 School District audit. Motion carried unanimously.

Discussion was held on selection of a vendor to provide health care services for the district. Formal action was delayed until the next Regular meeting.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the Thursday and Sunday opening of the swimming pool at Franklin so far as it does not become an expense of operation to the School District. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by H. Hallstrom authorizing the administration to enter into a contract with Joseph Pupillo and Associates for a period of five months at $180 per month for the remainder of this school year to provide computerized consultative services in the Food Services Program. Motion carried unanimously.

The Superintendent briefly discussed a tentative agenda for the Hearing on the final review and closure of the St. Hilaire Elementary School scheduled for Monday, December 20, 1982 at 7:30 p.m. in the Franlin Middle School Cafeteria.

Chairman Harry Sjulson reported on a meeting he and the Superintendent had with the Finance Committee of the TRF City Council concerning an increase in rink rentals and property acquisition. It appears that a portion of the building housing the Northwest Vocational Center is on City property. The Finance Committee was receptive to alternatives that were presented such as the possibility of swapping some land. Board consensus was that every effort should be made to negotiate some alternative to an increase in rental or purchase of the land.

Information was distributed concerning enrollment and the fact that in gaining some Kindergarten children, our loss is considerably less than contemplated at first.

Guidelines for use of AVTI vehicles were distributed.

A motion was made by M. Carlson and seconded by A. Aune directing the administration to review all of the listed projected cuts as presented and bring back to the Board the amount saved by each cut and the impact it would have on the School District and students as a whole. Motion carried unanimously.

The proposed cuts included but were not limited to the following:

1. Food Services - cut expenditures
2. Facility closing
3. Administration
4. Four-day week or variation of shortened school year
5. Teamster units — number in units or shortened hours-day or number of days

Skyscraper Built 110 Feet Deep At 'U' of Minnesota

by Jeanne K. Hanson
'U' M News Service

A futuristic underground building — complete with a street scene piped in to its lowest level by periscope — will open in late January on the University of Minnesota's Twin Cities campus.

Called the civil and mineral engineering (CME) building, it is named for the department whose labs, classrooms, offices, computers and study space it houses. Reaching as far down as the supports of the Brooklyn bridge, the building is a buried "mini-skyscraper." it is the first building ever built from above ground to 110 feet below the surface. Six stories and the limestone layer in between make it the equivalent of seven buried stories, with only five per cent of the building visible above ground.

Constructing the building required digging through 50 feet of glacial drift and rock, a 30-foot limestone shelf and 30 feet of sandstone. Even so, the cost — $17 million — is about 10 per cent less than an above-ground counterpart of this complex laboratory building, said Lawrence Goodman, civil and mineral engineering professor at the university and chairman of the building's planning committee. Funds were provided by the Minnesota legislature.

Since temperatures remain at 55 degrees Fahrenheit all year long at 25 or more feet below the surface — even in Minnesota — the building should also use less energy. Heating and air conditioning should take less than half the energy needed for an above-ground building of roughly the same size. Energy use will be monitored monthly by the university, said Don Holberg, associate director of the physical plant.

"There is nothing like this building in the world," said David Bennett, the architect who designed it and six other underground buildings. The CME building has already won the 1982 Owens-Corning Energy Award, given to four buildings across the country, he said.

"The new daylighting technology has excited the most interest so far," said Bennett, of the firm BRW Architects. Its three main features are a periscope window, a heliostat and skylights.

The periscope system, which shows the changing street scene outside as though the viewer were on the second floor up instead of the sixth floor down, is "like a TV screen, only real," Goodman said. Many tiny, flat mirrors were ground to make the vurved lens for this remote view optics system, also called a telewindow.

The heliostat creates a single sunshine spill, also at the lowest level. The light is collected by two three-foot square lenses, called a sky monitor system, which tracks the sun from a cupola visible above ground, then relays it to another lens at the bottom.

"I discouraged using the mined space for offices, as opposed to labs, but I don't think I'll mind," said Ray Sterling, director of the university's underground space center, the country's foremost research and public education center for the use of underground space. The center will be housed at the lowest level of the new building. "No human factors research is planned, because most building users will have access to natural light," Sterling added.

Skylights, also called billboards, illuminate many other areas of the building, including the larger labs. All the natural-light technology should save a considerable amount of electricity, Bennett said.

Other passive solar systems designed into the building include a trombe wall and microclimatology landscaping. The trombe wall — a sandwich of two layers of glass with Pyrex water pipes in between — collects heat along the south side. Ducts attached to it feed the heated air into the building in the daytime and recirculate it at night. Draping deciduous vines were planted on the south side to shelter the building in summertime; masses of evergreens direct winds away from other parts of the building.

Bikes can be parked and picnics can be held on the building's terraced and landscaped roof, thus preserving green space, another goal of underground construction technology.

Still other features are the strong lab floor, the limestone and sandstone "windows", the waterproofing techniques and the sand room.

The two-and-one-half-foot thick floor of the structures lab — where beams, girders and other engineering frameworks are tested — has holes through which materials to be tested can be bolted to the natural limestone layer underlying the city. "We think it's a very efficient use of the limestone layer," Goodman said. Elsewhere in the building, the windows of limestone and sandstone — exposed cross sections of the building's exterior — provide a glimpse of the rock outside.

Waterproofing an underground building is very important Sterling said. Upper levels of this building are wrapped in a waterproof membrane with water tunnels dug alongside. A well and pumps are in place at the lowest level, which is just a few feet above the permanent water table governed by the Mississippi river, Goodman said. The waterproofing also helps to reduce the level of randon, a radioactive gas given off naturally by rocks and ground water. Because randon levels are also reduced by the building's ventilation system, the result is a building with randon levels similar to those in conventional buildings, Sterling said.

The sand room, extra space to be developed later if funds permit, is now a 10,000-square-foot empty area at the lowest level of the building. Hollowed out of the soft sandstone, which is left loose on the floor, it looks like a giant sandpile.

Kansas City, Mo., has extensive underground limestone caverns now used for warehousing and industry. China has 20 million citizens living underground and Scandinavia has underground facilities for sports, sewage and defense, but only Minneapolis has a buried "skyscraper" in daily use, according to Sterling. "We hope it'll be a spur to other underground development," he said.

AREA FARMERS gathered in the Best Western inn meeting room in Thief River Falls Thursday morning to hear explanation of the payment-in-kind (PIK) program of the U.S. department of agriculture from Sen. Rudy Boschwitz. Sen. Boschwitz was assited by a USDA official who fielded individual questions from the farmers attending. The senator and USDA official explained that the PIK program is a land diversion program designed to bring supplies of grain more in line with demand. The government offers farmers an amount of commodity for reducing acreage by a larger amount than called for under previously announced program. The program is expected to reduce harvested acreage of wheat, corn and grain sorghum by more than 20 million acres from announced programs with production reduced by more than a billion bushels. Conservation practices would be applied to 23 million acres more land than under previously announced programs. Farmers can expect to receive the same or greater net returns while the stock adjustments are occurring. Details of the program are available at county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) and sing-up for the program is accomplished there. Farmers who wish to put their entire farm under the PIK program may do so on a bid basis with bids accepted on an ascending scale until a pre-determined level is reached. Under the PIK program, farmers receive cash payment based on projected yield for acres not planted and then are awarded grain equal to the projected yield. The grain may be in storage on their own farms or in warehouse storage.

SONS OF THE American Legion Commander Tom Williams presented Mrs. Joan Koestner with a check for $3800 following a fund raising benefit dinner conducted Thursday evening at the Legion Club. Donations were collected through the dinner and other activities, to assist the Koestner family with the medical bills incurred by Mrs. Koestner's son Ron, who died December 26, in the Grand Forks hospital following an unsuccessful battle with leukemia.

MCCL Rally January 22 At The Capitol

"The American Holocaust 1973-1983" is the theme of the tenth annual rally sponsored by Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) to mark the anniversary of the 1973 supreme court decisions legalizing abortion.

Marchers will begin circling the Capitol in St. Paul at noon on Saturday, January 22, and then gather for a short program on the West steps at approximately 12:30 p.m. Thousands of pro-lifers from around the state have attended the annual rallies previously to protest the 1973 decisions and to commemorate the lives lost through abortion since these decisions were handed down — a total now estimated at over 12 million.

According to MCCL President Leo LaLonde, the holocaust theme was chosen ". . . because the philosophy that led to the destruction of millions of innocent people in Nazi Germany parallels the philosophy used to justify destruction of millions of innocent unborn children in contemporary America."

Another purpose of the rally is to encourage elected officials to do everything possible to restore respect for life, LaLonde said. MCCL members will be contacting their state legislators and the governor prior to January 22 to encourage them to support the MCCL legislative program.

An ecumenical prayer service sponsored by the Minneapolis-St. Paul Archdiocese will precede the rally, beginning at 11 a.m. at the St. Paul Cathedral on Summit avenue near the Capitol.

Film Portrays Farmers' Fight For Survival

Small west-central Minnesota town made a movie last fall that was released in January. Already over 1300 people have seen the film at its two rural premieres.

Foreclosure, a twenty-minute dramatic film, was shot on location in Milan, MN (pop. 427) in September and involved more than 350 rural people as stars, laborers or both. Foreclosure was co-produced by the Milan community education council and Community Access to Media, Inc., a non-profit corporation from Minneapolis.

Directed by award-winning director Jim Gambone, the film is about the history of farm foreclosures and how farmers are losing family farms today.

Foreclosure contrasts a 1982 farm foreclosure with a "flashback" to a Depression-era "penny auction". "Penny auction" was a tactic used in the 1930's by a group called the farmers' holiday association. Farmers would come to foreclosure sales and bid pennies and nickels for sale items, then return everything to the original owners. This way, farm families stayed on their farms and bankers were forced to renegotiate the debt.

Clint Haroldson, 74, a retired farmer, is one of the last surviving organizers of Minnesota's farm holiday association. He also plays an old-timer in Foreclosure who watches the modern auction and tells the story of a successful penny auction in 1932.

"I'm afraid conditions are very similar today," Haroldson said. "If we can get the communities and people in urban areas to understand this, then I think the film will be a success."

Foreclosure comes with a study-guide that was written with the help of all the major Minnesota farm organizations. Film will be distributed through coops, churches and community education.

Anyone interested in getting information about sales and rentals of Foreclosure should contact: Community Access to Media, Inc., 2524 Hennepin Av S No. 6, Minneapolis, MN 55405. (612) 377-4215.

Tom Scholin Is Ass't. Manager At NDSU Show

Tom Scholin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Scholin of Thief River Falls, is an assistant manager for the 35th agricultural engineering show to be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, February 12, at North Dakota state university.

Student exhibits and a model tractor performance contest highlight the show held in conjunction with the 57th Little International exposition.

NDSU students will prepare exhibits and build working models in the 5 major divisions of utilities, structures, power and machinery, soil and water and farm tractors.

High school students from North Dakota and western Minnesota are invited to design or modify a scale model tractor, power it with rubber bands and enter it in a special contest. Contest has expanded over the years to include a category for college students, faculty and the general public.

All models will be tested for drawbar pull starting at 1 p.m. at Ladd hall, room 107. Entries must be operated by the contestant.

Admission to the 1983 show is free and lunch will be served.

More information on the agricultural engineering show can be obtained by writing the Agricultural Engineering Department, North Dakota state university, Fargo, ND, 58105.

Congressman Comments On PIK Program

"The announcement of the PIK program is a positive sign that President Reagan and agriculture secretary John Block are seriously concerned about the plight of our nation's family farmers," states Congressman Arlan Stangeland.

"One of the farm families' immediate needs is for increased prices they received for the crops they grow. Improved commodity prices is the goal of the PIK program."

Rep. Stangeland said this will be done by encouraging farmers to reduce overproduction. The government will offer farmers who reduce their acreage a set amount of grain from the farmer-pwned reserve (FOR) program, the regular price support program, or from government owned CCC surplus stocks.

In theory, this will decrease the amount of food produced in 1983. It will also decrease the amount of crops which the government must pay to store.

Working on this theory during last month's lame-duck session, the House passed a measure which would have given the agriculture secretary limited authority to implement the PIK program for the 1983 crop year. The Senate failed to complete work on this measure.

"Now that we have the President's specific proposal on paper, I believe the Congress will have to examine the administration's position carefully. It is up to us to find ways to administer this complex program fairly and adequately," Rep. Stangeland added. "Portions of the PIK program will have to be fine-tuned.

"For example, I am still concerned about the number of acres that can be taken out of production in any one country. The president has proposed that up to 50 per cent of the acreage in a county may be pulled from production. That figure might be too high for the agri-businesses (seed, fertilizer, etc.) in one county to sustain. Many of those small businesses may not be able to survive losing 50 per cent of their sales.

"Another possible problem with the PIK program is the proposal affecting farmers involved in the farmer-owned reserve (FOR) program. Many of these farmers took out loans to build storage bins, anticipating that FOR storage payments would help pay for the bins over the years. Under the President's proposal, farmers in the PIK program will be limited to a payment equal to seven months' storage after their FOR loan is liquidated.

"If the goal of the program is to get as many farmers as possible into the program, then it may be necessary to adjust that seven-month limit on FOR storage payments. These are problems which can be worked out, given time and hard work," the congressman said.

"The PIK program is not a quick fix, because it will take over a year for the impact to be felt. But it is a step in the right direction, and could go a long way toward easing the crisis of low commodity prices for our family farmers."

State Jobless Tax Rates For '83 Assigned

1983 unemployment tax rate notices will be mailed to all employers January 14 the Minnesota department of economic security announced today.

New employers have been assigned a 2.7 per cent benefit cost rate for 1983. Employers with an unemployment experience record are assigned rates from 1.0 per cent to 7.5 per cent, depending upon the number of workers laid off. Those laying off more workers pay higher rates.

Employers with rates higher than one per cent will pay unemployment taxes on the first $9,000 in wages paid to each worker. Employers with one per cent rates will pay taxes on the first $8,000 in wages to a worker. These taxes are used to pay unemployment benefits.

Voluntary contributions made within 30 days from the date notices are mailed may entitle the employer to a lower tax rate.

Local Legislators Comment . . .

Pari-Mutuel Betting Is Early Legislative Effort

Special To The Times
by Lisa Burt
Northern Star News Service

Many questions remain to be answered, but pari-mutuel betting on horse racing is legislation already out of the starting gate in Minnesota. Responding to the voters' mandate last fall, legislators are expected to legalize on-track betting this year.

While questions remain unanswered, many suggestions have been offered.

These questions include:

— How soon will pari-mutuel betting be implemented?

— Where will the tracks be?

— How much local control will there be over the tracks?

Rep. Wallace Sparby of Thief River Falls feels it's a little too early to tell what will happen with pari-mutuel this year. "We need a bill that's workable and controllable," Rep. Sparby said.

He'll be pushing for more than one major track in the state. "Personally, I would like to see at least three in the state," Sparby said.

That would likely open up an opportunity for a northern city, such as Moorhead or Brainerd. Rep. Sparby hasn't heard much on the issue from local fair boards or constituents.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer likes the way they run pari-mutuel in Nebraska, where they move it around to various county fairs. He points out that Roseau has good facilities and Thief River Falls has had horse racing in the past.

For Sen. Stumpf, the big concern is having adequate safeguards. "We can't have a fly-by-night operation," he said, and feels the racing commission, not the legislature, should handle those specifics.

Sen. Stumpf also favors incentives to help generate a horse industry in Minnesota.

The bill sets up a racing commission expected to take some of the political pressure off the legislature. It will have jurisdiction over track ownership, determine where tracks are built, supervise their operations including licenses for ownership and racing and devise a system for splitting the profit.

Many legislators believe the bill will pass this session. If that happens, there is a possibility experimental pair-mutuel tracks will be operating at county fairs as early as this fall.

However, many legislators are urging a more cautious approach.

County fairs would be able to conduct racing during fair days under one of the bill's provisions. To operate at any other time, fair boards would need a commercial license which may result in levying additional taxes for start-up.

It appears unlikely there will be more than one or two major commercial racetracks in the state and there is a general feeling in the legislature that a major track will be located in the Twin Cities area.

Legislative bill authors speculate that a major commercial track could go into operation in 1985. Two years of study and experimenting should allow the commission to set up specific guidelines and analyze results from county fair operations.

Of course, all these provisions are subject to debate and change as the bill goes through the committee process and comes to the Senate and House floors for final action.

Some debate is expected on whether local governments financing county fair racetracks and stepped-up law enforcement should receive compensation for their efforts.

The extent of state control may also be debated. Taking on partisan overtones, many IR legislators are urging minimal state control over commercial operators who plan to build tracks allowing the builders to decide where the tracks should be located.

Another big question has been raised about how much the state would receive from pari-mutuel betting pools and how much would be returned to bettors. Track owners and horse owners also have a stake in this decision.

Council Meets In Secret Over BN Assessment

On the advice of City Attorney Robert Wurst, Thief River Falls city council took advantage of a controversial law which allows them to go into "executive session" to discuss "pending litigation," and excluded the press and public from a special meeting held last night to consider the special assessment levied against Burlington Northern railroad for improvements made to Brooks avenue between Third street and Sixth street.

Street improvement project was undertaken in spite of objections by Burlington Northern, which were noted in a letter to the council prior to an assessment hearing back in May. Since the city is the only other property owner along that section of street, council proceeded on the basis that the improvements would benefit access to the city sports arena.

Burlington Northern was assessed based on the cost of the project and the number of feet of frontage owned on the street, with the cost divided approximately equally between the railroad and the city.

Burlington Northern has now filed notice of appeal on its $51,855.50 assessment, on the basis that the value of the property was not increased by the amount of the assessment. Unofficially, a representative of the railriad has offered to settle out of court for approximately half that amount. Whatever amount the railroad does not pay will have to be paid by the taxpayers of the city.

Prior to the secret "executive session", Mayor Bob Carlson stated that local realtor Bob Flynn had been hired by the city to appraise the Burlington Northern property. Following the meeting, which lasted approximately an hour and 15 minutes, he informed members of the press that the council had made "nil progress" and stated that city Attorney Wurst had been instructed to negotiate with representatives of the railroad.

Council has changed its next regular meeting date, and will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, January 24.

PIK Program To Be Explained At Meetings

Chairman Harold Kalsnes of the Pennington county ASCS office reports that since the announcement of payment in kind program for 1983, the county office has been swamped with requests for information.

"Since farmers do seem very interested in the program, the county committee has scheduled two public information meetings to discuss the program," Kalsnes said. "They will both be held Monday with the first meeting in the Thief River Falls city auditorium at 10 a.m. and the second at the Goodridge school at 8 p.m.

The county committee will attend these meetings, as well as the county office staff, which will present the program details and give examples of program benefits. Every farmer in the county who may have a question about the new PIK program for the 1983 crop year should attend one of these two very important meetings.

Poet To Hold Reading Tues.

Reading some of his poems and answering questions Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls will be Minnesota poet John Minczeski. The reading is open to the public without charge.

Minczeski will be in the community as part of the "Writers-in-the-schools" program sponsored by COMPAS (community programs in the arts and sciences).

SHIPPERS AND CARRIERS of grain transported by Minnesota permit truckers met with representatives of the Minnesota public utilities commission and Minnesota department of transportation Tuesday, to express concern over minimum rates prescribed by the commission for the intrastate truckers hauling grain. Large crowd, consisting primarily of truckers and elevators operators, attended the public meeting in Thief River Falls city auditorium to provide input to the commission to guide them in future rate setting decisions.

Choral Prayer Service Sunday At Redeemer

In observance of the 1983 week of prayer for Christian unity, the greater Thief River Falls Ministerial association has organized a choral prayer service to be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church.

The service will consist of Scripture readings, choral prayer arrangements provided by local church choirs and congregational singing. A time for coffee and fellowship will follow the evening prayer service. Public participation in the service is encouraged.

Members of the ministerial association are meeting daily at 8:30 a.m. at United Methodist church through January 25 for prayer and a continental breakfast.

Theme of the week is "Jesus Christ — Life of the World," according to Rev. Dave Super of St. Bernard's Catholic church, vice president of the ministerial association and publicist for the week of prayer. The ministerial association represents the majority of Christian churches in this community.

History of the week of prayer for Christian unity goes back to 1908 when Episcopal priest Paul James Francis Wattson originated the event at Graymoor, NY. Today the observance is conducted January 18-25 each year throughout the Christian world.

TRF Theatre Group To Meet Monday Night

Chameleon theatre company (Therco), the community theatre in Thief River Falls, will hold a special meeting on Monday at 7 p.m. in the meeting room of the Northwest regional library.

On the agenda for the evening is discussion of future directions for the threatre; the election of a new president and treasurer to replace Nanette and Paul Lutenske who are moving to Michigan; a report by Mrs. Lutenske on where the theatre stands financially and organizationally; and a discussion of the spring production of "Harvey."

All members and non-members in the community and surrounding area are encouraged to attend as public input is needed by the theatre in order to better serve the community.

Adult Education Class Schedule Soon Underway

Cooperative effort among local schools, college and community agencies has once again provided an extensive list of community and adult education classes for residents of the area.

Complete listing of the course offerings was published in a pull-out section of the Times and Northern Minnesota Shoppers Guide last week. For most courses the right to cancel is retained if the course does not attract a minimum enrollment of 10 people. Any person 62 years of age or older may attend any community service course without payment of course fees on a space available basis. Books and supplies are purhcased by registrants if they are needed.

At both AVTI and Northland community college courses, registration is not complete until course fees are paid and no refunds will be made after the first week of class. Terry Lemer is adult education director at the AVTI and Sally Ihne, dean of instruction at Northland community college, handles the community education program there. Pre-registration for all of the courses is important.

Truckers Get Load Off Chest, Not On Truck

Large crowd of truck drivers and grain elevator operators met with representatives of the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission (MPUC) and Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) on Tuesday, in city auditorium to discuss minimum grain rates applicable to all authorized Minnesota intrastate carriers transporting grain.

Meeting was one of a series called by the commission in various areas, at the request of the Minnesota permit truckers association which was represented by General Manager Jim Staebler.

Roger Hanson, MPUC commissioner, noted that latest minimum grain rates had become effective December 7, 1981, and since that time the commission had received numerous inquiries on the subject from both shippers and carriers. He noted that during the past year, the combination of low grain prices and the general downturn in the economy has had an effect on the volume of grain transported to terminal

Trade, Industrial, Technical Workshop Held Here

Rep. Wallace Sparby

Director Orley Gunderson

Trade, industrial and technical workshop was hosted by the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute Thursday evening in the AVTI-NCC cafeteria in Thief River Falls. Attending were AVTI administrators, teachers and advisory committee members from post high school and secondary vocational and technical programs throughout northwestern Minnesota.

Participating from the vocational division of the Minnesota department of education were trade, industrial and technical supervisors Tom Reierson, Ron Johnson, Jeff Brick and Stan Williams.

Fred Ballou, assistant director of the AVTI, said the conferences are held throughout the state annually and in each district on alternate years. Purpose is to provide AVTI instructors and advisory board members with information on legislative issues, increase awareness by legislators of the problems and achievements of the vocational-technical system, and hear from business and industry representatives.

A further purpose, Ballou said, is to try to find ways in which the legislators, schools, business and industry and the general public can work together to improve programs and contain costs.

Tofte emphasized the importance of keeping current in technical and work fields, pointing out that video tapes can be purchased or rented in many areas of work at considerably less cost than traveling for training. Rep. Sparby commented on early indications in this session of the legislature that funding for many state programs, including education, is likely to be curtailed.

U of M Faces $6.4 Million Budget Cut

Again and again over the last two years, the state of Minnesota has faced a deficit and taken back money already appropriated for the University of Minnesota. Latest cut of $6.4 million brings the total to more than $53 million.

Absorbing the cuts doesn't get any easier with experience. "Like old Mother Hubbard's, our cupboards are bare," President C. Peter Magrath told the Board of Regents in December.

The $6.4 million cut was part of a budget-balancing bill passed by the legislature December 20. As bad as it was, the alternative would have been worse for the university. If the bill had failed — it passed by just one vote in the house — Gov. Al Quie would have gone to "unallotment" of funds, and the university's share of the $312 million to be cut would have been about $39 million.

Permanent and temporary cuts are included in the $6.4 million. Some $3 million will be taken from the base budget and not restored. Reductions in state contributions to the retirement plan for civil service staff members over the next six months will come to about $1.5 million. Equivalent amount to be taken from faculty compensation is $1.9 million, but the university was given some flexibility in dealing with that cut.

"These cuts hurt when placed in the context of a biennium in which we were cut another $47 million and in a decade where faculty purchasing power has eroded more than 20 per cent," Magrath told the regents in January.

Magrath quoted from national figures reported in the January issue of Harper's magazine, outlining the relative gains and losses made by employees in the whole range of employment categories over the past 10 years. "Some have increased, some have held ground and some have slipped, but the group that has slipped the most is faculty nationally."

While the university has not declared a legal state of "fiscal exigency", a move that would have to be made before tenured faculty members could be laid off. "We're in real fiscal jeopardy. It's only because the cuts have been managed so well that we have survived as well as we have," he said. "People don't really know what the effects have been and what the consequences will be."

Magrath feels the outlook for the future is not much better. "Those who believe that everything is going to come out OK if we just weather the current fiscal storm are dead wrong," he said.

Fiscal planning model developed by the university and presented to the regents this week produced a gloomy forecast. According to vice president Stanly Kegler, the state will take in $1.5 billion less than it needs over the next two years to meet costs. Even if temporary tax increases are continued, he said, the state will come up short, perhaps by as much as $700 million.

That scenario will mean trouble for the university, which receives roughly one-third of its money from the state. Magrath has appealed repeatedly to citizens and lawmakers to understand the link between the health of a state and the health of its major university.

He used the high technology industry as an example. "Every state in the union is standing in line attempting to woo high-tech companies," Magrath said, and a Joint Economic Committee study has shown that Minnesota and other midwestern states are especially attractive to these companies because of the research and education by universities in the high-tech field.

Two out of every three scientists who work in Minnesota's $2 billion-a-year high-technology industry received their college training at the university. "Minnesota will take itself out of the competition for high-tech companies if it slights the intellectual center that attracts those corporations," he said.

Investing more money in the university, or protecting it from harmful cuts, might make good economic sense for Minnesota. But Kegler, the university's chief lobbyist, doesn't expect to have an easy time selling that case to the legislature. Even if legislators are persuaded, they will be facing some tough choices.

One tendency in hard times is "the legislative and public impulse to close something," Kegler said. "There tends to be a general belief that if you close something, you can save. It's really not that clear. To close a college is a political decision, not a rational one. Very few have ever been closed."

Kegler told the regents this week that the debate on the social benefits of widely available higher education and access to all interested students has not been a public debate. "Until it is, wise decisions will not be made," he said.

Another legislative tendency is to link appropriations to enrollment figures, finance vice president Fred Bohen told the board. While the university's enrollment is at an all-time high, the college-age population in Minnesota will decline drastically by 1990. That may have an even more dampening effect on legislative appropriations in the future, he said.

But Magrath feels the university has to do a better job of making lawmakers and citizens aware of the wide range of services provided by the university. "We're not just a place that educates students in the classroom," he said.

He mentioned the agricultural extension service and the full range of research as just two of "innumerable operations that have nothing to do with enrollment, but are affected financially by enrollment."

AMERICAN HOLOCAUST
1973-1983
On January 22, 1973, seven appointed Supreme Court judges stripped unborn children of their right to life.
Over 12 million human babies have been killed by abortion in America since 1973.
This is more babies destroyed by abortion than Americans killed in all our country's wars combined.
Abortions are now allowed at any time before birth.
Why do we kill human beings in an attempt to solve personal and social problems?
How long can our nation tolerate this wholesale destruction of human lives?
"Although every holocaust ever perpetrated is an unprecedented event in its own right, this should not detract from what all holocausts share in common. . .the systematic and widespread destruction of millions looked upon as indiscriminate masses of subhuman expendables."

Boards Of Red River Units Review Actions

Officials from both sides of the Red river met in Hillsboro, ND last week to discuss projects in the Red River basin. The lower Red river watershed management board and it's North Dakota counterpart, the Red river joint board, updated each other on current and proposed projects and also heard what's going on north of the border from Canadian officials.

The meeting was one of two joint sessions by these boards whose objective is flood reduction in the Red river valley. At Tuesday's meeting, lower Red officials revealed preliminary findings of a basin-wide computer modeling study of each contributing Minnesota watershed. The objective of this study is to obtain information based on stream flows, previous floods and existing projects to be used in future development and decision making.

When completed, the study will be available to each member watershed district as well as the lower Red board which funds many of the large scale projects impacting the flow reductions on the Red river.

North Dakota officials also unveiled a list of 34 proposed projects, their priority rating, and cost estimates for each. This list had been screened down from 70 proposed projects developed since 1981, five of which are targeted for immediate implementation.

Primary Canadian focus has been on provincial and federal implementation of community ring dikes, a flood plain ordinance plus two major diversions and a reservoir providing protection to the city of Winnipeg. Canadian officials noted they are working with Minnesota officials to incorporate flood protection for Noyes into a dike planned for the adjacent Manitoba community of Emerson.

The lower Red river watershed management board also held its annual meeting at a morning session. At that time the board reelected Donald Ogaard, Ada, chairman; Iner Quern, Oslo, vice president; Roger Ward, St. Vincent, treasurer; and Harley Younggren, Hallock, secretary.

The lower Red river watershed management board serves seven watershed districts over a portion or all of 14 Minnesota counties. The North Dakota Red river joint board serves 12 water resource boards over 10 counties.

Following is a listing of Minnesota projects under construction in 1983 with the project name, watershed and cost listed respectively: Roseau river dam, Roseau, $92,049; Angus, Middle-Snake river, $137,000; Black River No. 25, Red Lake, $1,019,000; Moose River No. 13, Red Lake, $3,000,000; Olson Agassiz WMA, Wild Rice, $706,925; Moccasin Creek No. 8, Wild River, $484,704; Mashaug Creek No. 10, Wild Rice, $217,365; and Buffalo-Red No. 5, Buffalo-Red, $162,405.

Truckers Get Load Off Chest —Not On Truck

markets by truckers. Railroad rate reductions, along with a surplus of available railroad cars for transporting grain were also credited as a factor in the problems faced by truckers.

Jerry Pederson, MPUC rate director, noted that hearings had been conducted prior to setting the present minimum grain rates, adding that the rates were a compromise attempt based on testimony at those hearings, and that testimony being receive' Tuesday was a basis for changing the rates, but would be helpful in dealing with the subject in the future.

Don Wikstrom of the Minnesota department of transportation noted that although the minimum rates had not been stringently enforced in the past, they would be more closely watched in the future.

Number of truckers testified that they could not afford to operate their rigs at the minimum rates, unless they could either haul overweight loads, or haul over extended distances.

Several elevator operators testified that they were already operating in the red, and could not afford to pay increased rates to truckers to haul grain, when the railroads could haul it much cheaper. "Elevators have to be competitive too," noted one.

Pederson noted that under the Rail Staggers Act of 1980, railroads are not subject to the same restrictions as truckers.

Comment was made by one of the elevator operators that some truckers were managing to feed their families on the present rates. He allowed that although present economic times were hard on everyone, some truckers would manage to survive until grain started to move enough so that rail rates rose to a point where truck could be competitive again. He noted that even if rates were raised, the truckers wouldn't be getting loads as long as the railroads could substantially undercut their price.

Minnesota's Tax Burden Ranking Drops During 1981

Minnesota's total tax burden ranking has shown improvement for the second year in a row. The latest ranking, which is for fiscal year 1981, shows Minnesota as the 11th highest taxed state in the nation, based on a state and local per capita burden of $1,170.

Minnesota's ranking was eighth highest in the 1979 and ninth in 1980, with per capita burdens of $1,096 and $1,125, respectively. A similar drop in ranking is also seen when the state and local burden is calculated based on "per $1,000 of personal income," according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association (MTA).

It must be emphasized that the favorable drop in rank is reflective of taxes collected from July 1, 1980 through June 30, 1981. They therefore do not include any of the tax hikes enacted in response to the state's fiscal crisis. Moreover, they do include the positive impacts of two and a half years of indexing and property tax relief measures passed in 1979.

Since June 30, 1981, state taxes were increased to bring in an additional $1.2 billion in revenue for fiscal year 1982 and 1983, and local property taxes rose 24 per cent in 1982. It would appear that Minnesota's 1982 ranking would shoot to the top but that contention remains speculative for two reasons:

(1) Taxes were increased on the state level due to recurrent revenue shortfalls — the tax structure will just not generate the usual growth in revenue during a recession. In this sense, a portion of the tax hike is actually replacement revenue. This is little solace, however, for the individual taxpayer;

(2) Minnesota's tax ranking is determined by tax actions in other states. Until these actions and the recessionary implications are finalized, the MTA won't know how the states will line up. Right now Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin are trailing right behind Minnesota. Both Michigan and Wisconsin have undergone similar tax increase scenarios as Minnesota, and Illinois recently announced its first revenue shortfall.

While Minnesota may not move to the top, the downward pull is definitely temporary. The tax increases will start the state on an upward climb; it just remains a question of how high.

The state-by-state tax burden rankings are based on U.S. department of commerce, bureau of the census data, and are compiled in the attached brochure. Figures are shown for total and major individual taxes both on a per capita basis, and per $1,000 of personal income. Per capita state and local expenditures are shown by function for Minnesota and the U.S. average on page 14.

The rankings serve as a quick and useful indicator of the net tax burden relative to other states, but remain only one indicator of this burden. Per capita's are strictly net tax revenue collections divided by the population. Personal income, expressed in "per $1,000," is an indicator gauged to personal wealth or affordability. It reflects income received by individuals from all sources, including wages, interest, dividends and transfer payments. It is calculated prior to tax deductions but after subtraction of social security. Here's how Minnesota fairs with the individual taxes:

Property Taxes

Minnesota retained it's rank of 22nd highest in 1981 with a per capita amount of $327. Based on collections per $1,000 of personal income the state moved from 22nd highest to 25th.

The per capita collections reflect nearly flat growth in 1981 — increasing by only .8 per cent and thus continuing (at least through 1981) the state's 10-year commitment to hold the line on property taxes. This commitment is met through a myriad of local government and education aid payments and direct homeowner relief provided through the homestead credit. The latter now pays 58 per cent of a homeowner's tax bill up to $650, at a total state cost of $363 million in 1981. The income-related property tax refund is not included in the rankings. All else remaining constant, Minnesota's ranking would be 32nd with this $194 million in relief included.

Minnesota's per capita property tax collections of $326.92 is only slightly below the U.S. average of $330.92. Based on collections per $1,000 of income the state's $33.53 is again slightly below the U.S. average of $34.66.

Individual Income Taxes

For the second year in a row Minnesota's ranking dropped — from sixth to seventh in 1981, with a per capita amount of $343. It was the state of Wisconsin which nudged Minnesota out of sixth position. Wisconsin moved up from seventh highest in 1980 to fifth in 1981. Based on per $1,000 of personal income, Minnesota moved up a notch from seventh to sixth with a burden of $35.

Although Minnesota's ranking remains high, the improvement is attributable to 1979 legislative enactments which indexed the tax brackets at 85 per cent of the Mpls.-St. Paul consumer price index, and provided other income tax relief including increases in personal credits. If indexing along had not been in effect in fiscal year 1981, the $197 million in additional tax revenue would have placed the state second highest in the nation.

Preliminary indications from a forthcoming income tax study by Minnesota's department of revenue shows that Minnesota's burden for middle income wage earners for a family of four (one wage earner) remains the highest in the nation, for tax year 1982. Continuation of Minnesota's surtax and 1982 legislative changes in the indexing formula will solidify Minnesota's distinction as the highest income taxed state in the nation for these wage earners for 1983.

Compared to the U.S. average, Minnesota's per capita amount of $342.60 is 64 per cent higher than the $208.82 average. Based on per $1,000 of personal income, Minnesota's $35.14 compares with a U.S. average of $21.89.

Sales Tax

Minnesota's sales tax ranking moved up a notch in per capita and per $1,000 of personal income collections — from 37th to 36th. The per capita amount was $168, and based on per $1,000 of personal income the amount was $17.

The rankings reflect Minnesota's collections based upon the four per cent rate effective through fiscal year 1981. Beginning in fiscal 1982 this rate was permanently increased to five per cent, and increased to six per cent for the first six months of 1983. Although food and clothing remain exempt in Minnesota at this time, the six per cent rate (shared by two other states) is second only to Connecticut which has a 7.5 per cent rate.

The 1981 amounts in Minnesota remain below the U.S. average. The state per capita of $168.47 compares with a $210.42 average. Based on per $1,000 of personal income Minnesota's $17.28 compares with a $22.06 average.

Corporate Income Taxes

Minnesota's corporate income tax collections dropped in the rankings and in the amounts in 1981. Minnesota's position moved from fourth highest to sixth with a per capita burden of $81; and from third to sixth based on collections per $1,000 of personal income.

Although the state ranking remains high, the improvement is due to a drop in corporate profits and not to legislative enactments. The actual amount of corporate income tax revenue was $376 million in 1980, $370 million in 1981, and $359 million in 1982. Revenues are expected to further drop to $310 million in 1983, and are not expected to reach the 1980 level until 1985, based on current projections.

Minnesota's dollar amounts in the rankings will definitely be dropping in the coming years, based on current law. Further drops in the rankings will also probably continue but remain contingent on other states' tax actions and recessionary implications.

Minnesota's 1981 per capita amount of $81.38 still remains higher than the U.S. average of $68.57. Based on per $1,000 of personal income, the state's $8.35 compares with a $7.21 average.

THEN and NOW!

Italian physicist Enrico Fermi voiced an oft-stated dream that the world would find peaceful uses for the atom to benefit mankind.

THEN: It was just 40 years ago that Professor Fermi led a team of scientists which performed the world's first controlled nuclear chain reaction at the University of Chicago.

NOW: Professor Fermi's dream is coming true. A plaque in his memory has been unveiled in the town of Caorso on the River Po in Italy. It is a spot where Fermi played as a little boy visiting his grandfather.

It is also the site of Italy's largest operating nuclear power plant, an 840,000 kilowatt General Electric-design boiling water reactor. Officials estimate that the plant's output will cut 365 million lire a year from Italy's oil import bill.

A similar plant, now under construction in Midland, Michigan, will also bear Fermi's name. The 1,100,000 kilowatt plant is being built by Detroit Edison Company.

Funds Remain In Program Of Conservation

Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district is still taking applications for cost-share assistance under the state program. The District has about $2,800 left to allocate for the 1982-83 year. These monies are to be used for projects to help establish long term conservation practices on the land.

The program is open to individuals, groups or units of government and will pay up to 75 per cent of the costs on the following practices:

(1) Erosion control structures such as grade stabilization structures, floodwater retarding structures and multi-purpose dams.

(2) Stripcropping system which provides for planting row crops with the contour where practicable and using alternative strips of row crops, close sown, and sod crops.

(3) Diversion channels with a supporting ridge on the lower side constructed across the slope.

(4) Stormwater control system of waterways, diversions, sediment control structures, stabilization structures, culverts, channels and floodways to convey storm run-off to a constructed or natural outlet in a non-erosive manner.

(5) Field windbreaks a strip or belt of trees, shrubs or grass barriers established within or adjacent to a field.

(6) Animal waste control system — a planned agricultural waste management system to contain and manage liquid and solid wastes including run-off from concentrated animal waste areas with ultimate disposal in a manner which does not degrade air, soil or water resources.

(7) Critical area stabilization by planting vegetation such as trees, shrubs, vines, grasses and legumes on sites subject to severe erosion.

Sign-ups are handled on a first-come, first-served basis until all funds are encumbered. All funds not encumbered by the end of the fiscal year (June 30, 1983) will be returned to the state office to be redistributed to other parts of the state where additional funds can be used.

Farmers who are interested in any of the above practices may sign up while funds are still available. Contact the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District in Grygla by calling 294-6144 or stop by the office to discuss the program.

Information Meet On PIK Set At Grygla

There will be an informational meeting about the payment-in-kind (PIK) program Wednesday morning, January 26, in Grygla. "Plan to attend and get your questions answered," suggests Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician with the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

Now is a good time to think about the protection you will need to put on your set-aside acres," Rundell suggests. "It looks like the wind erosion protection requirement will be in effect again. This will require adequate cover of crop residue or planting of a cover crop for the winter protection.

"There were quite a few fields last fall that were seeded to cover crop of oats and have a good cover to protect the soil. Take a look at some of the alternatives and begin planning your fall tillage around what your soil needs."

Rundell suggests that those who plan to have grain tested for germination, purity and disease should get the samples taken and sent in now to beat the rush and to have the results on hand to help plan whether to use their own grain or buy new seed.
